What is considered one of the most important measures introduced this session will come up as a special order of business in the House Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. It is a Workmen's Compensation Bill drafted by the House Committee on Compensation for Industrial Injured from two bills dealing with the subject, - one introduced by William Duffey, of Louisville, and the other by M. S. Walton, of Lexington. The substitute is acceptable to both these Representatives, it is said, and it is believed it will pass the House without much trouble.
