Wolfe lawyers request delay in hearing

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Attorneys for Kentucky State University Pres-ident John T. Wolfe Jr. have asked for a 30-day delay of a hearing at which the board of regents will dis-cuss firing Wolfe.

However, former Gov. Louie Nunn, chairman of the Board of Re-gents, said Wednesday that the board would reject postponement of the hearing, scheduled for Oct. 18.

the hearing, scheduled for Oct. 18. Wolfe's attorneys, William A. McAnulty and Barbara Reid Hartung, both of Louisville, also requested that the regents name "an inpartial non-member to preside over the hearing; allow quizzing and exclusion from the case of regents with "bias or hossility" oward Wolfe; and require "clear and convincing evidence" of wrongdoing, incompetence or neglect of duty before Wolfe may be dismissed.

missed. Nunn said the board would also reject most of McAnulty and Hartung's 11 requests made Tuesday. He said he had spoken to enough regents to "determine that the board's wishes would be to follow the advice of counsel," attorney William E. Johnson of Frankfort. In a memo to the board Tuesday, Johnson recommended against delaying the hearing.

Johnson recommended against delaying the hearing.

laying the hearing.

Johnson said "the good of Kentucky State University demands a speedy hearing" on the nine changes the regents filed against Wolfe on Monday. They included two involving potential criminal liability Wolfe's granting himself a pay raise and his alleged skirting of competitive-bidding laws in renovating his campus home.

vating his campus home.

Johnson urged the regents to hold the hearing with no hearing officer; no quizzing of regents; and no requirement that the charges be proven by "clear and convincing evidence."

State law on removing presidents of state universities requires that their incompetence, wrongdoing or neglect be proved only "by a preponderance of the evidence," he eard said.

Johnson urged the board to grant a few of the procedural requests from Wolfe's attorneys. Wolfe apparently will be able to call witnesses, cross-examine witnesses, conselet astimony with board-issued subpoenas and get a stenographic coord of the hearing.

Hartung said Wednesday night that she did not have any comment on the likely rejection of the requests. McAnulty could not be reached for comment.

Size of school determines Ky. salaries

Although salaries for university presidents in Kentucky typically are determined in part on the school's enrollment and budget, that rule does not hold below the top three universities.

top three universities.

UK President Charles Wethington receives $157,955 a year at the state's largest university, while Joh nT. Wolfe Jr. at Kentucky State University, the smallest, gets $92,500, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported yesterrlay.

rierau-Leader reported yes-terday.

Wolfe has been embroiled in a controversy after giving himself a 9.5 percent raise to $101,288 that is being chal-lenged by the school's Board of Regents.

"Before we get excited about Wolfe's pay raise, let's see what other state university presidents are making," said Shelby Lanier, president of the Louisville branch of the Advancement of Colored People, one of several civil rights groups trying to help Wolfe keep his job.

The University of Louisville, the state's second largest method in the second highest salary at $155,000, and Hanly Funderstein the second highest salary at $155,000, and Hanly Funderburk, the president of the state's third largest school, Eastern Kentucky University has the fourth largest enrollment with 15,720 students, but President of Hourth alragest enrollment with 15,720 students, but President Thomas C. Meredith gets $99,924. That salary ranks sixth on the list behind the presidents of much smaller Northern Kentucky and Morchead State universities.

Morehead State universities.
"I'm not sure the size of the salary and the size of the school should be a correlation." said WKU regents chairman Joe Iracane.
He said the school was facing a tight budget and Meredith asked the board to give him a raise of only 3.5 per-

See SALARY, Back page

BON APETIT

The Lemon Tree Tea Room, a student-operated restaurant in Erikson Hall, is a laboratory for students in the College of Human Environmental Sciences. Students are responsible for everything from menu planning and cooking to waiting tables.

Lemon Tree serves up good food and experience

By JOHN DYER FORT

Don't try to eat at the Lemon Tree Restaurant anytime soon. UK's student-operated restaurant in Erikson Hall, is booked solid in Erikson Hall, is booked solid through early November.

"Almost from the first of the se-mester the telephone starts ring-ing: "We want Lemon Tree reser-vations," " said Sharman Jones, the UK dietician who oversees the

The Lemon Tree is one of the Unversity's best-kept secrets and faculty and staff want it to remain a full-course meal," said Jones, who has worked at the Lemon Tree since 1981. "We sell an extra dessert for 50 cents. You go out to a restaurant, you pay $1.50 to $2. A meal like we serve, you'd pay $8 to $1.0" to $10."

The restaurant is a small, brightly-lit and comfortable dining room with simple decor. It offers a full-service, three-course lunch that is fresh and nutritious.

The restaurant is part of the Res-Lunch that is fresh and nutritious.

Customers have a choice of two entrees, two vegetables, deer and a beverage for $4.75.

"You can't find the type of dining we have for under $5 and get The students are enrolled in a five-hour credit course "Quality Food Production," which offers Food Production," which offers hands-on experience to students planning a career in the restaurant or food service industries.

"It's the only time they get this hands-on experience. This is where they find out if it's what they really want to do," said claire Schmelzer, an associate professor in the Human Environ-

Student ticket sweeps senate positions

By JOE BRAUN

Four UK freshmen are now Student Government Association sena-tors after winning the SGA elec-tions that ended yesterday. Rob Bowling (422 votes), Mar-vin Bishop (416 votes), Jennifer Fields (407 votes) and Caroline VanEman (388 votes) were voted as freshman representatives.

sults were announced.

Bowling, a pre-pharmacy major, won the majority of the 1,004 votes. "I was surprised — and I feel great," about being the top votegetter in the election," he said.

"I would just like to thank the freshman body for helping me out and putting me in there, and I'm eager to start working for them," Bowling said.
Fields looks forward to beginning her work as a senator.

anEman (388 votes) were voted freshman representatives. In fing her work as a senator. "I'm really excited about winning," Fields said. "We have to carpout were announced.

Bowling, a pre-pharmacy major, where the student body. ... We all worked together and it paid off."

"I was very nervous before "I was very nervous before the results were announced—and then when I found out about the election results, I was very, very happy," said Bishop, a biology freshman.
Sean McGuirk, SGA elections board chairman, said: "I thought the election was very efficient. I can tell by the high voter turnout."
The help of the election board was important, he said.
"They call me, the chairman of

"They call me the chairman of the election board, but each and everyone of them did as much work as I did," McGuirk said.

ampaign.
"When the pressure and stress of

"When the pressure and stress of the election came down on him, he took the initiative and went about it in a very positive manner," he said. Crosbie advised the new freshman senators to "stand by your promises and work towards a better student body at the University of Kentucky."

The votes were counted by the members of the SGA Elections Board, McGuirk said.

See SGA, Back page

Sorority holds dinner to improve race relations

"My face burt from smiling all day," said Doris Wilkerson, about her first days as a UK professor 20 years ago soon after the University became desegregated.

Wilkerson spoke to about 75 students last night about cultural diversity at a "Greek Unity Dinner," sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha social sorority.

The dinner was held to encounted the predominantly black and largely white sororities and fratermities, said Kim Mayo, president of Alpha Kappa.

said Kull was a common with a common work with people on a daily basis who are racially or culturally different.

different.

Mayo said the best way to change attitudes is by learning to be sensitive to others and "not be phony."

"You may not be able to empathize but you can sympathize," she said.

Six fraternities and one sorority did not attend the dinner. All 39 fradid not attend the dinner. All 39 fra-termities and soronties were invited. Mayo said she did not think the groups that did not show for the dinner were prejudiced because one of the fratermities that did not attend was black. There are three predomi-nantly black fratermities and four sororities at UK. Being in a black sorority provides members with things that are fo-cused to the black community, Mayo said.

See SORORITY, Back page

Doris Wilkerson, a UK sociology professor, speaks about cultural di-versity at the Alpha Kappa Alpha first Greek Unity Dinner.

UK paper celebrates 20 independent years

The Kentucky Kernel, the state's only daily college newspaper, celebrates 20 years of independence today.

UK's paper, which has been published since the early 1900s, became one of the few collegiate newspapers in the nation that operates as an independent business—selling advertising to pay expenses rather than receiving university funding.

"I think in the 20 years since the Kernel became independent that this type of arrangement has turned into the best situation for UK," said Mike Agin, UK's general manager and media ad-vicer.

general manager and media adviser.

"The students can voice their opinions freely and report on what they think are the important issues of the day. The University isn't burdened by having to worry about the Kernel's can see the benefits of the education its students are receiving."

To celebrate the newspaper's long history, alumni of the Kernel will return to campus this

See REUNION, Back page

10

11

-SPORTS -

With new starting quarterback Pookie Jones, the Wildcats gear up for Mississippi State on the road. Story, Page 2.

- UK TODAY -

A panel of professors from the College of Pharmacy will host a 1-hour call-in show on WKYT Channel 27 to field any medical

Musician wanders

Sports. through own 'Lab-yrinth.' Story, Page 4. Diversions Viewpoint.. Classifieds

Pookie vs. Sleepy: The battle of Cats and Dogs

War on the Shore.

War on the Shore.
Summer Stam.
The Puncher and the Preacher.
You've seen them before. You know, those tacky subtilites given to championship boxing and wrestling matches. Well, get on the phone and call Don King or Vince McMahon. Tomorrow's matchup between UK and Mississippi State is in need of a glitzy subtile.
How about "Scramblefest?"
When the Wildcats (2-2 overall 0-1 Southeastern Conference) and Southeastern Conference in Confe frustrated in a matchup of two scrambling quarterbacks.

Earlier this week, UK coach Bill Curry named redshirt freshman Pockie Jones the Cat's starting quarterback against State. In doing so, coupled with the return of the Bulldog's William "Sleepy" Robinson, this game is shaping up to be a bettle of frantic, though exciting, offensive units.

Jones saw his fewer. so, coupled with the return of the Bulldog's William "Sleepy" Robinson, this game is shaping up to be a battle of frantic, though exciting, offensive semme, Curry said.

Jones saw his first extensive action last week in UK's 35-14 loss to able to run our whole offense with

UK vs Miss.State

When: 1:30 p.m.CDT

Ole Miss. The 6-foot-1, 192-pounder replaced starter Brad Smith and instantly sparked the Cats' of-fense, completing 11 of 21 passes for 152 yards and picking up 77

"HOTLY EROTIC AND BRUTALLY FUNNY.
Jungle Fever is a powerhouse. Wesley Snipes

A SPIKE LEE JOINT

(1) R.

Wed - Saturday 7:00 & 10:00 pm

$2.00 at Worsham w/UK I.D

any one of our quarterbacks. What we have done is sat down and planned the parts of our offense that Pookie has done the most.

Pookie has done the most.
"Obviously, one of those things is running the ball. ... That running ability can give a defense fits — they've got to stay on their toes. Hopefully, that's what Pookie can give us."

e us."

Mississippi State coach Jackie errill says his team could have its nds full with Jones.

Sherrin says in sean douth lave a hands full with Jones.

"Kentucky gives you a lot of different looks, offensively," Sherrill said. "And with Jones at quarterback, that gives them more options. From what we've seen, he can hurt you with the run or throwing the ball."

The Bulldogs will counter with their own accomplished scrambler. "Sleepy" Robinson, a junior who has missed part of the 1991 season with injuries, has made a crucial impact in the games in which he has played. Robinson led the Bulldogs to a Top 20 ranking earlier this year.

ougs to a con-this year.

"With Robinson, they (State) do a lot of things at the line of scrim-mage." Curry said. "They have the ability to call the play once your de-fense is deployed and Robinson makes some excellent decisions."

Curry said the UK defense, which has yielded an average of 190 yards rushing a game, will have to toughen up for Mississippi State.

"tremendous, varied running game." UK's coach expects State to run a one-back set, the option and mix in some passing as well.

progress under its new coach, Sher-rill. if we expect to win Saturday be-cause a lot of the things Pookie Jones does for us, Robinson has been doing for them."

Senior nose guard Joey Couch and UK's defense will face Miss. State Coach Bill Curry called State's offense a "tremendous, varied running attack

"It's remarkable the way their team has played in a transitional pe-riod with a new coach," he said. "We'll certainly have our hands full with a well-prepared, talented Mis-sissippi State team.

"But I've seen us continue to im-long period of time. Good habits are built by hard work on the practice field, and I'm very excited about the spirit our men have to bounce back."

Getting their feet wet

UK played 61 players last week against Ole Miss out of 70 Cats who dressed for the game. Out of that total, 11 were redshir freshmen and five were true freshmen.

Sub Center 438 S. Ashland Ave. Chevy Chase

that's inexcusable. We can't do that

Curry said the Bulldogs have a

SOUP & SUBS Lunch • Dinner • Late Night 269-4693

Read the Kernel everyday for important campus information

'the source' in Starkville AI HILL:

TOO QUIET: What a letdown. I xpected some verbal back lashing is week from UK coach Bill Cur-and Mississippi State coach Jack-ry and Mississippi State Count Janconsider the Sherrill.

Curry and Sherrill have gone at it in the past. Sherrill once referred to the former Alabama coach as "Chicken Curry," after Curry did not want to play a game because of a threatening tornado.

Curry returned the verbal assault two weeks ago while responding to Sherrill's allegations that UK had a scout on the sidelines during the Mississippi State-Florida game. Curry told a reporter relaying the information, "Consider the source."

But Curry's best shot at Sherrill could come tomorrow when the two could come tomorrow when the two meet in Starkville, Miss. — Go get 'em, Bill.

em, Bill.

NICKNAME UPDATE: Last week I listed 10 possible nicknames for the Cat's punt returner, Kurt Johnson. Johnson led the nation in punt returning, last week, averaging 24.5 yards per return. Johnson ranks third in the nation this week and a nickname like "Rocket" or "White Shoes" would further enhance his status.

Among the names receiving the most votes included:

1. Kurt "The Squirt" Johnson.

2. Kurt "Jammin" Johnson.

3. "The Kurt Alert"

Make up one of your own, or vote for one of the above by calling the Kentucky Kernel at 257-1915.

GAME OF THE WEAK:

BOTTOM FIVE FROM CIN-CINNATI 1. Fitth-place Reds 2. Bengals 0-5 3. University of Cin-cinnati Bearcats 1-4. 4. Whatever team outfielder Eric Davis plays on. 5. Pete Rose's cameo-role in the "Babe Ruth Story." On the Beat is a weekly feature of Kernel sports. Assistant Sports Edi-tor Al Hill is a fine arts junior and Kernel sports columnist.

HAIR UNLIMITED New Tanning Beds Unisex Salon

1 visit $3.00 5 Visits $10.00 10 visits $17.95 Free Tan Visit with any Hair Services 266-5800

MAN-O-WAR PLACE

WE'RE FED UP!

Court Sports is sick and tired of department stores and discount chains taking business because of low prices alone! In response we are having a blowout sale from October 14 through November 2!

THIS IS A SALE! DON'T MISS OUT! COURTSPORTS

Open 10-8 M-F 10-7 Sat Corner of S. Limestone & Euclid

255-5125

The Courts, the Community, and the Bill of Rights: A Bicentennial Forum

"EVERY STEP YOU TAKE"

OCTOBER 13TH AT 8PM 2nd Annual Alcohol Awareness Walk! * DONOVAN HALL* • 1ST 400 THAT SIGN UP RECEIVE

AT LAMBDA CHI ALPHA HOUSE AFTER WALK

If you're greek wear your letters.

Special thanks to I CAN'T BELIEVE IT'S YOGURT

For info call 257-6600 258-8697

A FREE T-SHIRT

· ICE CREAM SOCIAL

Forum IV Central Library treet, Lexington, Kentucky 40507

Civil Disobedience in America - A Definition and Brief His Andrew Hacker, Professor of Political Science, City College of New York

Hockman standing in as No. 3 quarterback

Ryan Hockman's feet are a little tired these days. Not from running all day, but from standing. So as the third-string UK quarter-back walked off the field after a 2

1/2-hour practice this week, he had his own simple request when asked for an interview.

his own simple request when asked for an interview.

"Mind if we sit down?" the Harrison, Ohio, native asked. "I've been standing all day. And I mean standing."

Just a few weeks ago, Hockman figured the only standing around he'd be doing about this time would be at the cafeteria. The junior thought he'd be running around the practice field, directing the Wildcats' offense. Instead, he's watching redshirt freshman Pookie Jones take the snape. "It's been a little frustrating actually," said Hockman. "But I'm not a very emotional person. I'm not going to cry in my room or feel depressed. I still come out here with a smile on my face."

It would be easy for an athlete to smile on my face."

It would be easy for an athlete to lose a bit of confidence after being so close to No. 1 as Hockman was, then drop to a bracketed No. 3 spot on the depth chart.

on the depth chart.

Hockman and junior Brad Smith were neck-in-neck in the race for the starting position going into a late-August scrimmage, a practice game that Coach Bill Curry said would determine the starter. Smith completed 14 of 15 and had a woes for Hockman, senior Freddie couple of touchdowns, leaving Hockman on the sideline.

"The thing wasn't based on that one scrimmage, but hey, Brad had a great day," Hockman said, as he shrugged his shoulders.

great day. Hockman said, as no strugged his shoulders.

On paper, Hockman was listed behind Jones, who the coaches felt needed the repetitions/experience the No. 2 gets in practice, Jones has since earned the starting position.

"The remarkable thing about this is Ryan hasn't done anything to take himself out of the picture," Curry said. "He has never come out here, hung his head or pouted. He's a quiet guy and not aggressive by nature, but every time he comes to work, he comes to work sincerely."

The only blemish on Hockman's record this season was when he and Jones missed the team bus from the hotel to the stadium at Indiana. For that, both were suspended for that game.

Maggard, the starter for much of the last two seasons, returned from shoulder surgery. At this point, Maggard and Hockman are both listed at No. 3 on the depth chart. "I enjoy playing football, whether or not I get a chance in the game," Hockman said this week. "What I enjoy doing is throwing the football, but right now I'm not doing to ment of that, honestly, the said of the control of the co ball, but right now I'm not doing too much of that, honestly,

"Just about everybody goes through something like this."
This time last season, Hockman was in just about the same spot—third string, It took injuries to Maggard and Smith for the then-sophomore to see action.
He entered against Florida in the fourth quarter and completed 10 of 13 passes for 134 yards and scored a touchdown on a 1-yard sandex. He relieved Maggard midway through the first quarter at Tennessee and connected on 25 of 43 passes for 277 yards and two touchdowns.
With that experience, standing around is even tougher.
"This is something that's kind good to go through," Hockman said.
"It makes you appreciate winning

"This is something that's kind of good to go through," Hockman said.
"It makes you appreciate winning and being on top a lot more than you would if you were up there the whole time," he said, then breaks out in a loud, wishful laugh. "Seriavella analyting can barnen as we ously, anything can happen, as we saw last year."

Even though Hockman says he's just standing around, he's actually preparing for his future. He wants to follow his father and brother into the football coaching profession. His father, Ken, is the head coach at Harrison High School. His brother, Kyle, is a graduate assistant at West Virginia University.

"My goal is to be a successful coach," said Ryan, who prefers the college game, "And what I'm doing right not is great preparation for that, whether or not I'm playing. So I think that's what's keeping me optimistic in a way.

"Some people might just stand around and not get anything out of it, but I'm learning every day."

This does not necessarily mean, though, that his playing days are over. Neither he or Curry believe that's the case.

"Football is a tough, demanding business," the UK coach said. "We've all been demoted and promoted. There's a good chance we'll need Ryan at some point his season. "We expect Ryan to maintain his sharpness, and when the team needs him, to be ready to go. That's what he's always done."

Hockman says all he needs is "about five seconds" to loosen up. After all, nobody likes to stand around all day.

Senior Staff Writer Barry Reeves is a journalism senior and a Kernel sports columnist.

No. 3 'Killers' look for 6th-straight win

Staff reports

The UK volleyball team will put a five-match winning streak on the line this weekend when the Cats hit the road to play Alabama today and Mississippi State tomorrow.

The Wildcats, now 10-5 and 1-0 in Southeastern Conference play, are ranked 10th in the nation in kills per game with 13.836.

Sophomore setter Jane Belanger ranks third in the nation in assists, with 12.87 per game. Alabama and Miss. State have dientical records at 11-7 overall and 1-1 in SEC play.

Cross country teams to run in Bloomington UK's men and women's cross country teams will compete in the Indiana Invitational in Bloomington,Ind., tomorrow.

Freshman Vadim Nemad has merged as the Wildcats' No.1 emerged as the Wildcats NO. runner this season, finishing eighth in the Mountain West Classic in Missoula, Mont., and third in Hall of Fame invitational in Bowling Green, Ky. Lady Kat seniors Denise Bu-shallow and Khalilah Muhammad have shared the No. 1 spot

Bushallow finished 12th in Missoula to lead UK while Mu-hammad's ninth place finish in Bowling Green led the Lady

Big Blue Madness.
Big Blue Madness, this year's version of UK's traditional Midnight Madness, will begin at 8 p.m., Saturday, Oct.19 in Memorial Coliseum.

rial Coliseum.

UK officials said they moved the event to the weekend because they were concerned that UK players, students and area school children would be forced to miss class following a midnight function during the school week. Admission is free.

Midnight Madpress traditional-

Midnight Madness traditionally was held on Oct.15 at one minute past midnight, the first day the basketball team is allowed to hold official practice.

Several basketball preview magazines have UK ranked near the top of their preseason polls. Sport Magazine has UK ranked second behind Duke, Dick Vitale's Preview and Basketball Digest ranked UK fifth.

Braves' fans chop, chop, chop NL series tickets

ATLANTA — Hundreds of At-tanta Braves fans who camped out with grills and sleeping bags for up to two days walked away with the last 3,000 National League playoff inst 3,000 National League prayoritickets yesterday.

But some were angry when the tickets sold out in 90 minutes. They booed, yelled obscenities and cheered for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

About 2,000 people, who could buy up to four tickets each, were in line when ticket windows opened at 8,56 a.m. Some had camped out at Adanta-Fulton County Stadium since Tuesday night.

"I'm pretty psyched," said Mark Tuchman, an Emory University student who was first in line. He arrived at the stadium at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, and left yesterday with choice, lower-level seats.
"I'm kind of sad," said Anthony Camp, the 450th person in line who bought the last three tickets. "There are people going all around the stadium who aren't going to get nothing. I'm kind of sad for them."

But not sad enough to part with his tickets to the Pirates' games this weekend — he said he'd only sell for $500 a ticket.

for $500 a ticket.

"We got screwed, we got screwed," a group of disgruntled fans chanted, charging that Braves officials staged the ticket sale in a manner that allowed a group of about 200 people to break in line when ticket windows opened.

"The people that broke in line didn't get tickets," said Terri Brennan, director of stadium security. "They took the place of some who wouldn't have gotten tickets anyway."

Stadium security guards, Atlanta police and military police from Fort McPherson were on hand to control the crowd, allowing a few at a time to approach the four ticket windows. Only about two dozen people complained, said Jack Tyson, director of Braves ticket sales.

Atlanta since 1982.

Brad Bell, a seni sity of Pittsburgh, or s

He noted that fans had other opportunities to buy tickets. The Braves sold more than 15,000 championship and World Series tickets in previous sales before the end of the regular season.

end of the regular season.

The Braves announced last weekend that almost 3,000 more tickets would be sold for this weekend's games. These were "straggler" tickets held by other ball clubs and were the last tickets available, Tyson said.

son said.
"I guess they all waited 'til this sale because it's a lock. Before, it wasn't sure that the Braves would play," Tyson said. "We have literally sold every ticket we have, and we're glad we did."

Braves fans came from as far as Pittsburgh for their chance to see the games against the Pirates — the first postseason baseball games in

Brad Bell, a senior at the Univer sity of Pittsburgh, came all the way from the land of the Pirates to see the Braves play in their home stadi-

"This is amazing. I'm so happy for this city," he said. Cynthia Diamond of Atlanta bought tickets for herself and her three children.

"I feel marvelous," she said.
"They are going to be very happy."

Though ticket seckers were origi-nally told they could not camp out until Wednesday night, the Braves relented and allowed fans to get in line Tuesday night. Some grilled steaks while others ordered pizza or ate from picnic baskets.

Oct. 17, 1991 7:00 to 8:30 F Room 111, Student Cen to 8:30 PM

Ashland Chemical

Braves blank Pirates, even series at one

PITTSBURGH - Steve Avery is

PHITSBURGH — Steve Avery is too young to know the Braves aren't supposed to win in October. The 21-year-old again pitched with poise and Atlanta bounced back last night to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 — with a chop, naturally — to send the NL playoffs south tied at one game each.

Mark Lemés's two-honner eluded south used at one game each.

Mark Lemke's two-hopper eluded sure-handed third baseman Steve Buechele for an RBI double in the sixth inning, and that was enough, barely. Avery and Atlanta stopped the Braves' 10-game postseason losing streak, one short of the Philadelphia Phillies' record skid.

Avery eave m six his; in 8 1/3 in-

Avery gave up six hits in 8 1/3 innings, struck out nine and shut down the middle of Pirate's order. Plus, he was at his best when it counted.

Avery retired Game 1 hero Andy Van Slyke on a grounder with run-ners on first and third to end the eighth inning. Then in the ninth, Bobby Bonilla led off with a dou-ble, making him 6-for-12 lifetime against Avery. That brought up Barry Bonds, and with the Pirates' star showing no signs of bunting, popped up to shortstop.

Braves manager Bobby Cox felt that was enough for Avery and sum-moned Alejandro Pena from the bullpen. Pena picked up the save by getting the last two outs of the in-ning.

Theatre UK

College of Fine Arts

University of Kentucky

and WRFL's Alternative Music Month

DIVERSIONS

Musician wanders through own 'Labyrinth'

TESY OF IMPACT RECORDS

By HUNTER HAYES

At an age when many people are still trying to make sense of their lives, Canadian musician Kerri An-derson is distilling the components of her life into a craft.

of her life into a craft.

Anderson, 23, has recently finished her debut album, Labyrinin, which is scheduled to be released on Impact Records this month.

Drawing upon influences as diverse as Peter Gabriel, Jean-Paul Sartre, Stephen King and Oriental philosophy, Anderson has combined them to reflect her view on modern life. modern life modern life.

"Taoism is a very interesting philosophy," Anderson said speaking of the I Ching, which she recently read. "It's a balance thing but it's not just the Yin and Yang, It's a balance of outer forces. It basically boils down to common sense if you think about it.

"Actually what affected me the most was a lot of the way the book was worded, more than anything else," she said. "I thought the sort of stop and go phrasing and blow by blow imagery and descriptions of the hexagrams were really fascinating."

However, her album is the culmination of experiences she has had, rather than a response to other writers or musicians. These experiences include leaving school at 17, due largely to her teachers' lack of encouragement of her creative desires. "Labyrinth is something that over the past two years — I've kind of wandered through one in terms of discovering myself," she said.
"I used to be a very negative, self-involved person because I had a very low self image and felt a lot of anger for a lot of different reasons. And from anger comes pain, However, her album is the culmilike you as well."

Now Anderson finds she is able to accept herself for who she is, and is able to do the same for others. Being able to provide a new persective on her life is demonstrated on the album's opening track, "Chosts."

on the album's opening track, "Ghosts."

"Over the past two years I started to discover that it's OK to be happy, it's OK not be afraid of your personality faults," she continued. "It's OK to deal with your thoughts as a person and still be able to like yourself. I found that through accepting faults in myself, I've bean able to accept faults in other people as well. I used to be able to walk away from somehody and never see them again. I used to be very unforgiving. If somehody fucked me over, that was it — they were out of my life. I'm much more forgiving now because I'm able to forgive myself and that's just part of it."

Anderson asserts that forgiveness is an important quality that people must possess when entering adult-hood.

no immediate plans to tour the U.S. inevitably," she said. "Just over the past two years! I've discovered a lot of things about myself and it was kind of like wandering in a labyrinth because I was capable of feelings a lot of different things and not just negativity. The point where you've been angry and hurt so much that you start believing that's all you can feel. You've been unhappy for so long — that even though you no longer have any reasons to be unhappy — that it becomes a way of life because it's familiar," Anderson said.

"When I was in school I was very anti-social and a difficult person to get along with. And I was picked on a lot, and that became the basis for my self image," she said. "From then on, I kind of dealt with the world with that self image, and if you don't like yourself obviously it makes it difficult for other people to to."

fessional. And also you can't beat the weather here. The smog is kind of a bitch but the weather's wonderful. Up at home there's usually about two to three weeks in the winter where it will get down to minus 40 and stay there. I got real spoiled from spending the last winter here."

Although she became a familiar fixture on the Edmonton club circuit and maintains a good relationship with many of the musicians in that area, Anderson chose to use studio musicians on Labyrinth.

"My decision not to use my band was professional — lack of studio experience, mainly," she said. "When a label is putting up a lot of money to do a project, you really can not afford financially to take a risk on a player who may need 20 takes to get something right. It's much safer to go in and hire a guy who can get it right in one take. As cold and heartless as that may sound, I wanted to make the best record I could possibly make. That, unfortunately, necessitated me using session players."

However, she has not forgotten her old friends and songwriting partners. Anderson says she looks forward to working with them again.

A multi-instrumentalist, Anderson has been playing piano since childhood and uses various instruments and methods for composing.

ments and methods for composing.
"Sometimes a song will just occur to me in complete form with a couple of pieces of lyric missing that I'll have to fill in," is he said.
"Then other times it'll be a bit of lyric and I'll just chance upon some kind of guitar melody or vocal melody, or something like that. And then sometimes it's just a guitar groove that I really like. The really, really inspired ones, though, tend to just happen. I've heard a lot of otheer artists say that, too. Sometimes you work your ass off trying to get a decent piece of music and then sometimes it just happens.

Anderson has many goals she would like to achieve and hopes musical success will provide the opportunities for that.

portunities for that.

"In terms of professionally, I do have a number of people that I've looked up to for a long time that I would love to work with, Peter Gabriel being one of them. I don't know how much work he does with other people but his New World kind of influences are something I would love to tap into because he's coming from an entirely different place than the rest of us. If not to work with him, I would at least really love to meet him. Sting is another guy I would love to work with. I'm just like any kid into music — I've got all these guys that I would love to work with."

Even though she would like to achieve critical and popular acclaim and amass a fortune doing so, she is able to keep this in perspective.

"I would really like to just get to a place where I can be satisfied," Anderson said. "I've kind of started Anderson said. "I've kind of starred this developmental process as a human being and I would like to continue down that road. I do have a strong base of morality that I come from and I would like to develop the framework of my life to fit around that. Obviously I would love to make a lot of money but I'm from a pretty grass roots background — I'm a farm kid from Alberta.

"I'm pretty satisfied if I can pay my rent and keep my car payments up. I've never been a very material-istic person, so I don't need a house in Bel Air. A little two room flat sounds fine to me. There are things that I would like to have but there are things I can live without as well."

'Stations of Cross' exhibit addresses controversial topics

Louis Bickett is a big fish in a lit-tle pond making waves in the most inane, obvious way possible.

Bickett's 'The Stations of the Cross," currently on exhibit at the Lexington Art League's Loudon House, uses the Catholic myth of the events before and after the cru-cifixion of Christ to depict Bickett's struggle with rural Kentucky's ho-mophobia.

The crosses installed in the Lil-The crosses installed in the Lil-lian Boyer Gallery at Loudon House are constructed and covered with either vinyl. Astro Turf, are painted red or have photographs or notes lacquered to their surfaces. The room is covered in crosses of different sizes. Most of the smaller crosses are covered with Bickett's personal pictures.

personal pictures.

One standing cross is covered with copies of a Lexington Herald-Leader article depicting the death of a teen-age boy on a local play-ground. Another cross is dedicated to John Lennon and Yoko Ono. It is a standing black vinyl-covered cross with an opening in the center where stands a half-full (or empty), glass of water under a blacklight. Another standing cross is almost identical except for a wheel in the center. The work is dedicated to Marcel Duchamp, of course.

Two other crosses utilize a television and a tape player running "The Last Temptation of Christ" in video and on tape, respectively, All these aspects so far make for a charming, if somewhat haphazard range of topics.

topics.

The two crosses making a stink at the Lexington Art League are "Cross for the Beautiful Boy Who in His Past Made Porno Movies and Had AIDS and Came Home to Die" and "CilivTil Cross."

The former is a large, upright cross plastered with magazine photographs of nude men with erections. The latter is set on the floor at a 45 degree angle to the first, and in the same fashion is covered with prictures of women.

What does this have to do with Bickett's visual biography? And dence."

What doesn't it strike Bickett as a bit sex-ist? Why does the male cross have a the Bickett is installation is the visual biography?

biographical explanation, creating sympathy, and the female cross is labeled with derogatory slang? Bickett's explanation is "No one is more feminist" than he, and that the position of the crosses and the titles point out society's treatment of

The Lexington Art League's response to the exhibit is to close the gallery door, padlock it and make it available only to those over 21 years of age. The doors and lock are meant to protect the children from the pomography, but it's not the children!' in worried about. It's the purtianical people who come back again and again, even bringing their friends, to be shocked and outraged by the filth. These people need serious help. If someone wants to measure the calibre of shock value before entering the gallery that is so well-guarded, all they have to do is read the artist's statement by the door or ask the receptionist. Indeed, even that doesn't stop the naysayers from going in to evaluate the "decadence." The Lexington Art League's re-overkill. Has this guy no sense of ambiance or subtlety? He seems to have dumped all his picked bones into one pile and is calling it art. Bickett has taken a little so Bickett has taken a little something from every genre of art in the last 50 years and coerced it into this hodge-podge. He knows very well how to do a takeoff of Lennon/Ono or Marcel Duchamp, but he hasn't gleaned any understanding from their genius.

Ambiguity was a key element in these artists' works. The only thing ambiguous about Bickett's installa-tion are the crosses with pornography on them.

The fact that Bickett is a feminist is the least obvious thing about this work. In fact, given the exhibit is supposed to be autobiographical, it looks as if these crosses represent an expect of Bickett's life we would looks as if these crosses represent an aspect of Bickett's life we would rather not know about. One of the only movements Bickett hasn't incorporated into his conglomerate is minimalism. He would do well to note this fact.

It is worth notice.

"Temptation" was a poorly made movie that would have never procured a dime if it hadn't been for the Fundamentalist masses uniting to have it banned.

In the same way, the Art League has received complaints, had the police investigate, and the mayor's office call and a news team on site. To what end? More people want to see the show. Everyone wants a part of the controversy. Some are even comparing this banal event to the Robert Mapplethorpe catastrophe in Cincinnati.

The big difference is, Mapple-thorpe was an artist with fantastic vision and pure technical genius. Bickett? Maybe he should join league with Pee-Wee Herman.

"The Stations of the Cross" will be on exhibit through Oct. 27. The Lexington Art League's Loudon House, 209 Castlewood Drive, is open 12-4 Tuesday through Friday, 1-4 Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call 254-7024.

Top 10 Sorority Sister Term Paper Topics

10. "Shakespeare People and Their Silly Clothes"

9. "Three Tragedies of American Youth: Anorexia, Bulimia and Fair Skin"

8. "Attila The Hun: Definitely Not a Sweetie'

7. "Ray Bans, Gaudy Gold Jewelry, Heavy Makeup, Perms and Other Fashion Trends For The '90s and Beyond'

6. "Really Bitchin' Accessory Ideas From Fellini's La Dolce Vita

5. "The Recurring Theme of 'Man as an Image of Himself In Television's 'All My

4. "Really White Elizabethan Era Women: Life Before Tanning Beds"

3. "Skin Cancer: The Great Myth"

2. "Having a Unique Perspective -What It Might Be Like: An Exploratory Study'

1. "F. Scott Fitzgerald: What a Cutie!"

"How was home? while you were gone, I clawed the furniture snotted All the Catnip and got pregnant,"

Compilled by Kernel columnist David Ash

Kentucky Kernel

By Jay Blanton

Kernel is not a very good newspaper.
Incorrectly spelled words pop out like sores; headlines sometimes appear over the wrong stories and there's no way to tell what the student newspaper's politics are from year to year.

way to tell what the student newspaper's politics are from year to year from knee-jerk liberal on one issue to reactionary conservative on another.
There is seemingly no flyme or reason to the entire process.
And that's precisely the way things should be.
That's not to say that the Kernel shouldn't be mindful of editorial quality.
It should, and the cadre of students that spend most of their waking moments at the Kernel (and in the process missing most of their classes), desperately try to avoid the errors that plaque the daily workings of a college newspaper.
Sometimes they succeed and put out a product that has us older people wondering how a bunch of college kids, with all the stuff they have going on in their lives, can achieve such quality. The 1985-86 Kernel, under the direction of Liz Catras, a Herald-Leader business writer, won a Pacemaker, making the Kernel one of the top tour daily colleglate papers in America.
But Caras was a little different. I was a freshman when Caras was editor, and she routinely scared the life out of me

by telling me how terrible my copy was, peppering her talk with salty language that I had never heard a woman use. She left me with the impression that I would never amount to anything. (Well maybe she wasn't that different. Caras was usually right on the mark).

To be honest, though, those moments of consistent quality are pretty rare.

ments of consistent quality are pretty rare.

But the Kernel is about a lot more than picas, style books and headline counts. In short, it's about passion.

If you've spent any time at all looking at Kernels over the years, particularly in the 20 years of its independence, passion is the one thing that virtually drips from the pages of the Kernel.

From the perennial pleas for increased state funding for higher education to telling the UK Board of Trustees to, in effect, go to hell and start a new presidential search, the Kernel has been nothing, if not passionate and fervent in the stands that if has made. But that's to be expected.

The Kernel's beginnings as an independent publication were dubious to say the least.

Strapped for finances, and faced by a board of trustees that wanted its extinction, the Kernel decided that the only chance for survival was to break its ties with the University.

When that was done, former governor and UK board member A.B. "Happy"

Chandler, who was to find himself in a fight with the Kernel about once every five years, remarked: "This is only manslaughter - I wanted murder."

It turns out that Chandler didn't even It turns out that Chandler didn't even get mansfaughter. Instead, he and the rest of the campus got a lively, at times unruly, publication that has taken Chandler and every other public official it could find to task for one thing or another over the years.

The penchant to become enmeshed in controversy, however, certainly hasn't contined itself to the last 20 years.

in controversy, however, certainly hasn't confined itself to the last 20 years.

In the summer of 1963, a young Richard Wilson, now The Courier-Journal's Bluegrass Bureau Chief, was told that the newspaper adviser, a University employee, would be 'publisher' and would control the Kernel's content. Wilson, who was to be editor during the year 1963-64, resigned to call attention to this control over the student press. A year later, the Board of Publications was set up, a move that essentially separated the Kernel from underthe control of the Journalism School. Later in its history, the Kernel itself was asking for the resignations. The Kernel editorial board said basketball coach Eddie Sutton should resign because of the perception created by the NCAA investigation of corruption in the men's basketball program. The Washington Post, the Dallas Morning News, Cable News Network and Nightline all called.

Most people on campus told the editors of the Kernel where to take a leap. After all, the sanctity of the Kentucky's most prized possession - its boys in blue-and-white, was put into question, and even ridiculed by a bunch of snotty kids, most of whom couldn't even hit a reverse laws.

reverse layup.

The Kernel, which was supposed to write about the news, once again became the news.

The day after the editorial ran, UK President David Roselle approached two of the editors, smiled and patted them on the backs. For a moment, anyway, a beleagured staff felt vindicated, You may be getting the impression that Kernel has not always been very popular with its readers.

That's putting it mildly. After all, Kernel editors and writers have never really been known for their modesty.

modesty.
Former Kernel Editor John Voskuh, now The Courier-Journal's reporter in Eastern Kentucky, often used to remind people that the Kernel is the most important student organization on campus - nothing else is even close.
(There's nothing like expressing your feelings).
In 1984, outgoing editor Andrew Oppmann dropped the flag on the front page to run his farewell column, a traditional editorial salute. It generally reminded readers of how tough, and a single quote from Jimmy Buffett - "W just came here to kick a little ass." The statement pretty much captured the es sence of Hassert's philosophy on news statement pretry funch captured in the ssence of Hassert's philosophy on newspapers. Kill and burn, and take names of the camage later.

Students havent atways responded with acts of kindness to this son of attitude. That's understandable.

But this is a newspaper, we remind you, not a love fest. And while the Kernet has never been known to be all that consistent with its copy, it has always been consistent with its emotions. People at the Kernel have always tended to wear their hearts on their elseves.

Perhaps that's because college kids tand to be dealistic. They actually believe that the written word, honesty and a title fire and emotion can still change the word.

Tim Wiesenhahn, Kernel sports editor, looks at a yearbook photo in 1986, when Kernel editor Liz Caras celebrated a national award.

The Kernel broke ties with the Univer-ty and became financially self-poporting in January 1972, during the nure of editor in chief Mike Wines. The UK Board of Trustees voted to hash the paper's funds for 1971-72 and end its subsidy entirely for the following year.

With a few struggles and a rather bumpy transition, the Kernel became an independent student publication.

independent student publication.
But it wasn't the newspaper's finances that bothered fivnes. "While I worried, it wasn't the primary concern. Our biggest concern was dealing with the University administration," Wines said. "While it was supportive, it wasn't overwhelmingly so." "We were looked on as a political liability back then."
It Wines would have a primary to the property of the property

If Wines could have changed anything, he probably would have changed the is-sues the newspaper chose to cover. "We didn't do a lot of social issues," he said. He reflected on past editors and times to explain why. "In the tenor of the times, the popple who came before me were of a more radical and philosophical porsuasion. We went too much the other way by stoking to traditional types of campus issues."

days and the struggles. "What I think most about is the pain of it all, rather than the pleasure," he said.

The Kernel began experimenting with horizontal layout in 1973. "We opened up to graphics and artsy-type photographs," said editor Steve Swift.

said editor Steve Swift.

"The paper covered a potpourri of campus, national and international copy," he said.

The staff concentrated coverage on Loxington, specificially city government issues. It also focused on covering state issues, such as the tornado that hit Kennekkin 1927.

said.

Swift said the additional opinion page of the Kernel ran effectively. It gave students a chance to express themselves, especially concerning national and inter-

Swift also said the paper did an exten-

ownt also said the paper did an exten-ve amount of investigative reporting. One particular assignment that ended being "too overwhelming," dealt with a Tobacco and Health Research Insti-te. Two reporters spent six months on e project that they eventually aban-and for a lack of necessary resources

Editor: Linda Carnes Year: 1974-75

ouring Linda Carnes' tenure, the Ker-devoted a lot of news play to the Red er Gorge controversy, which involved possible construction of a dam uss Red River.

Many argued the dam would harm the vironment of the gorge.

overonment of the gorge.

Such coverage was typical of the Kerid during 1974-75. "We were at the tail of the student unrest era and fairly screek," she said. "We were more corrend about political-type things in social-type things.
We were more interested in things side campus."

outside campus."
Carnes said students placed a great emphasis upon the environment, and the Kernel's coverage was a reflection of that interest. During this period, women's sports moved into the spotlight — rugby,

Editor: Bruce Winges Year: 1975-76

This was the last year for the Kernel is most people knew it — in tabloid form. I was a year of transition. The paper was not quite conservative and was not quite

"We tried to report everything we could and beat the Lexington paper. It was not a question of being conservative or liberal," he said

al. he said.

He said the paper could have dealt more with social concerns, and it was easy to get too involved in a routine coverage. Everybody wanted a little hunk of the space we had. It was easy to get caught up in the day-to-day operation."

Winges said.

The Kernel dealt with the controversy over the murder of LuRon Eugene Taylor er the murder of LuRon Eugene Tay and the two football players who wern connected with the death. A special Sat

Editor: Ginny Edwards Year: 1976-77

Tear: 1976-77

The Kernel took on a new look in 1976. It was no longer in tabloid size but had expanded to a broadsheet format. This change gave 'students the opportunity to work on a paper the size of professional newspapers,' according to the editorial that appeared in the first issue. The second reason for the change, the editorial stated, was the opportunity for better design, as well as an attempt to boost advertising revenue.

The paper also began using a new Hendrix computerized text-editing system, which facilitated the production process. The system's installation was a result of efforts by Nancy Green, student publications adviser. Green was named the nation's Distinguished Newspaper Adviser in 1976.

The Kernel devoted itself to communications.

The Kernel devoted itself to community issues, such as the opening of Rupp Arena in October 1976, amid echoes of the South Hill controversy. The construction of the 23,000-seat arena caused the destruction of many houses, forcing many residents to relocate.

On the campus scene, Gatewood Gaibraith, then a third-year law student, lobbied for the legalization of manijuana. Meanwhile coverage continued of the in-ned for the legalization of manipiana. Meanwhile, coverage continued of the in-tornal probe launched by President Osis. A Singletary during the National Colle-giate Athletes Association investigation of the football team. The team had been placed on proba-tion for recruiting violations and recieving illegal after.

illegal gifts.

The Kernel gave a lot of attention to lo cal and national women's issues involved. The Kernel gave a lot of attention to lo-cal and national women's issues involv-ing abortion and the state of women's equality. Edwards said perhaps the slighting of women's coverage in the past was a reflection of a decline in female staff members.

who I would consider feminists. In some cases, they went to bat for women more than some women did," she said.

Editor: Steve Ballinger Year: 1977-79

Steve Ballinger compared the Ken-tucky Kernel of the 1960s to the Ken-tucky Kernel of the 1960s to the Ken-tucky Kernel of the 1970s. "The paper was different from the '60s ... (when) the Kernel played more in poli-tics," he said. "The Kernel was still very liberal, but the political nature of the paper was no longer important At the time I was there, the papers main duty

At the top

Two decades of Kernel editors

was to train workers to become profes-sionals.*

Ballinger did encounter a few difficult times, many of them common to any dai-times, many workers and the members to the right jobs was a task — perhaps the most difficult of any he faced, Ballinger said. *Since we were such a small paper, we were watched very closely, which caused a lot of pressure on the students working.* he sailure on the students caused a lot of pressure on the students working. he said. One of the highlights of the Kernel's coverage from 1977-79 was the Kentucky baskeball team capturing the NCAA crown in 1978. On the national scene, there was the death of Pope Paul IV and the death of John Paul I shortly thereafter. Being the editor of a campus daily newspaper is something Ballinger said he will never forget.

Some of the excesses surrounding UK athletics were brought to the forefront in the Kernel during Debbie McDaniel's year as editor. Wildcat Lodge, which had been built in the mid-1970s as a residence hall for UK basketball players, was scrutinized heavily by organizations such as the NGAA.

The Lodge eventually was opened to as the NCAA.

The Lodge eventually was opened to non-basketball players also. In addition, McDaniel remembers that rumors of abuse in the basketball and football proand football pro-rams were prevalent.

*There were hints of turmoil that later urfaced, * she said.

There were hints of turnoil that later surfaced," she said. A weighty issue involved internal problems in the College of Communications. He (Oits A Singletary) was trying to dischard the college. McDaniel said. The college was given a grace period in order to resolve its internal problems. A new acting dean was appointed. McDaniel, who is married and is expecting her first child in November, worked six years for the Carroll County Times. She currently is public relations coordinator for Anne Arundel Community College, near Annapolis, Md. McDaniel said she remembers "a lot of late nights" but also the satisfaction gained in working with a dedicated staff. "We got really close — we worked as a team."

Editor: Steve Massey Year: 1980-81

Steve Massey began his tenure in the wake of an $11.2 million stash made in UK's budget for the fiscal year 1981. He said he thought that one of the Kemel's main strengths involved its coverage of budget cuts and how those cuts affected the students and the individual. If think we did a good job of bringing this home to the students and faculty." Massey said.

said.

Massey said he thought the paper should have been more sensitive to social issues to encourage students to be more alert to the world around them. He said the mindset of students changed for said the mindset of students changed for the worso.

**College campuses are much more conservative (now)," he said. "We were a attrowback to the New Deal type of thought."

The Kernel recapped the Iranian hostage dilemma for the campus community through extensive news coverage and editorial copy. Ronald Reagan was also elected the 40th president of the United States during Massey's term. And John Lennon was killed by an assassin's bullet.

Lennon was killed by an assassans sour-let.

Massey said his paper — and staff — was very liberal. "We were probably the last of an era, a dying breed of newspa-per liberalism." Massey said.

Massey, who was an urban affairs re-porter and Sunday right city editor at the San Francisco Chronicle from 1987-90, currently is a business reporter for The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. In retrospect, Massey said he wishes in paper could have been more visually attractive. But back in his time, he be-lieves, content was more important than presentation.

Bill Steiden was the last Kentucky Kerel en eleditor to serve two torms, and nearly a decade after he put out his first paper he believes that's probably a blessing.

"My life was prefty fed up "working on the student newspaper, said Steiden, ow ho currently is the night city editor for the Sarasota (Fia). Hersalf Tribune. "I spent a lot more time doing the Kernel than doing class."

Steiden began his sist na s editor in the wake of repeated cuts to the Liviersity budget. Gov. John Y. Brown had sliabed over $18 million more from the state's appropriation for higher education.

Steiden said the first year of Ronald Reagan's series at U.S. president forced many a hardship on UK students. Reagan's policy to gut the guaranteed stu-gan's policy to gut the guaranteed stu-dent loan program forced many people to en said, and prevented others from going to school at all.

There was a lot of anxiety about the early Reagan years, "Steiden said.

Steiden said his time as editor left him very stred" but that it was good preparation for a newspaper career. "Running that newspaper five days a week, and doing school at the same time (was) tough," he said

Editor: Andrew Oppmann Year: 1983-84

Flipping through his bound volumes of old Kernels, it didn't take Andrew Oppmann long to determine the year's top stories. The push for higher academic standards — known as selective admisstandards — known as selective admis-sions — was no neveryoner's mid.

UK was striving to become the flagship university of the state; it began to inch its way forward, sketching out a plan of ac-son.

This was also the year where UK real-ized in order to become a school that could attract top notch students, it had to become more attractive to those top notch students.

groups like the Committee on Academic Excellence. Other news? UK went to the Final Four in the spring of 1984, losing to George-town in the semi-finals in Seattle; student groups, including the Kernel, pushed for legislation to allow 24-hour visitation in residence halls.

registation to allow 2-hour visitation in residence hallow. Oppmann said he took it upon himself to get as much campus news on the front page as possible, putting wire copy on page one only if it was the most important wire story of the day. Oppmann currently is the deputy city editor for The Houston Post.

1 guess my year as Kernel editor really hammered home the importance of covering the community, the said. The Kernel was 1 common link that a lot of the segments on campus' had.

was 'a common link that a lot of the seg-ments on campus' had.

"This was more than just a place for people to breeze in, get some journalism experience and breeze out. This was something important, something that could affect change (and) bring some good to campus."

Editor: John Voskuhl Year: 1984-85

What was on the Kernel's mind during John Voskuhl's term as an editor? An editorial in the last edition of the year best summed the editors' thoughts.

Over the year, the Kernel cherred for a proposal to increase campus safety, booed a proposal to build a faculty club, booed a proposal to build a faculty club, alienated conservatives, alienated liberals, called for student groups to have open meetings and called for the passage of the controversial "sexual orientation" measure.

of the controversial 'sexual orientation' measure.

The Kernel railed against low faculty salaries, high student apathy and asbestos in University buildings. It also kept a watchful eye on the possible merger between UK and the University of Louisville. 'While doing all that, we've probably made a lot of people mad, a lot of people isugh, a lot of people mad, a lot of people beds, 'Veskuhl remembers the Kernel being 'not well received by any-biddy.'

"It really helped me realize how hard it is to do this kind of job well, and how important it is to work hard at it, "Voskuhl asid. 'It taught of a kingis to do this kind or joo wee, was considered to portant it is to work hard at it. Yoskuhl said. It taught me that the value of a vigorous press in a society. During the year, the Kernel broke the story that Bishop Desmond Tutu was coming to campus in the spring to be UK's commencement speaker — a big deal because Tutu recently had won a Nobel Peace Prize.

And association by the Cambard Cambard Service of the Cambard Service of the deal because Tutu recently had won a Nobel Peace Prize.

And especially big because the campus — including the Kernel — tossed around the idea of whether UK should continue divesting in companies that do business with South Africa because of that country's internal strile surrounding apartheid.

Voskhul has spent the last six years as a staff writer at The Courier-Journal of Louisville, Ky. He currently works out of the C-J's Hazard, Ky., bureau.

Editor: Elizabeth Caras Year: 1985-86

Elizabeth Caras holds the distinction of being the only editor of the independent Kernel to win a Pacemaker award from the ACP for the Kentucky Kernel during the 1985-86 year, making the Kernel one of the top four college newspapers in the

of the top four college newspapers in the country.

Caras was happy to win for herself and her colleagues. But she especially was satisfied to see the paper she had labored for get some long overdue recognition. The other papers which won that year were at Michigan State University, Loyola University and the University of Alabama. "We won hat of course was an affirma-"We won hat of course was an affirma-that affected UK on a daily basis," she said.

Caras' year as editor wasn't built care wasn't built built care wasn't bu drive to make the radio station a reality.

Caras is managing editor of the Cincinnati Business Courier, a weekly business magazine. She'll begin work at the Lexington Herald-Leader as a business writer near the end of this month.

Editor: Fran Stewart Year: 1986-87

The search for a successor to Otis A. Singletary as UK president dominated the Kernel's headlines during Fran Stewarts time as editor.

'The most important issue was finding a replacement, 'Stewart said. We took a pretty active and professional role, We tried to keep up with the professional paper who were also covering the issue. I think we did a pretty good job of covering the sustendant angle.'

Althrough UK trustees selected David Roselle, the Kernel editonal board chose to endorse a relatively unknown chancel-for for the community college system named Charles T. Wethington Jr.

The Kernel made the decision to back Wethington, who finished second to Roselle in the presidential race, primarily because Roselle was an unknown quality and because the campus was financially strapped.

ly and because the campus was financially strapped.

In other news, UK was trying to fill its position for vioc chancollor for student affairs. UK also moved the minority attains office into the Patterson Office Towner, which caused a stir among minority students, who thought the move would not serve their best interests.

And Ulysses S. Davis, a worker at UK, dressed up in a ninja outfit and held up the Peterson Service Building, firing shots at random and causing a ster but no injuries — in December. In the same respect, Stewart said the Kernel missed on a few points but did an overall good job.

"It's not only the journalism experience the Kernel gives you — which is substantial." Stewart said. "But it's mainly what you learn about yourself when you start exforing ideas that you've new-rexplored. I think I really grew as a person."

Just like the Emery air freight package, a lot of stories just seemed to pop up during Dan Hasserfs term as editor the Kernell.
When Hassert, currently a staff writer for The Kentucky Post in Covington, Ky., described the most significant events during the year, he used two terms: the expected and the unexpected.
"Obviously the most important (issue) was David Rosello's coming on as presiont," he said. The Kernel followed Roselle's emergence as the successor to Singletary.

Singletary.
"The thing I'll remember most is just

"The thing I'll remember most is just as we thought we were gonna cruise" in the paper's Inal few days. UK Turstee A.B. 'Happy' Chandler used the word rigger' during a committee meeting. A scathing editorial in the Kernel blast-did Chandler's racist comment, prompting the former Kentucky governor to rip a Kernel in half on local television, alleged-ty replying, "This sint required reading." Later in the year, an Emery air freight package sent from then-UK assistant coach Dwane Casey to UK basketball croull China Mills popped open in transit, revealing a videotape — and $1,000 in cash. It prompted a yearlong investigation by the NCAA into the program and much disorder with UK athletes.

Every time there seemed to be a lull.

"Every time there seemed to be a lull, pmething big would happen," Hassert aid. "The Emery package, who could ave predicted that?"

Editor: Jay Blanton Year: 1988-89

ketball program dribbled its way into edi-tor Jay Blanton's term, while the NCAA probe into the program dragged on the

Rex Chapman to the pros and the volun-ranily withdrawal of sophomore Eric Ma-nuel, the Edde Sutton-coached Wildcats went 13-19, the program's first losing season in 62 years.

The Kernel gamered thremendous local and national publicity when it asked in an editorial for Sutton and his staft to resign en masse in wake of impending sanc-tions from the NCAA, they latter obliged.

The time of what's going to be remem-bered 29 years from now, it'll be the UK shaskhoball invessigation," said Blanton, who is currently a staff writer for The Courtier-Lournal's Bluegrass Broau. 'In a lot of people's minds, athletes is still what butters the bread, so to speak.'

What Blanton prefers to remember is more numbing: On the night of Sept 8, UK student Bradley J. Shipman slammed his car into a telephone poll on a Euclid Avenue side street, killing one passer, Lisa Wallen, and critically injuring another student, Michael Swerczek.

Shipman had been drinking and driv-ing.
'In terms of something that was a trag-ing.

"In terms of something that was a trag"In terms of something positive come out of it, it was (important)," said Blanton, also a graduate student in political science. "It awakened people to the dangers of drinking and driving, and in particular underage drinking and driving."

Editor: C.A. Duane Bonifer Year: 1989-90

Vear: 1989-90

Change proved the primary challenge facing CA. Duane Bonifer: As the only full editor returning that fall, Bonifer's term faced difficulty three weeks into the semester when the Kernel switched to MacIntosh computers; this change of the fored more complications with the resignation of the production manager. But of a minor-league basiball manager. But of a minor-league basiball manager. But Bonifer just the rookies to the test pretty quickly.
Roselle, who had garnered national accidant for cleaning up the basketball program, faced problems at home.
The governor did not like him and Sale, possibly fearing a loss of funding during the upcoming General Assembly, chapted for the University of Delaware despite pleas from the Kernel and other student groups for him to stay.
"On one level, we had a lot of Internat Challenges," said Bonifer, who graduated last May and is currently the public rela-tallenges at Lindsey Wilson College in Columbia, Ky. "... Then haltway into the fall semester, a lot of news stories came up, the biggest when president Roselle left UK."

Big news again came out of the Athletics Department — Jerry Claiborne re-

selle left UK*
Big news again came out of the Athletics Department — Jerry Claiborne resigned as football coach and Athletics Director C.M. Newton pulled his second coup by hiring Bill Curry away from the University of Alabama.
"In the spring, we really got rolling, and had some really strong issues that I was really proud of," Bonifer said.

Editor: Tom Spalding Year: 1990-91

Consider it a blessing or a curse, but the major issue of Spalding's year finished on Sept. 18, the day Wethington was selected president. To that point, Spalding and his staff made the most of the issue, uitimately with a front-page editorial calling for a new presidential search. The editorial staff was a thorn in Wethington's side the entire year, demanding more of the young president. The confrontation in the Persian Gulf brought in the other major issue of Spalding's term. Spalding and company held the press run until 1:30 a.m. to put us an eight per primarily out an eight-page war ediston — primarily out an eight-page war oction — primanily staff copy.

The addition of color photography on a daily basis offered one of the most readily noticeable change in the Kernel during Spalding's years.

"I thought it was important with reasoned staff and for the first time the capability to incorporate enhanced graphics, that we could strive for stories that made people think and present them in a visually attractive way," Spalding said.

Spalding, who spent last summer as an intern at The Plain Dealer in Claveland, Chio, currently serves as the Kernefes writing coach and is scheduled to graduate this December.

Editor: Victoria Martin Year: 1991-92

As the fall semester began, the Kernel immediately jumped on possibly the most talked-about but not discussed in-depth issue on campus: funding of the new library.

depth issue on campus: funding of the new library.

And the campus broiled because of the Student Activities Board's printing of racist prices in its datebook.

On the first day of classes, we were faced with a potentially big controversy in the printing of an archaic version of 'My Old Kentucky Home,' "Martin said.

Judge rules on vote controversy

The Hentucky

We're off!

Kernel prints off campu in first 'free' mov

I think I'm going to drop

Ob. the agonies of drop-add. According to associate registrar Ray Cumberledge, the girl above is only one of about 6.000 UK. have to drop-add to enter rise

SG calls change inadequate Dorm open house hours increased

MICHAEL CLEVENGER-Komel Staff After 47 years of publishing in campus basements and backrooms, the Kentucky Kernel took its first tentative steps toward independence when it rolled off the presses Jan. 19, 1972.					and in pre-preparation, the editor and adviser of the Kernel met with Vice President of Student Affairs Robert Zumwinkle to draw up a 12-point plan for the paper's transition to indepen-
Visitation hours this permester. The new rides drawn up by Dean of Students Jack Hall and Vice President for Nuclent At fairs Robert Zamwinkle, permit up to three upen houses, on Ericky, Sotorday and Sunday.	Under the old rules deems were allowed only one open house per work. Hours were limited to a par to 11 pars. Pridder, 1 par to 11 pars. Startido and 1 pars to 8 pars. Startido and 1 pars to 8 pars. Startido and 1 pars. Descrip- As with the previous rules, the open housest in warring by Wed newbox and official the persussion would be an approximate. These words and official the persussion would be a supervision.	as a weak interim poposal. "He said the liberalization was slight, and was in attempt to get around student desired."  The montes of the problem is that the even policy agreement has the recommendation of $6 and the recodence hall general most to take the monthly of $6 and the residence hall general most the said of $6 and the residence hall generalized that the said of $6 and	request forms: I well? I live open visitative from 1.9° is to part. Streetly spewark thursday 4pen to a per 27° is a monthly of an incomplete and none to it is a well-off or the proposal, understand the standard set of visitative visitative visitative and the visitative visi	acceptant the problems of open standing like also defended the endividual points of the current opints.  Think is been clear from the standing term of the current opints opints of the current opints of the current opints opints of the current opints	tor Tom Bowden demanded at the trus- trees' meeting in March that they either provide funding for his paper commen- surate with the Kernel's annual $45,000 annual $45,000

Growing pains led to gains in technology

The Kentucky Kernel you hold in your hands today — while embodying the same spirit of student journalism — is vastly different than the first independent issue that rolled off the presses nearly two decades ago. The energy and the effort needed to produce a fresh newspaper each day hasn't changed, but the technology driving the ink and pages differs substantially. A few facts and figures:

- Size. The Kernel moved from an afternoon to morning circulation newspaper in January 1972. Copies arrived on campus at 9 a.m. and were in centrally-located distribution boxes by 10 a.m., with a circulation of roughly 10,000. Today, more than 17,000 copies are distributed at various drop sites throughout campus and parts of downtown Lexington, making it the fourth-largest morning daily newspaper in the state.

· Location. The Kernel has had a number of homes in the Enoch J. Grehan Jo downtown Lexington, making it the fourth-largest morning daily newspaper in the state.

*Location. The Kernel has had a number of homes in the Enoch J. Grehan Journalism Building, sits centration in 1950. Currently, the Kernel's home is in the basement of the Journalism Building, its editorial office located in room 035.

*Tachnology. In December 1971, Kernel edotr. Wike Wines and adviser Nancy Green built paste-up tables, planned the operation and statred setting goals: a somewhat primitible, but necessary, task.

The ads were produced in the newsroom, the paste-up was done in a hall, the machines were in the business office and when the bookkeeper left each day staffers pushed back a carpet and moved the machines out.

Type was set on a blind keyboard and copy run from tapes, then proofed and corrected and pasted in. Two typesetters were hired to operate the machines, and preparation of each day's Kernel would begin the alternoon before publication day, when typesetters would begin setting the next day's stories.

The operation continued until 8 a m. the day of publication, when couriers pick up a drummy' issue of the paper and took it to Cynthiana Democrat offices for printing. Turnel was setting the machines, and preparation of the paper and took it to Cynthiana Democrat offices for printing. The Kernel switched, weethally, to word processors in the early 1980, using has tack to december the paper and took it to Cynthiana Democrat offices for printing. The Kernel switched, weethally, to word processors in the early 1980, using has tacked to the paper and took it to Cynthiana Democrat offices for printing. The Kernel switched weethall to the paper and took it to Cynthiana Democrat offices for printing. The Kernel switched was the care of it.

In summer 1989, the Kernel began using several MacIntoshes, completely switching to Mac in the fall of 1989. Instead of having to format and print out each story individually, then using a was machine to paste to, the arrival of desk-top publishing allowed for faster mo

Mike Agin is UK's student media adviser. Tom Spalding is the Kentucky Kernel writ

Kernel's radical bent of the 1970s led to break from UK, independence

At the beginning of the 1970s, the adical bent of the Kernel obviously foreast the coming of a break with the Uni-

At the beginning of the 1970s, the radical bent of the Kernel obviously forecast the coming of a break with the University.

On other campuses across the country, similar situations were developing as other student publications struck out on their own, led by the Columbia University Daily Spectator.

That left University administrations with one opton — to cut off funds completely — which, although perhaps of dubicus legality, rarely was questioned. As for UK, the Board of Trustees, many of whom were appointees of conservative Gov. Louis B. Nunn, was earlier to see an end to the Kernel chair of the conservative Gov. Louis B. Nunn, was earlier to see an end to the Kernel chair of the conservative Gov. Louis B. Thus the conservative Gov. The student body also expressed dissatisfaction with the Kernel, charging in frequent letters to the editor that the Kernel concentrated far too much of its coverage on the pronunciations of the Students for a Democratic Society and other radical groups, neglecting the University scene.

students for a Democratic Society and other radical groups, neglecting the University scene. It was, in fact, the actions of a student group that brought the situation to a head. In November 1970, the Student Coalition, a conservative group, began intermittently publishing an alternative newspaper called the Wildcat in an attempt to provide what it claimed to be better coverage of the campus. As 1971-73 Kernel editor Mike Wines recalled at the end of his tenure, the Wildcat was the "spark to soft the Trustees' time bomb." With the beaching of Trustees A.B. "Happy" Chandler, a former governor, and Josse Alverson, who provided the Wildcats' sprinting facilities, Wildcat editor Tom Bowden demanded at the trustees' meeting in March that they either provide funden demanded at the trustees' meeting in March that they either provide funden demanded at the trustees' meeting in March that they either provide funden demanded at the trustees' meeting in March that they either provide funding for his paper commensurate with the Kernel's annual $45,000. annual subsidiry or cut off the funding completely.

dence.

The day before the trustees' meeting, however, the editor and adviser met with President Otis A. Singletary to determine what the University would accept. Most of all, Singletary adamantly coposed the three-year phase-down clause, instead substituting a one-year $20,000 cutoff subsidy.

Singletary said last week that certain members of the trustness wanted the Kernel to shall down completely. But he said the healt of throw the Kernel to the shall down completely. But he said the healt of throw the Kernel to shall cheen retired his mind. He said he believed independence would ultimately make the Kernel all a test trace "ever entered his mind. He said he believed independence would ultimately make the Kernel al a test reversely make the Kernel at a test reversely the plant of the said he believed independence would ultimately make the Kernel a better newspaper.

The trustees approved the plan April 3, voting to end University support for the Kernel July 1, 1972, with a $20,000 subsidy in printing credits to be used before the end of the year.

Chandler, dissastisfied that action hand to been more severe, was hard to comment, "this is only manslaughter—lawated murder."

To many, including members of the Kernel staff, the future of the paper appeared grim. Summer publication of the newspaper cased for the first time in years, and the student publications adviser, perhaps sensing the difficulties to come, departed for another job in Texas. The Kernel was flat broke and hopelessly disorganized. In order to operate during the coming year, the organization would need at least $80,000. Because adventising had been handled by relatively in importance of the state that the produced in the kernel sould the produced in the Kernel State and the state that action had not been more severe, was and he state that a comment of the state that action had not been more severe, was and the state that a comment of the state that the state t ory, and preparations had to be inleaded silf-quickly. The first step was to hire a full-time ad-vertising manager to train a student sales staff and manage the business end of the operation in a professional manner.

Also, faced with the question of how and where the paper would be produced, the Kernel purchased and leased with the corporation's name as collateral the journalism. "You gotta remember, everybody in the world said we couldn't do it," Green said. 'Nobody believed we could pull it off or survive past one semuster without university funds." More importantly, as students, they were receiving perhaps the most realistic training they could in the rigors of journalism.

ton a student sales ton a grades to the a professional manner.

ad with the question of how the difference of the was apparent that a minor miracle had occurred on the work of the was apparent.

At the end of the year, it was apparent that a minor miracle had occurred on the was apparent.

Back before the days of desk-top publishing, type was set on a blind keyboard and copy run from tapes, then proofed and corrected and pasted-in. This bulky machine was called a Linotype and was used for many years (top left). Brian Jent, design editor for the Kernel this year, lays out a page on a MacIntosh computer. The Kernel switched completely to MacIntosh computers in 1989 (top right). Above, a look at the way presses used to operate.

THEN

Students protest the Vietnam War in downtown Lexington during the early 1970s. Times – and student newspapers – were a lot different dur-ing that period, especially for the Kentucky Kernel, which went independent in 1971.

By Michael Wines

Has it really been 20 years? It doesn't seem that long ago.

1971 was a bridge of sorts between the anguish of Vietnam and the angst of Watergate. Nixon sponsored China's membership in the United Na-tions. Parts of the Pentagon Papers were published, suppressed by court or-der and published again.

Rep. Pete McCloskey of California challenged Richard Nixon for the Re-publican presidential nomination. Sen. Edmund Muskie, the foregone con-clusion to head the Democratic ticket, ruled out selecting a black for his vice president.

president.

Not until a year later would a group of White House bagmen be nabbed inside Democratic Party headquarters.

The year before was an interesting one. In May of 1970, National Guardsmen shot dead four students at Kent State University, sparking a violent — and for some reason, final — spasm of rage in the student antiwar movement.

At the University of Kentucky, the movement staged a noisy peaceful nighttime march on the ROTC armory, a hulking Richardsonian sandstone-and-brick building, ringed by Guardsmen itself, not far from the Student Cen-ter. Many editors of the Kernel, including myself, were there — as observ-ers, reporters or participants.

ers, reporters or participants.

The single word 'fire' suddenly swept through the crowd, and protestors, journalists and observers alike broke into a run. There was a fire, but not at the ROTC building. It was the Guignol Theatre, a vacant wooden tinderbox, a few hundred yards away which had once served as an annex to an ROTC group, and which someone had set ablaze with a single, curiously effective fireborn.

The bombing of the ROTC annex, as it came to be known, climaxed a year in which the University's deeply conservative board of trustees finally became fed up with its ill-dressed, thoroughly disrespectful student body and decided to do something about it.

Their target was the student newspaper, an irreverent, quirky, not entirely irresponsible and only moderately leftist rag. Among its offenses were the banner-headlined exposures of Government surveillance of campus dissidents and — even worse — an article, not banner headlined, that called the wife of the president of a neighboring university a "juicy little piece." The newspaper later apploigated for the remark with a barely concealed snicker. It was not a bad paper, thoroughly in step with the times, and a fun place to work. The majority of the trustees despised it, and they determined to crush it by removing its state financing.

to rush it by removing its state financing. In advertently, they liberated it. They tossed an advertising cash cow and the most prominent voice on campus into the hands of a private company ostensibly controlled by 50- and 60-year-old lawyers, professors, and financiers, but really run by 20-year-old students.

Among them, I was a nail — politically agnostic, utterly ignorant of the world east of Fort Knox and west of Lexington, and unprepared by experience or social nature to manage an unruly staff of reporters.

But I knew what a news story was, and so did many others on that exceptional staff, some of whom have gone on to remarkable careers in this and other professions. We turned out a solid if stodgy product, written on mostly broken typewriters and keypunched into a bargain-basement phototypesetter dubbed Bess, after the newspaper's cranky 60-year-old bookkeeper. It was hellish and incredibly satisfying work.

There are not a great many interesting stories to tell about those first years. The most important one that comes to mind involves a story that we did not break, but which was handed the staff in 1972 by a free-lance — a bombshell of an article that accused the staff of the University football squad of rigging the grades of the players.

For a still-struggling newspaper, in a town dominated by advertisers and either people who planed I flusivations.

or rigging the grades of the players.

For a still-truggling newspaper, in a town dominated by advertisers and other people who placed University of Kentucky sports above cleanliness and only slightly below godiness, it was a diesy story tor un. If wrong, it carried potential libel problems that could bankrupt the enterprise in its infancy. Still, it was probably the hottest copy we had ever encountered. We checked it out, believed it to be generally accurate, and began debating whether to contrib.

That night, a senior University official — a former journalist of some sta

ure — called me. "You run that story," he told his 20-year-old target, "and I will personally ensure that you never get a job on any newspaper or televi-sion station in this state or maybe out of it."

It was a delicious feeling. Here was confirmation that the paper was taken more seriously than we ourselves believed, and more than a hint that the story was also quite true. We printed the sucker, and it caused quite a ruck-us, although not as much as it should have.

A couple of days later, the official called back. "That," he said, "was a hell of a story you guys ran."

Student newspapers are terrific proving grounds for journalists — far bet ter than journalism schools. Those who aspire to report for a living should in my mind, stuff their heads with economics, math and history rather than communications theory or feature writing.

Classrooms can't teach what is important: the pain of being beaten on a breaking story; the indignity and embarrassment of printing a baldy errone-ous statement; or writing a poorly reasoned editorial and being publicly— and justifiably—flayed because of it. Or the pleasure of exposing an injus-tice, or simply telling the world something it does not know, and should.

use, or simply feeling the world something it does not know, and should. Which brings me back to 1970 and the Guignoi Theastre fischembing, it was the biggest story of the year on campus, and two decades later, it remains one of the biggest mysteries of my own reporting career. Who bombed the ROTC annex? Why was an innocent student so quickly arrests and charged? Was the actual perpertator an antiwar protestor? A firebug who simply took advantage of the circumstances to get his kicks? A mental case?

Or was it something more sinister - a well-planned effort to dis was isomisming more sinister — a weil-planned entor to oiscredit the student protest movement by burning down a building that, it turned out, was to be razed anyway? The truth is out there, somewhere. The Kernel could deliver a fine 20th anniversary present to its readers, and a fitting demon-stration of the purpose of journalism, if it employed the Federal and state open-records laws and its best reporters to find out.

Michael Wines, a reporter in the Washington bureau of The New York nes, was the independent Kentucky Kernel's first editor from 1971-73.

AF U.S. attacks Iraq

Kentucky Kernel

Stunned student body gathers to hear news

K officials

Kuwaiti student says attack welcome

the fire takes to the part of the takes of t One discounty comments of section of the section of section and se

NOW

By Gregory A. Hall

Some of the more memorable experiences of a students lirst year on the UK college campus are the first 100-person lecture class and mass advising, where a few faculty are expected to direct hundreds of students in a couple of hours. While some freshmen may fall through the cracks because the University is too big and impersonal, it is as with anything: Those who apply themselves make it. The University is smaller for those who are involved. Unfortunately, fewer and fewer people are involved each year. College campuses are not idyllic Utopias, and the apathy that plagues to day's American society — witness the ballot box — is evident in the youth of tomorrow.

ballot box — is evident in the youth of tomorrow.

Twenty years ago, UK students went to school with war hanging in the air, with the deaths of kennedy, King and several Kent State students on their minds.
Frotest was a daily fact of life.

Today, UK students have trouble remembering the last Democratic president. Most current freshmen were rygear-olds when Richard Nison resigned the presidency. They know John Kenneyear-olds when Richard Nison resigned the presidency. They know John Kennedwar is a Bruce Springsteen tune.

The Reagan generation has arrived on campus.

Students seem satisfied with their goverment. Last year, a presidential search many claimed was a political production of the governor caused title protest from students outside of the Kentucky Kernel and the Student Government Associastudents usuised of the Kentucky Kernel and the Student Government Association.

The last sight of rallying on the campus was two falls ago when more than 400 students stood outside the Administration Bullding naively hoping to convince their president, Dawid Hoselle—

the one after Coss A Singletary and before Charles Wethington — from leaving, I cidnit work.

One score years ago protests were common and rowdy. The recent Persian Gulf War only netted protests from some faculty and an even smaller number of students.

Instead of protesting, the majority of students were glued to Cable News Network. That's another difference—there's cable television and air conditioning in most dorms.

Technology dominates today's society—even the classroom. The campus is totally computerized Students can talk be accult by using electronic computer mail, although the conventional method is still the nerm.

This computer generation also is statistically smarter than their preducessors.

ACT and SAT scores have been up at the University. In 1982 UK introduced as selective admissions policy. And students are older, as the five-year plan is now the norm. Ut is still not Mehigian on North Carolina, nor is it strictly the party school we heard about growing up.

While technologically the school has progressed, many problems of the first year are here today.

The most active part of the campus is the greek community. This 20 percent minority is the controlling faction of student activities and elections.

Their activeness is commendable, However, the system is known for are pariets and alcohol. One fraternity was kicked oft campus last fall for alcohol-related hazing. Others are placed on par-y probasion by the Interfraternity was kicked oft campus last fall for alcohol-related hazing. Others are placed on par-y probasion by the Interfraternity council for alcohol-related hazing.

To be fair, the rest of the campus is plagued just as much by this societal problem. However, the greeks hold themselves as model students and discrete when that is not necessarily the case. The greek system's alcohol policy skirs the philosophy benind the University policy preventing alcohol on the campus. Like the greeks in general, the campus tends to be more conservative than it was 20 years ago.

Despite all the technological advances, the societal problems of the '70s are the problems of the '90s. Just as the problem of race was here vesterday and is here to-problems of the '90s. Just as the problem of raco was here yesterday and is here to-day, it, too, will be here tomorrow.

A recent publication of the original lyrics to "My Old Kentucky Home" caused the campus to factionalize. Though tempers have settled, the campus is self-segregated. The black fraternities do not associate with the white fraternities. The number of blacks in sororides is disturbinally low.

ingly low.

The Old South mentality is still present to the point that one fraternity prides itself to the point that one naturally on it.

The everyday scene is quiet, placing students in the diaserooms.

Many of today's students are yuppies. Duckheads, Polos and bucs are common. Surprisingly though, sideburs and bell bottoms have started to make a comeback and ties are wider.

Next thing you know, the rotten students will be marching on the Administration Building.

Thomas and Hill to testify in today's hearing

WASHINGTON — Two witnesses are expected to testify that Anita Hill confided allegations of sexual harassment when the Senate Judiciary Committee opens new hearings on the Supreme Court nomination of Clarence Thomas, sources familiar with the allegations said yesterday.

Both Thomas and Hill, now a University of Oklahoma law profes-sor, will testify before the committhe when it meets today and possi-bly through the weekend to assess the allegations that forced a week's delay in the Senate confirmation vote.

vote.

Two other witnesses who sources said would support Hill were also expected to testify, according to the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

One is a former Yale Law School

Hoerchner, an One is a former Yale Law School classmate Susan J. Hoerchner, an administrative law judge for the California Workers Compensation Appeals Board, sources said. The other is Joel Paul, an American University law professor who has said that Hill told him during a job interview that she had been sexual-like harsseed by an unpaned super.

ment car. His destination was unknown.

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) who has been designated one of the Democrats to question Thomas during the new hearings, said today "it is absolutely essential that we find out, if we possibly can" who is telling the truth.

"I intend to ask as tough and probing questions of both that I can," Leahy said on CBS "This Morning." He said he will endeavor to be fair to both, but said he is concerned that a kind of "kill the messenger attitude" is building up toward Hill.

"I feel sad for both of them bemard Hill.

"I feel sad for both of them because there's no way either of them are going to come out of this with either of them being totally found to be right," Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (R-Ulah) said during an appearance with Leahy, "Both will carry the scars of this for the rest of their lives."

EEOC, which Thomas chaired for eight years.

Hill arrived in Washington on Wednesday night to prepare for her appearance. Thomas, who met with President Bush at the White House on Wednesday, left his home this morning in a chauffeured government car. His destination was unknown.

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) who has been designated one of the Democrats to question Thomas during the new hearings, said today "it Thomas on Tuesday.

time for the full scenare to vote on Thomas on Tuesday. Bush renewed his support for Thomas when the two met at the White House on Wednesday. Bush today rebuffed reporters' attempts to question him about the Thomas matter, saying he would take no questions.

former assistant to Thomas a decade ago who has alleged that after spurning his requests for dates, Thomas harassed her with sexually explicit descriptions of X-rated movies.

"The purpose of this is simple and straightforward," Biden said. "It's to focus on the issue of whether or not the allegations Ms. Hill has made are true, what extent they are true if true, and whether or not there are any other instances that ring of this charge."

Both Thomas and Hill will testify in the hearings, which could run into the weekend.
Hill arrived at Washington Na-

Mine House on Wednesday, Bush today rebuffed reporters' attempts to question him about the Thomas matter, saying he would take no questions.

"I told him I'm staying right in there with him," Bush said after Wednesday's meeting, which came a day after the administration was forced to retreat from a Senate vote because of uproar over the harassment allegations.

With the Senate in recess until to day, Senate Judiciary Chairman Joseph Biden (D-Del.) met with committee Democrats to map plans for the new hearings, which could run Airport late Wednesday night. She brushed off questions reporters, was escorted through the terminal by a phalanx of police and then was whisked way in a waiting car.

Biden said at least two other witnesses would be called. He declined to identify them or discuss the order of the new hearings, which could run Airport late Wednesday veal explain a phalanx of police and then was whisked away in a waiting car.

Biden said at least two other witnesses would be called. He declined to identify them or discuss the order of the new hearings, which could run him well at the well arrived at Washington National Airport late Wednesday veal explain a phalanx of police and then was whisked away in a waiting car.

Biden said at least two other witnesses would be called. He declined to identify them or discuss the order of the may protential corroboration witnesses would be allowed to witnesses well de alled the declined to identify them or discuss the order of the many potential corroboration witnesses would be allowed to witnesses well de alled the declined to identify them or discuss the order of the way in a waiting car.

a sexual harassment case, the chairman said.

A spokesman for Republicans on the Judiciary Committee said Hill can expect tough, prosecutorial questioning about her allegations.

"We don't want to attack her credibility, we want to attack her story," said Stan Cannon, a spokesman for Sen. Alan Simpson (R-Wyo). "Were going to have to be very, "we're going to have to be very, "we're going to have to be very, "where some sery personal questions." It think the gloves are off on both sides," he said.

Hopes for salvaging the conservative federal appeals court judge's nomination could be wrecked if anyone else steps forward with credible new allegations of sexual harassment by him, Cannon acknowledged.

Biden, who a day earlier had mentioned that new assertions had been made about Thomas, told re-porters late Wednesday they relate only to Hill's allegations and do not involve any other incident. Biden, who a day earlier had mentioned that new assertions had

"Thus far to the best of my

The Senate has scheduled a vote The Senate has scheduled a vote on the confirmation for Tuesday evening. In his first public appearance since the disclosures that deer ailed his confirmation, Thomas arrived at the White House with his wife Wednesday afternoon. He met with the president for 10 minutes, leaving the Oval Office at one point for a walk around the grounds.

Thomas said "Yup" when asked if he was going to stick with the confirmation process. Asked wheth-er he would be able to refute Hill's accusations, Thomas said only, "Just testify, thanks."

Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell of Maine, mean-while, launched a renewed defense of the Senate's handling of the issue and of the Judiciary Committee, which has faced criticism that gave short-shrift to the allegations until forced to scrutinize them by public disclosure

Mitchell said the Senate's hands were tied because Hill had initially insisted on keeping her allegations confidential.

Panel proposes changes to Kentucky laws

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A special panel has recommended expanding Kentucky's open records and open meetings laws.

The panel's recommendation will be prefiled with the 1992 General Assembly, Kentucky Press Asociation attorney Jon Fleischaker said vesterday. Under language approved by the Task Force on Open Meetings and Open Records, any "part of an entity funded by state or local authority to carry out a government function" would be considered a public aenery.

ered a public agency.

That would mean records of private companies that perform government work would be subject to the Open Records Law

The panel rewrote the meetings law to include a section requiring public bodies to issue agendas for special meetings and limit meetings to the agenda items.

Board members also would be prohibited from meeting privately when less than a quorum is present.

when less than a quorum is present.

The Kentucky Press Association, which supports the revisions, has complained that public business is sometimes carried out informally during such meetings. Under the proposal, these meetings would be businesses.

"I think we're opening up a broad range of things," said Stephen Dooley, commissioner for the Department of Information Systems.

Sen. Walter Baker (R-Glasgow) agreed with Dooley, saying he believed the law would apply to too many businesses. Baker also said it may be difficult for businesses to separate public and private records.

Other 1sek force members said separate public and private records.

Other task force members said they believed the public should be able to evaluate the performance or private businesses since an increasing number of them provide govern-ment services, such as privately op-crated prisons and waste removal.

The panel still has two issues to The panel still has two issues to confront involving records—whether university faculty members are considered "state employees," and therefore entitled to see their entire personnel files; and exactly which records will be exempted.

Some professors have com-plained to the task force that they during such meetings. Under the proposal, these meetings would be subject to the Open Meetings Lauw, During Wednesday's meeting, two panel members questioned whether the revised records law goes too far with regard to private weight of the provide government services, such as privately operated prisons and waste removal.

A separate law on private prisons only to employees of the executive branch of government.

We offer:

We otter:

- Spacious 2 bedroom apartments starting at $355

- Free Tanning Bed
- Club House
- New Swimming Pool
- New Swimming Pool
- Volleyball Court
- Stop by and see our newly rennovated apartments
- 231.8117

231-8112 1346 Village Drive

SGA defeats bill proposed by Chris Bush

Editor's note: Because Wednes-day night's Student Government As-sociation Senate meeting was still in progress at press time, the sen-ate's actions were not reported completely in yesterday's Kentucky Kernel.

A resolution calling for the Ken-tucky Kernel Editorial Board and its editors to be elected by students was failed unanimously Wednesday night by the senate. Keith Sparks, SGA vice presi-dent, pointed out that the student resolutions proposed by Chris Bush and David Overbey can "call for ac-tion to be taken."

However, he told Bush and Overbey that in the resolution they are only "calling for, not making that action."

Sparks said SGA has "no other power than that," in matters such as calling for the election of Kernel editors, since the Kentucky Kernel has been independent of the Univer has been independent of the Gilver-sity since 1971.

A bill proposed by College of Pharmacy Senator Jim Arnett ask-ing SGA to contribute up to $1,000 to help fund "Pharmacy Hotline," a program to raise awareness of phar-macists in the health care field, failed. The program is scheduled to be aired tomorrow on WKYT-TV.

The program already has ob-ined contributions totaling

Last week, SGA also passed a bill sponsored by Kim Goodwin and Laura Rasnick requesting $300 for the Freshman Representative

South Pacific

Haircuts

(including shampoo)
Men $10.00
Women $12.00
Perm Sale $35.00
(long hair & specialty wraps, extra)
We have Paul Mitchell products

20% off Any Purchase of Duckhead Slacks With This Coupon

Council. The money will be used to rent Woodman of the World Camp located in Lexington for an overnight retreat.

"The retreat will teach them how senators will go on the retreat.

AUTHENTIC INDIAN VEGETARIAN CUISINE

 Prepared by Indian Emporium
 Seturde $6.50 PER MEAL ALL YOU CAN EAT

Carryout or Dine In

includes: Potatoe & Roll
Plus FREE Sundae Bar

When you purchase Ponderosa's All-You-Can-Eat Grand Buffet" at regular price!

Southland Drive

PONDEROSA

Russell

HEY WILDCATS!

LOOK WHO'S GOT THE BEST DEAL ON CAMPUS!

STUDENT SPECIAL

DELIVERED MEDIUM 1 TOP & 1 CAN OF COKE

AVAILABLE NO COUPON REQUIRED * LIMITED TIME OFFER

CALL US!

269-3030 1641 NICHOLASVILLE 801-805 EUCLID AVE

PART TIME JOBS AVAILABLE

(across from Rupp)

Large selection of slacks in assorted colors

9 - 8 Mon - Fri

100% cotton regular or pleated

Kentucky Kernel

Established in 1894 adependent since 1971

oria Martin, Editor in Chief N. Alan Cornett, Editorial Editor Jerry Voigt, Editorial Cartoonis Dale Greer, Managing Editor Gregory A. Hall, Associate Edito ela Jones, News Ed Brian Jent, Design Editor

Kernel anniversary a time to sit back and smell the roses

"It is easy to forget when an operation runs fairly well and finances are stable that there were years of exceedingly long hours; little help and support, no money to start the corporation; no cash flow of any five years; and sheer determination of a small number to assure its survival."

Nancy Green, the independent Kentucky Kernel's first adviser, wrote those words about this time 10 years ago. She was talking about the same newspaper you now hold in your hands, the Kennucky Kernel.

tucky Kernel.

And her words are as true in 1991 as they were in 1981.

This weekend the Kernel is celebrating its 20th anniversary as the independent student newspaper of the University of Kentucky. Infancy wasn't easy (we had angry parents); adolescence had its share of turmoil; and adulthood ain't no picnic, either. Not when you're regions a measurement of the form. staring a recession in the face staring a recession in the face. But, hey, doesn't everyone celebrate birthdays? We are, after all, a statistical society. The 200th this. The 100th that. Allow us to digress a little bit, because this celebration is a special one. The Kernel, after all, is the only college newspaper thrust into independence in the early 1970s that really made it from scratch. The others — like the Florida Independent Alligator — already had all of the things the Kernel had to create, like bookkeeping and advertising denarments. tising departments tising departments.

As Green wrote, the Kernel had nothing at the beginning, and now it is a viable corporation as modern as any small commercial newspaper its size in the nation. The Kernel, in fact, is the fourth-largest morning daily in the state and the only college paper in Kentucky that publishes five days a week.

But then, those are only numbers. Numbers can't reflect — or do justice to — the hundreds of students who missed classes to cover stories. Or who stayed awake into the wee hours of the morning, staring belary-eyed at computer screens.

The legacy of that first staff back in 1971 and subsequent staffs is apparent in the pages of the Kernel today. Our hard work is a result of their hard work.

Our hope is that the special pullout section in today's Kernel will be a testament to that work. We're welcoming back to Lexington and to UK our distinguished alumni — to whom we affectionately refer as "Kernelites."

We salute their perseverance and for sticking with it when seem-ngly everyone was betting against them. Thank you. Your effort

Calling all students:

The Kentucky Kernel is looking for a few good people to continue the tradition that has kept UK's independent student daily on the stands for 20 years.

The Kernel needs people to write, take pictures, edit copy, lay out pages, work on design,

For anyone interested in losing countless hours of sleep — while gaining invaluable exerience — the Kernel holds weekly meetings on Mondays at 3 p.m. in 035 Enoch J. Grehan Journalism Build-

Letters Policy

Readers are encouraged to submit letters and guest opinions to the Viewpoint Page in person or by mail.

Writers should address their comments to "Letters to the Editor"; Kentucky Kernel; 035 Enoch J. Grehan Journalism Building; UK; Lexington, Ky. 40506-0042.

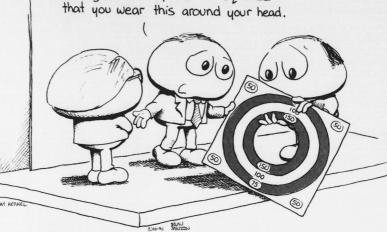

Letters should be 350 words or less, while guest opinions should be 800 words or less. We prefer all material to be type-written and double-spaced, but others are welcome if they

Writers must include their name, address, telephone number and major classification or connection with UK on all submitted material.

Frequent contributors may be limited so that we may publish a wide range of opinions. We reserve the right to edit all material.

Authors who want their opinions returned should include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Mr. Jones, for the next debate Congressman Hopkins has requested

Letters

Kernel cartoon tasteless

To the editor:

In regards to Kenn Minter's car-toon of my late grandfather A.B. "Happy" Chandler (Oct. 9) and the accompanying column by Dave

Ash:
Every political figure of Gov.
Chandler's stature understands that ridicule and cruelty go with the territory. Of course, snickering at the pain of a family who just lost someone very dear is kind of a new record for tastelessness, but that's just the rough-and-umble world of college journalism. I guess.

just the rough-and-tumble world of college journalism, I guess. In life, Chandler would not have thought twice about it, since he was convinced that the Kentucky Kernel was run by a bunch of liberal rable-rousers. How wrong he was!! We all know that the Kernel of today gives regular space to neo-fascist A. Whitney Brown imitators, self-styled fundamentalist kooks, homeless-bashers, critics of the poor sneering "get a life," sexist beer-can-cating rab-rah types, etc. That is, when there is any space left after the Kernel runs its normal glut of starry-eyed hero-worshipping sports articles from the priests of the football and basketball cults.

Ash seems to be trying to imply spots attects in the prices to the football and baskerball cults. Ash seems to be trying to imply the Board of Trustees is somehow deaf to some unnamed student activism, or that the Board is stifling free speech. Bull---. If there were no counce of solidarity among students in general, and if they had any real interest in re-examining the foundations of their own education, no mere Board could shut them up. I saw the proof back in the times of (former Student Government Association presidents) Scott Wendelsdorf and Steve Bright.

But today's Kernel prefers the no-ciation presidents) Scott Wendelsdorf and Steve Bright.

But today's Kernel prefers the nowin, no-lose position of the sniper.
It's obvious the Kernel has as much to do with generating concern for education and student activism as fish have to do with bicycles. As for your vaunted independence, which dates back to the struggles of the Bright era, for all the constructive use you make of it, it's worth what you charge for your rag, and just try raising the price to one penny and see who ponies up. But don't worry, we will try our darndest to forgive you all for this cheap, cheap shot.
After all, considering the shocking poverty of ideas evidenced in the Kernel every day, we know it's all you can afford.

Dr. Jeff Lewis M.A. (philosophy) UK, 1983 Oct. 10, 1991

Cornett wrong about requirements

Perhaps Murphy said it best:
"Never argue with a fool: people might not know the difference."
In spite of this sound advice, I feel compelled to dispute a number of points Alan Cornett awkwardly argues in his Oct. 7 column, "University Studies Program inadequate."

stand to be improved, I find Cor-nett's senseless bashing of several Sociology and Agriculture courses completely unfounded. First, Cor-nett attempts to denigrate by calibre fem "politically correct." This shallow attempt to use the term po-litically correct as a derogatory ad-jective is mere name-calling, and, as such, it fails miserably as an effort to criticize these courses.

o criticize these courses.

Second, I wonder if Cornett has even taken any of these classes he so quickly dismisses as "useless." Perhaps if he were more open-minded, he wouldn't be so inclined to express his ignorantly ethnocentric opinions.

Cornett continues his critique by comparing UK with the University of Dallas, a school about white Cornett knows next to nothing. This comparison is, in fact, ludicrous, as UK is a university of some 24,000 students and 1,800 faculty, while the University of Dallas weighs in students and 1,800 faculty, while the University of Dallas weighs in with only 2,800 students and 120 faculty members.

Moreover, the University of Dallas, founded in 1956, lacks any sort of historical tradition.

Realizing this insurmountable difference in the nature of these two institutions, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching lists UK as a national university. The University of Dallas, meanthle, is considered a national liberal arts school.

Thus, it is no surprise that the al arts school.

Thus, it is no surprise that the University of Dallas maintains a more coherent curriculum. After all, the University of Dallas is not a major university with separate colleges of Architecture, Engineering, Agriculture, et al. Rather, it is a relatively small school of the likes of Transulvania University. sylvania University

Nevertheless, Cornett attempts to further strengthen his soph further strengthen his sophisticate argument by comparing the motto of the University of Dallas with that of UK ... as if the motto were an accurate indication of the true quality of the program being advertised. (I certainly hope that Cornett doesn't cast his vote in this year's election based solely on the mottos and platitudinous slovans of the candidates.)

based solely on the mottos and plai-tudinous slogans of the candidates.)
What if, for instance, we changed our motto to a more impressive-sounding phrase, like "A Tradition of Ideas" or "An Idea of Value" or whatever? Would our program be any better because of it? I think not. Cornett, it seems to me, can't distin-guish trite phrases from true mean-ings.

guish trite phrases from true meanings.

So if we are going to scrutinize our USP, we should do so in a more sensible manner. How well does our uspective meaner. How well does our program compare with programs at similar universities across the country? How can we improve the quality of the program and not merely the empty slogans that go along with it? How can we be open to new courses whose material initially may seem foreign to us?

Although this by no means indicates that improvements aren't necessary in our program, I think that we will find some rather positive answers to the above questions.

Our USP, in fact, has been cited in numerous guidebooks as a strength of Lik and one of many

Our USP, in fact, has been encounted in numerous guidebooks as a strength of UK and one of many reasons why UK is a "Tradition of Value." And, by the way Cornett, UK recently was ranked in the second quartile of U.S. News and World Report's annual survey of national universities, while your famed University of Dallas landed in the third quartile of national liberal arts schools.

eral arts schools.

If you want an overblown and overpriced (conservative) liberal arts education, Cornett, you can find it at numerous schools across the country. But until you get an informed opinion about such matters, please refrain from presenting your poor argumentation. With your smug attitude, then, you'll never be heard from again.

S.T. Hill Electrical engineering senior Oct. 8, 1991

Marijuana poses health risks

To the editor:

In response to the Oct. 9 article on hemp, as Substance Abuse Prevention coordinator, I feel I must make a factual clarification.

It is true marijuana and cannabis do seem to offer cancer patients relief from anusca and vomiting and have been shown to increase appetite and retard weight loss, both favorable responses in cancer patients. The flip side of these wonderfully useful effects are, unfortunately, less optimistic.

Research shows that marijuana impairs the immune system. This is bad news for cancer patients. Tragically, the very substance that is useful as an anti-nausea agent in cancer chemotherapy carries with it a side effect that weakens the body in fighting off cancers.

se of this, the network of 500 cancers centers that are able to secure marijuana for their patients are reluctant to do so.

are reluctant to do so.

There are other worries medically associated with marijuana: dangers to the lungs and respiratory system, increase in heart rate and decreased blood pressure, which could pose problems in elderly and the very ill, and the psychoactive properties of marijuana. Not all patients desire the high from pot, and to them these effects are unpleasant and unwanteffects are unpleasant and unwant

Synthetic THC was rectassured as a Schedule II drug (which means some medical value is recognized) in 1986. Marijuana not in synthetic form remains a Schedule I drug (a category for drugs with no medicinal value). Self-medication is dangerous with any drug that po

Cheryl Tuttle
UK substance abuse prevention Oct 9, 1991

Top 10 list rude and unprofessional

I am writing in reference to the "Top 10 Secrets of Supreme Count Nominee Clarence Thomas." This has to be the RUDEST display of opinion I have ever seen. It also is very unprofessional. To allow something like this to be published shows a serious lack of judgment on

It he part of all those involved.

I am sure the Kentucky Kernel is just a "stepping stone" for most journalism students. But I hope that just because this juvenile material got published in a school paper, one does not believe that a real paper would ever do the same. I mean, is Dave Ash writing for the Kentucky Kernel or the National Enquirer?

Kernel or the National Enquirer?

I don't care how Ash (or anyone else) feels about Clarence Thomas. If he does not like him, that's fine. I, myself, have yet to decide. But if the only way he can find expression for his negative opinion is through vulgarity and out-right nastiness, then I suggest he keep his comments to himself.

The saying goes, "If you can't say anything nice, don't say anything at all." The Kentucky Kernel itself has recently published this statement in the Classifieds section. Doesn't the Kernel staff take its own advice?

If this is the spirit in which things are done at the Kernel, then I will not be patronizing it any longer.

Pam Brookman Social work junior Oct. 8, 1991

Bush trying to undermine WRFL

At the recent WRFL-FM staff meeting, I was informed that Chris Bush, our favorite campus creep, has some new horse manure that he has recently organized and decided to call "resolutions." Some of these so-called resolutions hide under disso-called resolutions hide under dis-guises of validity, but there is one proposed resolution that is so hei-nously stupid and unnecessary that Bush cannot conceal it with the use of clever packaging. This is the pro-posed idea concerning the director-ship of WRFL and the editorial staff of the Kentucky Kernel After bear. of the Kentucky Kernel. After hear ing his proposals concerning these organizations, I feel that Bush is trying to undermine both with a media blitz of his own.

For those not in tune with the plight of WRFL or the Kernel, let me fill you in on a shocking tidbit of truth. Bush wants the staff of of truth. Bush wants the start of both (i.e., editors, radio program directors, and the like) to be ELECT-ED by the student body. Not to downplay the intelligence of the UK student body, but what is the average Joe Cool college student going to know about selecting the staff of either a radio station or a newspand of the start o per? For the most part, the answer is ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. The ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. The student probably will vote for a name, not a person. The election process will not only hamper the quality of UK organizations; it will turn UK into a monstrous popularity contest. Who said college was different from high school?

terent from high school?

In closing, I would like to restate my disgust for this idiotic resolution and urge anyone who feels the same to make themselves known. It is obvious that Bush wants to turn the UK media into a fascist smoke screen to be run by His Untruly.

Oct. 8, 1991

100 25 2 100

For Sale

'89 KAWASAKI NINJA 250 Black, new tires, 50 mpg+, perfect for campus, $1,800, Call 259-1528.
*EUROPEAN TENOR SAXOPHONE - auto link, reeds, book, case. Beautiful condition. $600 or best offer. Call: (502) 451-5078. 19" Color Television Console: Good condition. $125. Call 255-9479. 1975 VOLKSWAGEN BUS: Go condition. Runs well. $900. 255-1896.

AT&T PC 3600- 640 K RAM, 10 M Hard Floppy, Printer, 3600 EXT Modem, + Vari Software. All- $810. Call 271-9390. Leave

Messago.

BEDSI! Foldable Futon Mattresses. Couch by day, bed by night. 7 inches of cotton offers firm, comfortable support. Chiropractic approved. Custom made locally. Twin, Juli, queen sizes available. Maple couchbed frames and movers too. Free demonstration and delivery. Call Bluegrass Bedding for info. 885-1619.
BIKES: 12-speed Centurian Lemans $250.
10-speed Schwinn LeTour $125. Leave

10-speed Schwinn LeTour $120. Seed to the message 221-5367. Did you forget to buy a KENTUCKIAN YEARBOOK?? It's not too late! Call 257-4005 or stop by Rm. 032 Journalism Bldg 4005 or stop by Rm. 032 Journal Prices vary Limited quantities. FOR SALE: Tan sleep sofa & matching chair. Graduating-must sell. Call $150 or best offer. Graduating- must sell. Call 272-7376 after 5 or leave message. HOMES FOR SALE BY GOVERNMENT AGENCIES. $1.00 (U-repair) or $1,600 (move-in). 1-805-564-6500 Ext. HA6995 for (move-in), 1-805-564-5500 Ext. Pricegram immediate response.

IBM PS2. Mod 30-286, 1 MB, 30 Meg H.D., VGA Color, 3.5 & 5 1/4 Dirw, mouse, soundblaster card, DOS 4.0. $1,600 or best offer. Call evenings. 299-2282.

LEATHER JACKET: Mori S black leather bomber jacket. Medium. $50. Brand new, never and sea 201.

DOMDER JECREL MELDING.

DOMESTIC SERVICE SELVED CARS, JOHN SELVED CARS, JEEPS, 4 X ** UNDER $100.00!! FREE 24-HR. INFORMATION HOTLINE! CALL NOW! (669)271-6808 EXT. UK-10.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER: 512K expanded to 1 meg floppy drive. Microsoft Works and Word. $400. 269-0649.

Make Offer. IBM PC: 640 K Ram, CGA/

drive. Leave message at 253-9419.

MGM DISCOUNT COUPON BOOKS. Only $5.00 for 82 great coupons. Rm 224 Taylor Ed. Bldg.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Minolta 135mm F3.5 fixed - $75. Call 273-8761 leave message.

ROD STEWART TICKETS - 4th row floor or excellent seats on the side. Call Keyin 293-

2975.
SKIS - "VOLKL COMPETITION", Marker
M 48 Bindings, Brand New. Size 195 - $500. Call SUPER SINGLE WATERBED WITH BOOKCASE HEADBOARD. FOR SALE $125.00. CALL 276-2828.

For Rent

ent. Over Two Keys. Call

2 BEDROOM Apartment. Over 1110 ...., 255-3352 or 873-0826. 2 BR APT. Close to Campus. Washer/Dryer,

APARTMENT & HOME LOCATING SERVICE. "Hassle-Free" Hunting, Relax

1 The Moutile 5 Michael appliance 19 Popilar e, and 18 Swin genus 18 Swin genus 18 Swin genus 18 Swin genus 19 Swi

54 Rested 58 A password 61 Spanish rive 62 Abnormal breathing sound 63 Turkish coin 64 Chamber 65 Maladies 66 Cup: Fr. 67 Darns, perhaps

1 Roster
2 Stupid person
3 Mr. —: Peter Lorre role
4 Real estate
5 — breeze
6 Went by cab
7 Goggles at

7 Goggles at 8 Swerve 9 Work: pref

Potato buds Pours Crate weight Empowering Put back Trophy Light boat Passion Receptacle Hold a view Gadabout Bird food

RICHMOND ROAD, SUITE 110. ATTENTION STUDENTS: Availab Internation STUDENTS: Available Immediately 2 BR Basement Level Apt. Very Close to Campus. Stove & Refrigerator furnished. Lease & Deposit $275/mo. plus Hillities. 265-3265 furnished. Lease a Copusal Utilities. 266-9265. BARCLAY EAST - 521 E. Main. 2BR Available. Quiet & Convenient to UK/down Heat & Water Included. $410/mo. Call: 254

5623.

CENTRAL BAPTIST/UK AREA Sunny 1
BR Basement Apt. All Bills Paid. $285/mo. No Pets. 277-3607.

DOWNTOWN - 1 BR. Central air, fireplace.
$335/mo. + utilities. Call 253-2526.

DUPLEX - 2 BR, 1 1/2 Bath, no pets. Lease.

EFFICIENCIES & 1 BR FURNISHED APTS. All utilities paid. No pets. 266-6401 266-8769.

LARGE ALL-ELECTRIC EFFICIENCY
318 Transylvania Park, Unfurnished, Water P

318 Transylvania Park, Unfurnished, Water Paid, Weekends to see, $240 deposit, $240/mo, Lease to May 15, 1992, Call 254-4133. NICE 3 BR, 2 Bath Apt, Central Heat, Off-Street Parking, 818 W. Maxwell St. $725/mo. 255-1787.
SAVE ON 1, 2 & 3 BEDROOM APARTMENTS. FLEXIBLE LEASE
TERMS. 263-5173.

Help Wanted

$10-$400/UP WEEKLY, mailing brochur RUSH self-addressed, stamped envelope: Income, 1660 Lakeside, Suite 301-CDK, Ri 86442.

00 - $300 FOR SELLING 50 FUNNY
DLLEGE T-SHIRTS. Smaller or larger antities available. No financial obligation. 1-quantities evenue.

800-728-2053.
**PART-TIME* work in retail/marketing department of national firm. Evenings/w available. $7.15 to start. Call today for ap available, 57.15 to State Lower Students 29,9460.
AIRLINE NOW SEEKING STUDENTS & GRADS TO FILL MANY ENTRY LEVEL POSITIONS. SALARY RANGE TO 24K WITH TRAVEL BENEFITS! TO APPLY: (303) 441-34E. EXYT. A.

TRAVEL BENEFITS TO SET 255, EXT. 9A.

ARTIST NEEDED - Talented artist or caricaturist for December 21st event. Must work quickly. Sand samples and hourly fee requirements to: BROCKE McDANEL, Telecable, 2544 Palumbo Dr., Lexington, KY requirements to.
Telecable, 2544 Palumbo Dr., Lexington, n.
40509, (606) 268-1123, X267.
ASSEMBLERS: Excellent income to assemble products from your home. Info. (504) 646-1700, Dept. P6415.

Babysitter 2 days/wk. Tues. & Thurs. or Thurs. & Fri., 9 - 5 pm. Must have experience, references, own transportation. Non-smoker.

references, until units 224-3890.

Babysitter with car for two girts. Hours and any evenings. Lisa lexible in late afternoon and early evenings. 231-8780 (day); 269-9143 (evenings). CHILDCARE for 11 month old. My home Monday-Wednesday-Friday 8-3:30. Call 254 3101 after 4:00 p.m.

DOWNTOWN BUSINESS Looking for Partitime Worker in the alternoons (2-5 p.m.) Mon-Fri. Warehouse of Stockroom Experience a plus. Must be dependable. For application stop by Wilson Equipment. 555 W. 4th St., Lexington. 254-6443.

EARN THOUSANDS PER WEEK STUFFING ENVELOPES AT HOME. For free info. send self-addressed-stamped-envelope to: Dept. K-600, P.O. Box 4282, Lexington, KY 40544.

Energetic, active person needed to work with elementary children after school. 3-6, M-F. Call 273-3292

TODAY'S

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

GB6995 for immediate response.
FULLTIME AND PART-TIME SALES POSITIONS AVAILABLE FOR FAYETTE
MALL AND DOWNTOWN STORE. hours. Please apply in person: Schuhmann's Click Clinic - 145 W. Main St. No phone inquiries. Graphic Design Student: Experience some Quinn, Graphic Design Services 257-841
GYMNASTICS/CHEERLEADER ORS - Enthusiastic Experienced rk in brand new facility. Call Tom at 255-5231.

MAINTENANCE TECHNICIAN wanted to outine tasks in biotech lab, including e washing, animal care and general ince. Part-time, flexible. Call Mr. Ward at 276-2306 for appointment.

Mother's Helper Needed for mornings during the week. 299-4816.

NEW ORLEANS HOUSE is now hiring full-and part-time kitchen workers. Start at $5.25/hr. with a flexible schedule for school. Apply in person only at 1510 Newtown Pike between 2

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900-$2,000 mo. Summer, Yr. round, All Countries, All fields. Free into. Write: IJG, P.O. Box 52-KY02 Corona Del

info. Write: DUS. The Mar., CA 92625.

RUNNER FOR LAW FIRM. 20 hrs./wk. Send resume to: 177. N. Upper St., Suite 207, Lexington, KY 40507.

SHOOTERS PHOTOGRAPHY needs self-motivated, outgoing, enthusiastic individuals as id, outgoing, enthusiatic individuals as warty photographers. No photography tice necessary. Training provided. Must pendable transportation. Call Pam 272-

7771
WANTED- Fitness Consultant at area Health Club. Experience or background in Health & Fitness recommended. Call: 273-3163. Ask for

WANTED: Receptionist/Secretary to help run Business Office on Farm in Fayette County. Part Business Office on Farm in Fayelle County. Ptime. Please Call: 293-0452.

WANTED: TEMPORARY FARM HELP NEEDED ON AGRICULTURAL FARM I FAYETTE COUNTY. 20-30 HRS. PER WEEK. PLEASE CALL: 293-0452.

Personals

!! *SPOOKY SALE - THURSDAY, RIDAY, SATURDAY and SUNDAY: Science ction, Fantasy, Mystery - 30% OFF!! OODLAND PARK BOOKSTORE - 516 E. High SI.

SI.COSETS ARE FOR CLOTHES, TODAY IS

MATIONAL COMING OUT DAY. WATCH HERE FOR MORE INFO ON REORGANIZATION OF UK GAY AND LESBAM GROUP.

IIILADIES, NO COVER and 50¢ drinks all night at Batchelor's tonight!

$$300$$ IN CASH AND PRIZES UKVB -Attack of the sandsharks" volleyball tourns Triples Sat. 12th, Quads Sun. 13th at Iannican's Pub. For info. call Jaime at 254

"" NYLA IMAGES WANTS
"" TYLA IMAGES WANTS
INTERESTING OR AVERAGE FACES EXTRAS, COMMERCIAL ACTORS, WORLD VIDEOS, PRINT ADS AND MUCH VOU TO A PERSONAL SCREENING AT THE ROBISSON PLACE AT THE AVERAGE FACES
ST. LEXINGTON, VY ON SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, VY ON SATURDAY AND
SO AVERAGE FACES
ST. LEXINGTON, VY ON SATURDAY AND
SO AVERAGE FACES
ST. LEXINGTON, VY ON SATURDAY AND
SO AVERAGE FACES
ST. LEXINGTON, VY ON SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY AND SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY AND
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON SATURDAY
ST. LEXINGTON, DY ON

00 AM AND 7:00 PM.

* Attention SAB Concert Committee Meeting Tuesday 3 p.m., Rm. 228, Student enter.

**25¢ DRAFT SATURDAY AT

**ATCHEL OR'S! Quarter draft is from 9-11. 50e draft from 11-Close.

"SATURDAY AT BATCHELOR'S 25e draft til 11 p.m. 50c til Closel

A LONDON NEW YEAR CAN BE YOURS through UK's LONDON WINTER BREAK program. Earn 3 hrs. college credit studying British culture from Dec. 26 - Jan. 8. For info., call 257-3377.

ABSOLUTELY NO BETTER DEAL!! 50%
OFF YOUR HAIRCUT FOR FIRST TIME ENTS, CALL SHANNON AT PHYSICAL TRACTIONS SALON 277-0444, phol Awareness Week 5-MILE WALK

Alcohol Awareness Week 5-MILE WALK Sunday 8 p.m. at Donovan Hall. AWAY FROM HOME? Support group to discuss adult decisions about values, money sexuality, time management, spirituality, and family issues. Thursdays 2-4 p.m. in 316 Funkhouser. Call 257-7755 for Janice. Bahama Cruise - $99 per person, 5 day/4 night hotel. Plan now for your break. Very limited offer. Call now 1-800-621-0572.

COMING OUT GROUP starting Oct. 21. Call Mary 266-5904 or Cole 233-9991.
CONVERTIBLES!! NEEDED FOR HOMECOMING PARADE. PLEASE CALL 257-

CONVERTIBLES!! NEEDED FOR HOMECOMING PARADE. PLEASE CALL 257-8867.
CUSTOM GREEK SWEATSHIRTS - Court
Sports - corner of S.Lime and Euclid. 255-5125 CUSTOMS LTD. Just arrived- great wool sweaters from Ecuador. Great colors. 116 W. Maxwell across from Joe Bologna's.

CUSTOMS LTD. Just arrived- velvet skirts, Indian print tops, tie-dyed Bajas. 116 W. Maxw across from Joe Bologna's.

CUSTOMS LTD. Temporary Tatoos 116 W. Maxwell across from Joe Bologna's. DG FORMAL INVITEES: Prepare to Party as you please. The Radisson can hardly weit, for every DG and her date. Although the anticipation is hard to bear... if's only one more day til AN ANCHOR AFFAIR!

Congrabilational You've doing a gramma very states.

Earn $2500 & Free Trips Settling Sprins Break Packages To Bahamas, Mexico, Jamalca, Floridal Best Trips & Prices!
Spring Break Travel 1-900-639-6786.

GOLF GOLF GOLF Last day for CHI OMECA GOLF CLASSIC: Sign-ups.
Tournament hald October 18th, Call 258-8827 Tournament held October 18th. Cali 258-8827 or 258-6088 for details. All are welcome to play! Greeks wear your letters to the Alcohol Awareness Week 5-mile Walk, Sunday et 8 p.m. Donovan Hall. FREE T-shirts to first 400 registored.

HEYI!! LOOKING FOR ORIGINAL DESIGNS
FOR T-SHIRTS AND FLIERS? CALL 2639022, 8 - 10 PM. WEEKINGHTS. ASK FOR KENN, LEAVE A MESSAGE. PLEASE.
SERIOUS NOURIES ONLY
KEENELAND TICKETS: $30. Exclusive clubbause spating: delicious buffet lunch. clubnouse searing; delicious buriet lunch; seating overlooking paddock arena; truck admission. Limited quantity for this Saturday. Call 254:3412. Tell them you're with the Kentucky Kennal party. Call New 1254:3412

Kernel party. Call Now! 254-3412.

KEENELAND TICKETS: $30. Exclusive Kernel party. Call Nowl 254-3412.
KEENELAND TICKETS: $30. Exclusive Kernel party. Call Nowl 254-3412.
KEENELAND TICKETS: $30. Exclus

clubhouse seating; delicious buffer lunch; seating overlooking paddock arena; truck admission. Limited quantity for this Saturday. Ca 254-3412. Tell them you've with the Kentucky Kernel party. Call Novi 254-3412. LEE DOO, October 12 - the day my dreams came true. Wubbee. Happy A. Hoggy.

N.Y. MODEL SEARCH at MODEL

AGENCY Oct. 17. Females 5'8 & up. For more

AGENCY Oct. 17. Females 5 6 a up information call 273-2301. NEED CASH? Bring Your Old Coi Rings, Gold and Diamond Jewelry, Dental Gold, Broken Jewelry, etc. to the GOLD SHACK for the Most Cash. We Buy any Gold or Silver items. We Make Loans on Gold or other items of value. (606) 299--0713.

NEW AIR JORDANS ARE IN! COURT
SPORTS - corner of S.Lime and Euclid. 255-

5125 NEW YEAR'S EVE IN LONDON, LAND and college credit, tool That's some hat UK's LONDON WINTER BREAK ram offers. Earn 3 hrs. college credit ring British culture from Dec. 26 - Jan. 8. For

RUSES - STATE AND A STATE OF THE REDNECKS PARTY!

SAVE THE REDNECKS PARTY!

The of the Parking garage off Rose 7 p.m.- ? It's Big! Sean B. I LOVE YOU. Thanks for 3 great months. Erin.

SIGMA KAPPA CAR #1: Road Rally 2 years Love, Your Sisters.

SIGMA KAPPA CAR #2; At least, you didn't run out of gas or finish master the body possible for Sisters.

SIGMA KAPPA HEATHER: When the GRE comes along, the "Horn" will be strong! Good buck Saturday, Love, your Sisters.

SIGMA KAPPA KATE: The "Melasse, you've the only one who can figure us out! Good buck on "ADEL" in a.W. Yuri Sisters.

Student Organizations bring your club to ALCOHOL AWARENESS WALK. STUDY THEATRE IN LONDON, ENGLAND through UK's LONDON WINTER BREAK program. Earn 3 hrs. college credit studying British culture from Dec. 26 - Jan. 8. For info., call 257-3377.

TIRED OF THE SAME OLD MUSIC? dg., and pick up your copy of a tional cassette by a new up-and

FREE promotional cassette of coming band TODAY!
Want a FREE promotional cassette of an up-and-coming band? Come by the Kernel, Pm. 026 Grehan Journalism Bidg., and pick

Want a FREE promotional cassette of an up-and-coming band? Come by the Kennal, Rim. OSG Grehan Journal Bind Dig, and pick yours up TOOD. WHITE MALE WOULD LIKE TO MEET! WHITE FEMALE NOT INTO BARS, BUT LIKES MOVIES, DINNERS, CHURCH AND WANTS TO BE SPOILED. SEND REPLY TO: HL BOX 15R - 108 MIDLAND AVE. LEXINGTON, KY 49598.

Roommate Wanted

MALE ROOMMATE (Jr., Sr., or Grad Washer/Dryer, A.C., Free C . Also, TMC Long Distance o. Call 268-0706 after 5 p.

MALE TO SHARE NICE 2 BR APT. 1 BLOCK TO CAMPUS. $250/MO. + $250 DEPOSIT. INCLUDES UTILITIES, PHONE, CABLE. CALL 233-1903.

JSE, SOUTH LEXINGTON, CALL 271-1527, DMMATE TO SHARE 3BR HOME ON MPUS $250/mo. plus 1/2 utilities, 268-0840 ROOMMATE WANTED TO SHARE 2 BR APT. Close to Campus. 136 S. Arcadia Park. $212/mo. plus utilities. Call: 278-3402. ROOMMATE WANTED TO SHARE 4 BR HOUSE STARTING NOV. 1. Graduate student preferred but will consider responsible adult. Call Mark 259-8150. Leave phone number

Services

A BARGAIN! TYPING/WORD Quality Output. $1.25/page. Cathy 276-3271.

ACCURATE TYPING!! PROFESSIONAL TEED. Disk storage free. Legal, verything. MLA, APA. Styles. Doris

273-2149. ACCURATE TYPING/WORD PROCESSING. APA, papers, reports, thusis, letters, resumes, graphics. Laser printed. Near campus. Norma 277:0991
ALL TYPINGIWORD PROCESSING.
Resumes, Research, Legal, Thesis. LAST MINUTE ACCEPTED. Days. Evenings, Weekendes. 254-1076 or 299-7599.
AVALABLE EVENINGS AND WEEKENDS FOR YOUR TYPING NEEDS CALL 568-8512 YOUR TYPING NEEDS. CALL 266-8512.

I'VE MOVED! But still giving fast Reliable Word-Processing Service. Reasonable. New Word-Processing Service. Reasonable. New Phone 224-4030 MARCIA. NEED MATH TUTOR?? Cualified for General Math up through Trig. Call 223-1780. SPECIAL STUDENT Rates. Word Processing- Dissertations, Reports, Resumes, etc. Guaranteed. Please Call; 224-4016.
WORD PROCESSING - RESUME DEVELOPMENT SERVICE.
REASONABLE RATES. Administrative Systems. 2230 Idle Hour Bldg. #211C . 268-2621.

Systems. 220 lide Hour sig. #210 - 2ed 2621. WORD PROCESSING/LASER TYPESETTING: Reports, Dissertations, Theses, Manuscripts, Resumes, Cover Lette Bindings, Notary, Fax. Visa/MC. CopyMate 278-1930. (Next to St. Joseph Hospital).

Lost and Found

Classroom Bidg. Call 231-0524 or stop by Hoom 311 Classroom Bidg.
REWARD FOR THE RETURN OF THE CONTENTS OF BROWN LEATHER PURSE STOLEN CCT. 8 BETWEEN 12-1 P.M., SECOND FLOOR MINING & MINERALS BLOG. OR INFORMATION LEADING TO THE CONVICTION OF THEFT. CALL: 257-6327.

The Graduate School _______ Doctoral Dissertation Defenses

FREE PREGNANCY TESTING Abortion Services 278-0214

1-800-321-5911

CONFIDENTIAL PREGNANCY ASSISTANCE

Birthright

KENTUCKY KERNEL

Editor in Chief Victoria Martin

Managing Editor Dale Greer

News Editor Angela Jones

Associate Editor

Design Editor

Editorial Editor N. Alan Cornett

Sports Editor Tim Wiesenhahn

Assistant Sports Editor

Arts Editor

Editorial Cartoonist

Photography Editor Greg Eans

General Manager Mike Agin

Production Manager Robin Jones

Night Production Manager Brlan Aker

Advertising Director

Classified Advertising (606) 257-2871

The Kentucky Kernel is bublished on class days during the academic year and weekly during the summer session.

Third-class postage paid at Lexington, Kentucky 40511. Mailed subscription rates are $40 per year.

Readers are encouraged to submit letters and guest opinions to the Kentucky Kernel in person or by mail Writers should address their comments to Editorial Editor, Kentucky Kernel, 035 Journalism Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506-0042.

Letters should be 350 words or less, while guest opinions should be 850 words or less.

We prefer all material to be type written and double-spaced, but others are welcome if they are legible.

Writers must include their name, address, telephone number and major classificatio or connection with UK on all submitted material.

Frequent contributors can be limited so we may publish letters from as many writers as possible.

We reserve the right to edit all material.

READ THE KERNEL

Jefferson Davis Inn 102 W. High • 233-9107 Friday Rob & Dave Saturday Zydeco Bon $1.00 Drafts 233-9107

TO GET KEENELAND TICKETS $30

CALL 254-3412

Gives you

• Exclusive CLUBHOUSE Admission

• Delicious Buffet Lunch

• Seating Overlooking the Paddock Arena

• Track Admission

•Tell them you're with the Kentucky Kernel party

Sorority

Continued from page

"You need diversity, but you also need a group you can come to for support," she said.

Mayo assigned numbers to each seat in order to mix people up in an effort to encourage interaction.

Bringing the racial tensions to the forefront in August was the recent printing of a racial slur in a University publication. The original version of "My Old Kentucky Home" was printed on the back cover of the "Wildcat Datebook 1991-92."

The original lyrics referred to the "Wildcat Datebook 1991-92."

The original lyries referred to blacks as "darkies." SAB officials said the slur was a mistake and they immediately pulled the datebooks from the shelves.
Mayo said the slur showed a need for better communication between blacks and whites at UK.
"It made me mad, and the worst thing is somebody probably proof-read it and saw nothing wrong," she said. She said occurrences such as the slur make prejudices obvious.

the slur make prejudices obvious

Despite those kinds of instances, Mayo said she wants to remain here and encouraged black students to choose UK. Many times she said she's asked, "Why do you go to UK, isn't it prejudiced?"

"Regardless of the color of your skin, everybody hurts, everybody hurts, everybody hurts, everybody rices, everybody laughs — the first step is to realize everybody's human, "she said.

Victor Hazard, associate dean of students, also spoke to the group last night about the importance of cultural diversity and sensitivity.

"There was one day I thought I'd find myself playing basketball and running my feet," he said. "Ironically, here I am running my mouth."

He asked all greeks present to answer one question: "Is your organization as good as it is because it is all black or all white or because of the diversity and talents each individual brings to the group."

"There's such a wide gap between black and white sorroities," said Kim Walsh, Pi Beta Phi president. "And getting to know what other sororities are all about will

"And getting to know what sororities are all about will other sororities are all help a lot with attitudes.'

"Attitude changes come with knowledge and we lack knowl-edge," said Carol Von Yount, presi-dent of Delta Delta Delta. She said

Mayo, who said she first experienced racism in the fourth grade, said prejudice is "something you come to expect." However, she said she's hopeful things will change.

Keeping high-sulfur coal good, Ford says

By CHARLES WOLFE

FRANKFORT, Ky. — U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford says a plan to keep a Tennessee Valley Authority plant burning high-sulfur coal would avert "economic disaster" for West-

The staff of the huge federal utili-ty is proposing that scrubbers — expensive air-pollution control devices — be installed at TVA's Cumberland plant in Tennessee.

Oliver D. Kingsley Jr., president of TVA Generating Group, said yesterday that would allow the plant to continue using high-sulfur coal from Western Kentucky instead of switching to cleaner coal from Wyoming or other coal fields.

The staff also recom

TVA continue burning Western Kentucky coal at its Paradise plant in Muhlenberg County, which al-ready has scrubbers, and switch its Gallatin plant near Nashville, Tenn., to low-sulfur coal from Wyoming's Powder River Basin.

"This recommendation by TVA will no doubt prevent what could have been an economic disaster to Western Kentucky," Ford (D-Ky.)

Negotiations with TVA had their share of "rough spots, but this is nothing but good news," Ford said.

TVA plants burn more than 28 million tons of Kentucky coal per year. About 9 million tons is low-sulfur coal from eastern Kentucky, but most is the high-sulfur variety common in Western Kentucky, Kingsley said.

Reunion

Continued from page 1

weekend for a reunion.
A reception will be held at 7 tonight in the Hilary J. Boone Faculty Club, and alumni can tour the Kernel facilities in the Enoch J. Grehan Journalism Building on campus. On Saturday, a banquet begins at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. at the Campbell House. Several alumnia also will be guests at Keeneland for the afternoon. the afternoor

the atternoon.

"This is the first time in recent decades that a Kernel reunion has been attempted," Agin said. "We've received letters from Kernel staffers from the 1940s, as well as those who have worked at the newspaper in the past 20 years."

Nancy Green, adviser to the Kernel when it went independent, is the honored guest for the evening's ceremonies.

Green was the last Kernel adviser hired by UK faculty rather than its board. She started in mid-August with an ultimatum — figure out a way to get the ball rolling in one semester or face extinction.

"You gotta remember, everybody in the world said we couldn't do it," she said. "Nobody believed we could pull it off or survive past one semester without university funds.

"It's important that you can say you did it on your own, that it's independent of control ... it's a lot to be proud of, that time when (other student newspapers) were being kicked off campus."

Otis A. Singletary, who was University president in 1971, said certain Board of Trustees members wanted the Kernel to shut down

But he said the need to throw the Kernel "flat on its face" never entered his mind and he doesn't regret having a hand in its independence.

"The campus newspaper is an im-ortant element of campus life. It's valuable addition."

a valuable addition."
When Singletary met with the editor and adviser prior to the trustees meeting that would decide the paper's fate. He adamantly opposed the three-year phaseout plan and instead suggested a one-year $20,000 cutoff subsidy.

He called some of the paper's ed itorials written against him were "a human annoyance, but deep down I know that goes with the territory."

Green said Singletary's help was vital to the paper's independence.

"Otis Singletary said from the get-go 'we are out of the newspaper business.' I never believed other-

The Kentucky Kernel distributes 17,000 free copies daily to the UK campus. It provides educational opportunities for UK students in all areas of the newspaper business, in-cluding writing, photography, com-puter graphics and advertising sales.

About 75 to 125 students work at the Kernel each semester in many facets of the newspaper.

Tacets of the newspaper.

The Kernel is owned by a nonprofit corporation called Kernel Press, Inc. Although it sometimes operates at a loss because of fluctuating advertising revenues, the newspaper's financial condition has stabilized since the "rough times of the 1970s when it first went independent," Agin said.

The Kernel reunion is just the beginning of the celebration of the 20th anniversary year. The official day of the Kernel's independence was Jan. 19, 1971.

Current editor Victoria Martin will serve as emcee at the banquet.

Salary

school's regents of wrongly spending about $100,000 on school funds to renovate his campus house.

But on nine administrative charg-s against Wolfe, the allegation that Body Sunsations

TANNING SALON 2035 Regency Rd. Suite #1 Lexington, KY

STUDENT SPECIAL

5 Visits $9.95 Expires 10/18/91

277-BODY (2639)

1 Visit $2.95

10 Visits $17.50 20 Visits $31.50

he gave himself a raise without board approval has caused the biggest uproar. "Wolfe's salary is comparable to the others," said Gary Cox, executive director of the CHE.

The council, however, has no say in what schools pay their presidents.

Lemon

Continued from page 1

mental Sciences school.

Schmelzer, who has been at UK since 1983, teaches the lecture part of the course.

Because the Lemon Tree is operated by students, it is only open twice a week in the fall and four times a week in the fall and four times a week in the spring. But it's limited serving schedule hant't prevented it from becoming a regular campus lunch-hour meeting spot.

Ray Bradshaw, who works in UK's purchasing department, has been a regular customer once a week for the last eight years. He reserves a table for six and invites different people to join him every week. He teases Jones for running out of whole-wheat rolls.

"We can aggravate them and they

"We can aggravate them and they can't do anything," Bradshaw said. Frankie Garrison, an employee in UK's Academic Ombudsman Of-It's Academic Ombudsman Of-fice, has been eating at the Lemon Tree since its opening.

She eats at the restaurant twice weekly, inviting various off-campus

E DOGGY BAG by Kenn Mi

friends to join her on Tuesdays nd campus co-workers on Thurs-and campus to join ner on tuesaya.

"It's convenient," Garrison said.
"You don't have to leave campus, he food is good, the price is good and the people are nice."

The Lemon Tree is successful for many reasons. The restaurant's signature" items are the homemade fresh breads and deserts.
"Our breads are made from scratch," Schmelzer said. "Our deserts are made from scratch. We have a tradition of making things from scratch."

And people like to see what stu-

from scratch."

And people like to see what students involved are doing, she said.
"Because they are students, they're talking about doing it right. And it should be right. I think the people who come like to see what the students are up to."

Schmelzer says the Lemon Tree is an important part of students' education.

"For the Dietetics students. "For the Dietetics students, we need to expose them to the food service management side ... the idea of service," she said. "What is service? What is important to the customer? We talk about things in really an extension of the lecture."

Dietetics junior Sonya Skanes has enjoyed working at the Lemon Tree, although her interests lie mainly in food nutrition.
"Waitressing at first was diffi-

"Waitressing at first was diffi-cult," Skanes said. "It took a little while to adjust. Now it's easy. The interaction with customers will help when I work with hospital patients or school kids."
For restaurage

For restaurant management ma-jors like Hesham Kalla, the Lemon Tree has proved to be a gold mine of experience.

Kalla, a senior, said he was un happy with programs offered by the College of Business and Economics. Someone suggested that he ics. Someone suggested that he eat "next door" at Erikson Hall, and the program helped Kalla to land an in-ternship at Walt Disney World last summer.

"A lot of students work in restaurants, but they only handle one side, like waiting tables," Schmelzer said. "At the Lemon Tree, they have to know all sides of running a restaurant — planning, food costs, employee needs, quality control, preparation and service of items."

Lemon Tree employees is similar Lemon Tree employees is similar to being at home.

"When they first walk in here, the students are scared to death," Jones said. "Then they end up getting along so well.

"Eventually they all get together and form, more or less, a family and help each other. Then everything just goes together well."

Since 1977, the "family" at the Lemon Tree has causeful its Ibi.

Since 1977, the "family" at the Lemon Tree has catered to its University "cousins" — faculty, staff and students — in style. The success of the little restaurant, while relatively unknown to campus, is a small surprise to Schmelzer and longe.

Jones.

Neither can remember a time that the Lemon Tree was less than full.

The dining room holds "around 45, but we usually serve about 50 people. We hang them from the ceiling, as I tell the students," Jones end.

The Lemon Tree Restaurant, lo-cated in 204 Erikson Hall, is open from noon to 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays during the fall se-mester. Reservations are required.

NED-"BUCK INGAT"-DOMESTIK DRAFT PATS $1-WELL DRINKS $1 SAT-GIVING AWAY 52 O'ROUNDS IN GRAND PRIZE DRAWING!

TUES-WARE MUSIC MIGHT-SCHAMM-PAUL K-12 MAIT HARPIGUNESS

THURS+BLACKSTONE TRIBUTE+RAFFLE+GROONEZULA!

FRI-MUSICAL HAPPY HR-METRO BLUES ALLSTARS-2 MIGHTS!

LOOK FOR "MEN OF LYNAGH'S" CALENDER!

PARADISE (PG-13) ***

HATTERED (R)

THE DOCTOR (PG-13)

SHOUT (PG-13)

IRON & SILK (NR) No One 1:35 3:35 5:35 7:35 9:35

FRANKIE AND JOHN 140 415 7:00 9:30

FREDDY'S DEAD THE FINAL NIGHTN 1:40 5:40 7:40 9:40 LATE FOR DINNER

DECEIVED (PG-13) ** IFX*

Kernel Reunion Special Present this coupon and receive

Super 8 Motel, Lexington 2351 Buena Vista Road Lexington, KY 40505 1-75 & Winchester Rd, Exit 110 606-299-6241

CINEMARK THEATRES

SHATTERED (R. THX

RICOCHET (R) " THX

PARADISE (PG-13)** 2 00 5 00 7 25 9 50

NECESSARY ROUGH

THE SUPER (R) ** 1:25 3:20 5:20 7:30 9:40

DECEIVED (PG-13)**

ERNEST SCARED STUPID

FISHER KING (R)

ANY ROOM Sarre Barre g Cracer e

SHATTERED (R) 5:10 7:15 9:20

THE SUPER (R) ** 5:20 7:30 9:35

DECEIVED (R) ** 5:35 7:45 9:55

ERNEST SCA 5:10 7:10 9:10

RICOCHET (R) ** 5:30 7:50 10:00

D MALL 8

SGA Continued from page 1

David Stockham, dean of stu-dents, was also present during the VanEman, SGA freshman sena-tor, and Monica Turpin, who was selected as the Lexington Commu-nity College's senator, were not available for comment.

tor from the College of Dentistry.

There was a tie for the new sena-tor from the College of Nursing be-tween Tammy Wells and Mickey

The other candidates for SGA The other candidates for SGA freshman representative received the following totals: Kelleigh Colliver, 80 votes; Shelli Freeland, 105 votes; Ted Jones, 72 votes; Louie Stephens, 93 votes; Brian Tomlinson, 76 votes; and Kristin Morrison, 80 votes.

Results from LCC were that Michelle Kanatzar received 71 votes and Joe Hohman, 133 votes.

MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS WEEK October 6 - 12

Are you taking laxatives to lose weight? Throwing one telling you won't gain wieght? Inrown up after eating so you won't gain wieght? Is anyone telling you "you're getting too skinny?" For women, have periods stopped since you've lost weight? If you've answered 'yes' to any of these questions, you could have an eating disorder which can have dertrimental effects on your health. GET HELP. Go to a mental health counselor and your physician.

For information or to schedule an appointment, call the Student Mental Health Service at 233-5511.