LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Dr. Ronald Farrar of the UK School of Journalism, recently published College 101 (a Peterson's Guide publication). In a recent letter to Paul Willis, Dr. Farrar expressed his appreciation for the help the library staff provided him in gathering information for the book.

INFORUM

Annual Report

The "University of Kentucky Libraries Annual Report, 1983-84" is now available in King Reserve.

New Deadline for Humanities Challenge Grants

May 1, 1985 is the deadline set for the next round of matching grants from the National Endowment on the Humanities. University and public libraries which are already "performing work of recognizable merit within the context of their missions and resources" are offered a chance to "achieve greater financial stability and growth of resources" with the help of an NEH Challenge Grant. Recipients must raise three dollars for each one granted.

New guidelines have been prepared and must be consulted in preparing a grant application. Get a copy from: Challenge Grant Deadlines, Room 409 Public Affairs Office, National Endowment for the Humanities; 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue; Washington D.C. 20506. (Library Hotline, 14 (1-21-85), 1).

UK LIBRARY SYSTEM

The following is the fourth part of a special 9-part series drawn from Mary Ruth Brown's article in The Encyclopedia of Library and Information Science.

Mission and Objectives

The primary mission of the University Libraries is to provide bibliographic, physical, and intellectual access to recorded information consistent with present and anticipated educational, research, and service functions of the University of Kentucky. A secondary mission is to serve the citizens of the state and researchers and scholars at large by providing informational resources plus the expertise of professional librarians.

The objectives are:

1. To select and acquire those informational resources relevant to effective pursuit of current and anticipated instructional and research purposes of the university.
2. To organize and administer the materials acquired in a manner which will facilitate direct user access.
3. To interpret the collection to users and increase the skills of individual users in independent utilization of library resources.
4. To provide access to needed resources not located within the University Library system.
5. To provide and utilize space and equipment efficiently so that the library patron may use the collection effectively.
6. To maintain a program for preservation of materials and collection security so that the library's resources will be available for future users.
7. To maintain meaningful working relationships with the academic community and with officials of the university to assure effective development of library resources consistent with the purposes of the university.
8. To maintain close relationships with other Kentucky university and college libraries and with research libraries and cooperative organizations outside the state to effect the development of a mutually beneficial approach to collection policies and the effective use of resources.
9. To seek improvement in effective allocation of all available resources (human, informational, financial, and physical) through systematic analysis and review.
