

A Christmas Message

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the King, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, where is he who is born King of the Jews for we have seen his star in the east and have come to worship him. When Herod the King had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be born. And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet, and thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda not the least among the princes of Juda; for out of these shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel. Then Herod, when he had privately called the wise men, inquired of them diligently what time the star appeared. And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also. When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. (Matt. 2:1 through 10)

USP Wins 9 Of 10 SGA Seats

Amendment Passes By Large Majority

By MARVIN "STELLA" BEARD

UK students, by an overwhelming majority, voted "yes" to the proposed amendment to the SGA constitution which would eliminate SGA's power to ratify the editors of the Kentuckian and the Kentucky Kernel.

The amendment, which read in full, "are you in favor of an amendment to strike the words 'be subject to the ratification of the Assembly' from Article V, Section 4 of the Constitution?" was passed by an 873-383 majority in Wednesday's election.

But immediately after the election results were known, a question was raised as to the validity of the results, since the College of Law was not afforded an opportunity to vote on the amendment.

The situation arose when the College of Law had no candidates up for election to SGA. Therefore, no ballots were distributed to them. However, the ballots contained not only a list of candidates, for which the Law College was not eligible to vote, but also the amendment, for which it was.

Don Whitehouse, SGA president, and Stan Chauvin, SGA Election Committee Chairman, said Wednesday night that, in view of these developments, a special election would be held Wednesday, January 11, to allow students in the College of Law to vote on the amendment.

Only 1,669 Votes Cast In One-Sided Election

By MARNEY BEARD

The United Students Party captured nine of the ten vacant SGA seats in Wednesday's student election.

In one of the most one-sided elections in recent years, USP placed their candidates in every available office except that of upperclass man in the College of Engineering, where Warren Deatrich beat out Howard Dohrman by the slim margin of five votes.

The results were in sharp contrast to those in the election of last fall. Then the two student political parties (USP and Constitutionalists) split, as each party elected five delegates to SGA.

The voting was tight, as only 1,669 ballots were cast. Even this light turnout, however, represented an increase of some 200 votes over last fall, when only 1,432 voters turned out.

Unofficial results are as follows: (totals in parentheses after each candidate's name).

Arts and Sciences: lowerclass man—John Darsie (233), USP defeated Larry Brown (179), Const. Upperclass man—Bob Howerton (223), USP defeated Richard Vimmer (193), Const. Lowerclass woman—Nina Vann (230), USP defeated Joy Bell (182), Const. Upperclass woman—Faye Gibson (259), USP defeated Lynn Graham (173), Const.

Police Halt Serenade

A fraternity serenade in front of Patt Hall was abruptly halted Wednesday night when university and city police arrived on the scene and asked the serenading group to leave.

A spokesman for the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, the serenading group, said that they took one of their members to the porch of the dorm. Here they tied and drenched him with five gallons of water, and then began to serenade the dorm. But before the serenade was completed campus police were called and the group was asked to leave.

UK Loan Approved By FHA

The Federal Housing Authority in Atlanta approved a $2,800,000 loan to the University, Frank D. Peterson, business administrator, said this week.

The loan has been referred to Washington for final approval.

The loan will be used to construct a new women's dorm and to rebuild Shawneetown, Peterson said.

Holmes Hall, the new dorm, will take $1,000,000 and Shawneetown will use the remaining $1,800,000.

Holmes Hall will be built on the site of the women's barracks at Euclid and Limestone.

Construction is expected to begin on Holmes Hall in the spring and on Shawneetown after July.

Mills Attends White House Conference

The director of the recent White House Conference, attended by Dr. Robert Mills, registrar at UK, said they found no state had demonstrated financial incapacity to build its schools.

Clint Pace, the director, further stated that an exaggerated impression of the endorsement given Federal aid had resulted from the reporting on the conference.

Pace said that in a report read at the conference, "A majority agreed that all states and territories and the District of Columbia should be eligible for Federal funds but that they should be granted only on the basis of demonstrated need."

"The general consensus was 'No state represented has a demonstrated financial incapacity to build the schools it will need during the next five years. But, with the exception of a few states none of the states presently has plans which indicate a political determination powerful enough to overcome all obstacles.'"

To Represent Tobacco Co.

Carol Walter and Don Ball have been selected by the Student Marketing Institute of New York to be the American Tobacco Company representatives on the UK campus. As campus representatives they will be presenting members of the student body with sample packs of Lucky Strike, Pall Mall and Filter Tip Tareyton cigarettes.

Oldest Known New Testament To Be Displayed

The Yonan Codex, considered by many as the oldest known manuscript of the New Testament, will be on display Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 20 and 21, in the Memorial Coliseum. Miss Chloe Gifford of the College of Adult and Extension Education is in charge of making the arrangements for this public display.

Last Tuesday afternoon, Gov. A. B. Chandler took his oath of office for the governorship of Kentucky on the Yonan Codex. The act was the official opening of a state-wide tour for the manuscript.

Authorities in ancient languages and manuscripts date the Yonan Codex as having been written in or about the fifth century of our era. The manuscript is handwritten in Aramaic which was the language spoken by Jesus and his disciples. The text has been written in black ink with the titles in red. Many who have studied this document,

Kentuckian Deadline Nearing

Greek Jamboree pictures and names of Kentuckian Queen candidates for the 1956 Kentuckian that have not yet been submitted must be in the Kentuckian office by Jan. 6.

Perry Ashley, editor, has announced that organizations not turning in material by this date will be omitted from the Greek Jamboree.

At least four 8 by 10 inch glossy prints should be submitted for the Greek Jamboree section. Information concerning group activities must also be turned in at the same time as the pictures. This information should cover the organization's activities dating from last spring up to the end of the first semester.

Names of queen candidates must be in the Kentuckian office no later than this date to be considered for the contest.

The past four months have been spent renovating display cases and painting them; cataloging specimens and making their placards.

Cases that had glass sides completely around them have been enclosed on three sides. This has been done so that the exhibits are not hidden by reflections on the glass. Fitted with inside spotlights, these have been set on prepared tables.

Six built-in cases wait for arrangement. They are planned to show a burial scene, a selection of weapons, and other similar artifacts.

All the extra work has been done by Dr. R. H. Thompson, Anthropology Department, working with student assistants.

The emphasis has been on uncluttered exhibits, that are planned to be eye-catching. Dr. Thompson says that a great deal of time must be spent arranging a display. It must suggest a story to the viewer, be attractively arranged, and have a harmonious color scheme that doesn't detract from the subject, he believes. He says he is often irritated because it may take three or four tries to get the desired effect.

The beginning exhibit will be on African tools, clothes, baskets, and musical instruments. Each of these will be shown separately. Later on in the semester, Navajo and an Eskimo section will be added. These are to be used for illustrations in the first section of "Societies Around the World."

Major cases will show blacksmith's tools; "the man's world"—baskets, hats, carpets; pots and baskets; and musical instruments—drums, a harp, and flutes.

This is part of a collection borrowed from the American Museum of History. The American Museum has what is probably the largest selection of Africa in the United States.

Kernel Editors Of Yesteryear Get Bylines

Kentucky got a new governor Tuesday, and former Kernel editors got the by-lines.

Journalism classmates Tom Duncan for the Associated Press and Tom Gish for the United Press carried the top heads in The Lexington-Leader Tuesday afternoon. Duncan and Gish were graduated in 1947.

The by-lined stories made the School of Journalism bulletin board Wednesday morning.

Merry Christmas!

Thank You

The separation of the press and the legislature was re-affirmed this week when UK students in six colleges voted overwhelmingly in favor of the SGA constitutional amendment which eliminated the "power" of SGA to ratify the appointments of the Kernel and Kentuckian editors.

The founders of our country were acutely aware of the need for a free press. Thomas Jefferson once wrote that if "were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

Even though SGA did not exercise the ratification power, it was possible for them to control a Kentuckian or Kernel editor if they wrote something that did not please the assembly. This was bad policy, and the students are to be congratulated for recognizing it.

Perhaps the press' constant worry about its liberty is boring to some of its readers. Admittedly newspapers make mistakes, sometimes bad ones. Part of this due to the constant strain of beating a deadline, and part of it to poor reporting. This is an accepted fact, but it must be remembered that all good papers strive for improvement.

It also should be remembered that newspapermen are common men. Very few of them have extremely high I.Q.'s or very scholarly educations. However, in a way, this is good.

Ideally a newspaper is made up of ordinary men reporting what they have seen and heard to other ordinary men. A newspaper's primary job is to act as a window through which all citizens can view the events of the day. It should report all it sees, and leave it to the people to judge whether the events were good or bad.

Because the press is more closely tied to this matter of reporting public affairs, it is more sensitive about any infringement upon the people's right to know.

This is why the Kernel talks about freedom of the press. And this is why the Kernel thanks the students for their vote of confidence.

Spoil Sport

When a fraternity man gives his pin to a co-ed it is generally a "big" event on campus. It is doubtful, however, whether it is such a big occasion as to warrant campus and city police.

Such was the situation Wednesday night when serenaders of a newly-pinned co-ed were advised to leave Patterson Hall. Campus and city police arrived on the scene of the Patt Hall hazing and serenading and dispersed the celebrants.

Granted that a serenading should not end up in a brawl, the Wednesday night event was nothing more than the usual for pinning celebrations. The girls of Patt Hall were not being menaced, nor was any harm meant.

A harmless dousing of a fraternity brother certainly cannot be considered a menace to a residence hall. The short-term blocking of a driveway is not a serious traffic hazard.

Even though the fraternity in question did not consider Patt Hall's Christmas Party, the serenade and hazing were not so obnoxious as to warrant police patrol.

None of the men involved were charged with breaking any rules, but they were, nevertheless, advised not to stay around the residence hall.

No segments of campus life can be denied a little release of steam—so long as it is not detrimental. UK has suffered no demonstrations or panty raids within the past five years. Activities have been well controlled.

A look across the nation at other colleges—especially the large state institutions—will show that other schools are not so fortunate. It is high time that UK administrative officers realize that a little group fun is much more advantageous than spurts of mob rule.

Although too much significance has been attached to the student demonstrations at Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia, they certainly proved a point. The governor of Georgia is not omnipotent; his whims cannot stop Georgia teams from playing whom they choose. Football's color line extends only as far as the tint of the jerseys.

It's strange how people figure that more pressure on the accelerator of a car is worth a lifetime of enjoyment.

Term papers, it seems, would not be so unbearable if instructors ever bothered to show one their particular value in the course.

Smart is the freshman who learns long before his second semester that the Student Union is not entirely composed of a grill and a pool room.

Keys—the sophomore honorary—was once famous for its annual "Sadie Hawkins Day." Now this event is all but forgotten.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

Backtalk

Telephones

Dear Sir:

You must know how important dates are to young girls in college. Also you will recognize that the telephone is most accepted means of transmitting boys' desires for aftermentioned item. But girls of Patterson Hall are finding the situation of the pre-historic telephone system quite exasperating. Either the phones are dead when girls attempt calls out or incoming calls are conducted like so—a girl goes to answer her phone and although she has picked up the receiver there is no response and the phone keeps ringing. When a girl knows that her "one and only" is on the other end of the line this situation can be quite frustrating.

It is our belief that a much better phone system should be typical of as large and modern a college as UK. We freshmen have enough trouble with upperclass competition without these phones.

Please help us poor freshmen who are suffering from the "telephone blues".

Disgruntled Patt Hall Girls

(Editor's note: So that's why we can't get dates these days. Knew there must be some reason.)

Short Shift

Another Stylus came out last week. As usual it reeked. Much of its material was profane, obscene, and poorly written. As a literary magazine, Stylus is a disgrace to the University. Undoubtedly there are many students on campus who have literary ability. It would be nice to hear from them once in a while. Most students are growing tired of the drivel that smears the pages of Stylus.

Once again the Memorial Hall chimes are playing. SGA added a beautiful touch to the Christmas season at the University when they requested that they be played.

Christmas is a joyous season. Let's keep it that way by driving safely during the holidays.

Christmas spirit, by deed and not by phony statements, has been widely shown on campus through the many parties for underprivileged children. Congratulations to the organizations that sponsored these activities.

Now's the time to get behind the basketball team. They face a long and hard schedule this year and need the support of every student. Let's give them some real cheering at the Idaho game tomorrow night. The ball was started with the Tennessee game. Keep it rolling!

A big—and still growing—segment of the University, the Home Economics Department, was granted a separate poll for SGA elections recently. The Home Ec majors have long asked for a balloting place in their own building, and now they have one. It is a wise and considerate move for all concerned.

Words are so very inexpensive that it seems wonderful that "Merry Christmas" still has its perennial sound of joy.

Christmas And Its Customs Are Ancient Products

Did you ever stop to think of how the holiday of Christmas really began? Or perhaps wonder why we hang stockings and mistletoe and engage in all the yuletide customs that we do?

The Christmas holiday, as many other holidays, was originally a nature festival held in the winter. It was customary at this time of year to hold feasts in honor of heathen gods, a time for drinking and making merry.

After Christ was born, however, early teachers of Christianity prohibited these primitive festivities as ungodly. And yet the old festival was not discarded entirely. It was reborn in new form, with many of the old customs adapted to a new anniversary, the birth of Christ. Pagan traditions such as the Yule log, holly, and mistletoe, which we find in our Christmas today, are old carry-overs of the early festival.

The first Christmas-day festival, it is said, lasted several days and was celebrated by King Arthur in the city of York in 521 A.D. It spread so fast that by the early Middle Ages it was the greatest of the popular festive activities. Churches were decorated, carols were sung, and feasting and good cheer were at a peak.

By Shakespeare's time, the occasion had become extremely elaborate. It lasted almost two weeks, during which period there was no work of any kind.

Christmas holidays received a temporary set-back in England at the height of the Puritan influence in that country. This religious body prevailed upon Parliament to prohibit all festivities, and declared the day one of fast. The old observances were renewed, however, with the same gusto immediately after the Restoration.

Most of our Christmas traditions are imported from other lands. People from France, England, Germany, Norway, Italy, and Holland all brought their customs across the oceans with them.

Santa Claus is a direct descendant from Holland. Dutch settlers of New York introduced to their neighbors in America their patron saint of children, St. Nichols, or San Nicolas. He grew a long white beard, donned red apparel, and made his debut in this country as Santa Claus.

The myth that Santa sweeps down from the north in a reindeer powered sleigh and scoots down the chimney probably developed in England. It was a custom, way back when, to clean out the chimney at the beginning of the New Year to enable good luck to enter the household.

Hanging of the stocking during Christmas time is strictly a product of American materialistic thinking, with the early beginnings in Holland. According to the old tale children of Amsterdam set their wooden shoes in a corner of the chimney so Sleigher would see them and not pass by without leaving gifts. Sleigher is the famous old horse of Dutch mythology that St. Nicholas made his rounds upon, and from which the remainder of England probably emerged.

This custom of placing shoes around the chimney spread from Holland to France, then to England, and finally reached the United States. Our stockings developed from this shoe tradition, simply because they stretch and will hold more.

An old Druidic custom, the mistletoe has survived through many generations and still is popular. The Druids were ancient teachers of religion in old Gaul and Britain, and to them mistletoe was treated with the utmost veneration. They regarded it as sacred, and cut it with a golden knife to hang over their doorways. This was supposed to propitiate the woodland spirits.

According to myth, only happiness could enter under the mistletoe. Hence our tradition of the kiss.

Old Proprietor Condemns Those Who Revert To Self-pity

By RAY HORNBACK

The Old Proprietor spent a busy evening this past Tuesday. And a quite rewarding one.

After participating in a lively intramural basketball game, I attended a party for the crippled children at the beautiful new Shriner's Crippled Children's Hospital on Richmond Road.

From there, I headed toward Frankfort and the inaugural celebration. And what a fine time we had. Dancing in the capitol, fighting through crowds of "Happy" enthusiasts and seeing acquaintances from over the state . . . all combined to make a very enjoyable night.

But as I observed the celebrating crowds dancing on strong legs and as I watched the grand spectacle of an inaugural celebration, I could not help but see the crippled children I had visited only a few hours earlier.

There I was—standing amidst a group of celebrants numbering in the thousands, yet my mind wasn't with them.

And as I thought of the crippled children snuggled not so comfortably in their beds, I began to realize how so many of us, despite our many advantages and opportunities, have developed to a high degree the capacity for feeling sorry for ourselves.

How many times, when thinks just don't go as you would have them, have you crawled off into a corner and buried yourself in self-pity? And how many times have you let the smallest of incidents, tensions or difficulties throw you into that all-too-often used corner?

A. J. Cronin once said, "Doubt and fear, the great enemies of human advancement, are born in the darkness of self-pity, and if we yield to them we thwart ourselves at very step. We can rise, conquer and achieve only by lifting our thoughts away from ourselves, by realizing that in achievement, of whatever kind, the selflessness of the effort is the measure of result."

Cronin once told the story of Victor Hugo, who while in exile from his beloved France, would climb to the top of a cliff overlooking a harbor on the Channel Island of Jersey. He would sit for hours on a worn, moss-covered bench and meditate.

Hugo would then rise, select a pebble or stone of varying sizes and cast the stone into the far reaches of the water below.

Children who played nearby watched the daily event. Finally, one of the braver children approached Hugo and asked, "Mon-sieur Hugo, why do you come here to throw these stones?"

Hugo smiled gravely and replied, "They are not stones, my child. I am throwing self-pity into the sea."

From Hugo's symbolic act, there is a lesson for us all. How fine it would be if in moments of despondency when we revert to self-pity we could cast away the stone.

And in doing so, if we picture the cheery faces of crippled children who are humans with a REAL problem, I believe we'll be able to gather just a little added strength to fling the useless stone toward infinity.

To close out my lecture, I wish EVERYONE the very finest Christmas as I leave you with a prayer I heard recently:

"Keep us, Oh God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed. Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking. May we put away all pretense and meet each other without self-pity and without prejudice. Let us take time for all things; make us to grow calm, serene, gentle. And may we strive to touch and to know the great, common human heart of us all."

Barf!

If you're ever in trouble and need a policeman, don't waste time calling for help. Just go over in front of Patt Hall and start singing.

But make sure you're not off key—you just might be jailed.

Reporter Describes Party For Kentucky Villagers

By ROBERT MILNE

"No, I'm not going home for Christmas," the fourteen year old boy said as he gazed into space, his young face trying to hide the gloom he felt. "This is a real treat," he said smilingly.

Yet even with the smile I sensed that it was only a veneer that he and his 200 companions had acquired to cover up their feelings of anxiety and homesickness. I felt a surge of sympathy for all of them.

He started talking again. As I listened I sensed a kind of pathetic injustice that fate had played on him and his companions. I smiled as he walked away, but inside I felt weak. I couldn't help feeling that some of these kids were laughing for the first time in many months.

"This is the most fun I've had in 5 years," I overheard a boy say. Yet this party wasn't much — a few cokes, cookies and a juke box. There was to be a band, but they didn't show up.

The music started again and I watched as the barefooted teenagers started dancing. At first no one wanted to make the first move, but slowly a few moved down to the gymnasium floor. I was curious about a new dance step they were doing. I turned and spied a baby-faced little girl in the corner.

"What is that dance they're doing?" I asked. "Oh, that is what we call the chicken walk. Its something we learn to do to pass the time away. Would you like to try it?" she said laughing, but just then the music stopped. It was hard to realize that I had been here almost 2 hours and it was almost time for the party to end.

Finally everyone lined up to march out into the chilly night. At times I even forgot that this was more than just a regular high school Christmas party. I hoped they had too. "Thank you for such a fine party," a fifteen year old girl whispered as she walked by. "Was real great," another chimed in. Then everyone was gone.

I found it hard sleeping that night and all through the next day I couldn't forget the looks on those faces. I kept remembering how young they all looked and how much a little party like that meant to them. I wish I could do something for them. I wondered what Christmas would be like for them at Greendale Reformatory, called Kentucky Village.

THE PARTY LINE by Christie Vandergrift

Commercialization Of Christmas Is Sometimes Too Emphasized

On the last day before the Christmas holidays you . . . Find the suitcase that was packed when you came here won't expand enough to hold the things you've collected since then.

Try to locate that guy from your home town you knew in high school who's going to drive back; Can't find him and end up checking your baggage two minutes before the train is due to leave.

And, if you're a commuter, you go home as usual.

While things are still on the subject of Christmas, I didn't mean to eavesdrop, but not long ago I overheard some "oldtimers" talking the last time I was home. Talking about . . . oh, about Christmas when they were first married, the big tree they cut down on the farm. The family party to decorate it. About the funny, dear little present they gave each other.

Christmas isn't like that any more.

These days, Thanksgiving is the signal to put up municipal street decorations — lights, evergreens, grinning Santa Clauses. Even then, stores have been featuring Christmas decorations and slogans for a couple of weeks and almost every newspaper and magazine ad is "slanted" for the "holiday trade."

Every radio program is Christmas, Christmas, Christmas. Get this, get that, buy this, buy that—The songs really provide the Christmas spirit like "Jingle Bells Mambo" and "I'm Gettin' Nuttin' for Christmas."

Everything you hear and see serves as a reminder that you've got to send more presents to everyone this year. Expensive presents, most of them, because people sent you "nice" gifts last year. And cards must go out to everyone, of course. Nowadays it's really considered more polite to use a three cent stamp, too, than the minimum two-center.

Seems as though hardly anyone stops to remember the first Christmas present . . . the present that was given to all the world.

Semester Almost Over

Now that the semester is almost over, it seems almost impossible to comprehend where all those other weeks have gone. There really doesn't seem to be much time left to finish term papers, book reports, and take tests. If you're like me, you'll be taking home all sorts of books, with great intentions of doing this and doing that, but when January 3 rolls round, nothing much has been accomplished. Oh well, we're going to turn over a new leaf anyway.

At any rate, everyone have a very MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Amendment Passes

Whitehouse said that he was first notified by a freshman law student at 11:20 a.m., Wednesday, that there were no ballots at the College of Law.

Whitehouse notified Chauvin who said he would arrange to send some extra ballots from the Graduate School to the Law College.

Chauvin in turn told this to the law student, and also told him that a voting place would be set up by noon. However, this plan failed to materialize when it was discovered there was no sealed ballot box available. The one originally intended for the Law College had been sent to the Home Economics building to speed up voting in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Chauvin, in discussing the matter, said "I have all respect for anybody's right to vote. This certainly wasn't intentional." Chauvin also said he would ask SGA to have a special election.

Whitehouse called the difficulty "an oversight" and stated that it was "possibly the responsibility of the election committee."

Ken Harris, representative of the Barrister Party, said that it "amounted to an inexcusable gross oversight" and indicated that a formal protest would be lodged.

Harris pointed out that the matter of precedent is the important thing. He stated that "you can't allow an amendment to become part of the Constitution without allowing all students the right to vote on it."

The girl to be serenaded told the head resident, Mrs. W. B. Turner, the fraternity would probably serenade her on Wednesday night. The head resident told the girl that if it did happen she would call the police. Mrs. Turner said she was afraid it would disturb the dorm.

She informed Dean Leslie L. Martin that the boys were disturbing the dorm, and the girl did not want to come out on the porch for the serenade. Mrs. Turner then called the police to Patt Hall.

Members of the fraternity said they were not creating a disturbance and were merely serenading the girl. However, when the girl did start chanting her name. Before the ceremony was completed, the police arrived and told the group to leave.

The girl when contacted told a Kernel reporter that as soon as she was informed that she was being serenaded she immediately went to

Engineering Requirements Are Changed

Requirements for the Bachelor of Science degree in any of the five branches of engineering were changed by the University Faculty at a meeting this week, Dr. Robert L. Mills, registrar, said.

A student must now complete a minimum of 130 semester hours with a standing of 2. The old requirement called for 140 hours.

At the recommendation of the College of Engineering faculty, 13 courses were dropped from the engineering curricula and nine courses were added. Five of the courses dropped were incorporated into other courses.

Eleven courses were reduced in credit and five were increased in credit.

Curricula leading to the B.S. degree in the five branches of engineering were adjusted by the engineering faculty to fit the courses.

What's doing
at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft

Nowhere else can engineering graduates utilize their training more fully than in the rapidly evolving field of aircraft propulsion. Work is well under way on the development of even more advanced powerplants — jet, turboprop, nuclear.

Domestic Travel in the Age of Jet Transports

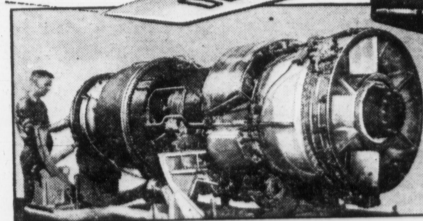

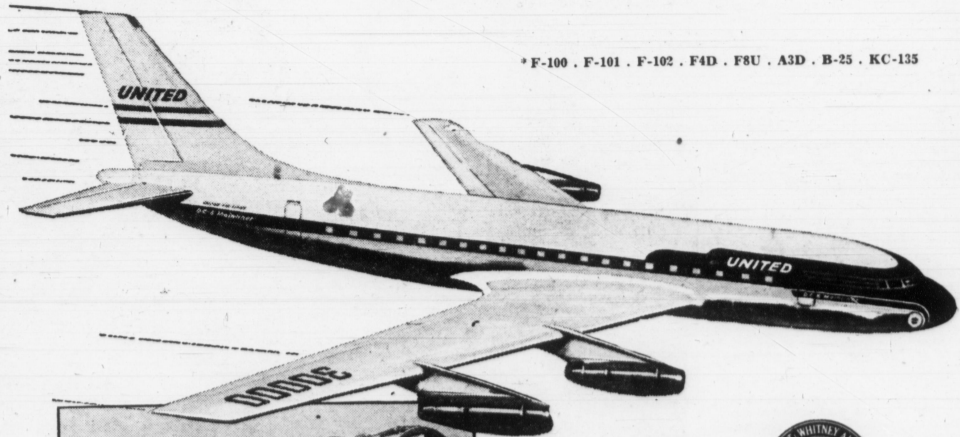

Starting in 1959, United Air Lines' flight time between Los Angeles and New York will be 4½ hours — between Chicago and New York, only 90 minutes. By placing the first contract order for jet transports to be used in domestic operations, United Air Lines has upheld its reputation as a pioneer in American air travel. Its new fleet of 30 Douglas DC-8 Clippers will be powered by the most powerful production aircraft engines in the world, J-57 turbojets, designed and developed by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft.

It is only a matter of time until jet transports are standard equipment along the air lanes of the world. The large majority of them will be powered by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft jet engines — an achievement of great significance.

A jet-turbine powerplant that develops 10,000 pounds of thrust — or more — involved some of the most complex problems of present-day engineering. A glance at the roster of today's J-57-powered military aircraft* is proud testimony to the success with which those problems were resolved by Pratt & Whitney Aircraft engineers.

* F-100 . F-101 . F-102 . F4D . F8U . A3D . B-25 . KC-135

Pratt & Whitney Aircraft J-57 Turbojet is blazing the way for a new generation of American aircraft. Already powering many of the most important types of military airplanes, the J-57 is now leading the world into an era of commercial jet transportation.

Professor Has Article Published

An article in "The North American Midwest" contributed by Dr. J. R. Schwendeman, head of the Geography Department, went to press Dec. 8.

His work was on the Lower Ohio Valley, which includes parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Published by John Wiley & Sons, it is the second in a series of regional geographies of the United States. The book is to be released soon; copies of the manuscript may be used as a reference or text for the next geography of Kentucky course.

Rogers Attends ROTC Conference

Col. Henry H. Rogers, professor of military science, has recently returned from ROTC conferences in the District of Columbia area.

The first conference was held at Ft. Meade, Md. and was attended by professors of military science and tactics of the Second Army Area, of which the University is a member.

The main topics of discussion at the first conference were ROTC policy and plans.

The second conference was held in the Pentagon. It was attended by a delegation of four FMS&T officers from each army area throughout the country. Each delegation made recommendations that were considered at the earlier area conferences.

The main topics of discussion at the second conference were changes in ROTC administrative procedures, unit staffing requirements, and the possible extension of ROTC units to include the training of officers for the Women's Army Corps. "This, however, is in the far-away future," Col. Rogers said of the last point.

"One of the main complaints brought up at the conference," he said, "was that all universities do not offer the same credit for ROTC work, nor do all colleges within a university offer the same credit."

He added that credit in some cases is given the student but that it does not count as an elective, forcing the student's hours required for graduation higher.

"Each army area's delegation reported how its area stood in training," Col. Rogers continued. "We can be proud of the record set by the men of the University. Every distinguished military graduate who has applied for a regular commission has been accepted; the average for the nation is one man accepted out of every seven who apply."

Ice Skating Rink Proposed

An ice skating rink may replace the Intramural Field in the not too distant future at UK. The idea for the rink was suggested by Dr. Earl Kauffman, Physical Education Department, at the Leadership Conference this fall.

Since then Kauffman and other faculty members and a group of students on campus have developed more concrete suggestions for the plan.

Dr. Merl Baker, mechanical engineering professor, has completed the preliminary engineering work on an outdoor rink, figuring it to be built on the Intramural Field. Baker stated that approximate costs at present for a field 100 by 250 feet would be $13,738.

This estimate, too, was with the assumption that the grade variation on the field not exceed six inches and that the rink be frozen from mid-November through March when the air temperature is 50 degrees F. or below.

Baker said that these costs were given by Brock-McVey Company and would be valid only if the University makes the installation without contractual agreement with an outside agency.

If a contractor is not employed, Baker is willing to do the engineering work. He stated that all work is of a preliminary nature and more details must be worked out before proceeding.

Dan Woodward, student who has worked with the faculty members on the plans, stated that the hope was that student organizations would contribute money toward the rink's construction. Several organizations he stated had been approached and won support with the promise of financial aid from a couple.

The present plan calls for students paying a fee for the use of the rink to cover operation costs. The main operation costs would be power, water, engineering service, and management. Students would be hired to do part of the work needed for the rink. Kauffman suggested that the physical education instructors give lessons.

Army ROTC Instructor Interviewed

By GRAYDON HAMBRICK

Maj. Elden Evans is a soft spoken native of Enid, Okla. He's an artillery officer who has been in the army for 15 years and who has served on both sides of the world. He is now a member of the Military Science Department.

In 1940 Maj. Evans was commissioned as a lieutenant in the National Guard. He was called to active duty with the outbreak of World War II and he was sent to England in 1943. There, he trained with Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army until his unit landed at Normandy shortly after the D-Day landings.

During the war he served in France and Germany, still under Gen. Patton's command. He recalled that Gen. Patton was a "fine soldier and leader."

After the war Maj. Evans was returned to the United States and discharged. He stayed out of the service for "about seven months," and went back into the Army in the early part of 1946. He has been on continuous active duty since then.

When the Korean conflict arose in 1950 Maj. Evans was stationed in Japan. He was sent to Korea in July, 1950 where he served until June, 1951 when he was returned to Ft. Sill, Okla. After a short tour of duty at Ft. Sill he was sent back to Germany where he served as a battalion executive officer under the command of the Seventh Army.

Maj. Evans believes that our servicemen in Germany are "well prepared and well trained."

His wife, Isabelle, his daughter, Carolyn, 11, and son, Donald, 3, were with him in Germany and they had "a lot of wonderful vacations together." They "saw a lot of interesting places," and they were all agreed on one point: "Zurich (Switzerland) was one of the most beautiful places we have ever seen."

Maj. Evans returned from Germany on Nov. 7, after three years there. He assumed his duties at the University on Monday, Dec. 12. He believes "from what I have seen of Lexington and the University" he will enjoy his first ROTC assignment.

Maj. Evans' family is with him in Lexington.

Dickey, Tabb Return From Conference

The United States Office of Education is expanding a research program and is getting representatives from colleges throughout the nation to give their views upon it.

Around The Turntable

By JOHN ALEXANDER

We promised more about the Christmas albums—here goes. The De Paur Chorus has released an excellent album of Christmas Carols, running toward the American folk music category, and it's on Columbia record. Leroy Anderson has done the same for Decca, with the exception that this is entirely instrumental, as is the Three Suns release on Victor. All three are 12" LP's, selling at $3.98.

Grand Award has again released one of the most consistent Christmas albums, "Chimes at Christmastime," featuring Lew White. A 12" LP, selling for $2.98, it includes most of the Christmas favorites.

For Christmas giving, we'd like to remind you of several best albums on the market—the Glenn Miller Air Force Band album, which we mentioned earlier, is excellent. Both Crosby boxes are tops, "Bing" and "Old Masters." Columbia is still going strong with both Benny Goodman and Carnegie Hall Concert albums.

At less expensive prices, among the standards, are the Goodman and Miller and Kenton 12" LP's, to say nothing of the fine series of Louis Armstrong on both Columbia and Decca. In 10" discs, the Columbia Houseparty Series is tops, that features the all-time great bands that have recorded for Victor.

On the vocal side, among the favorites, is the Bing Crosby 10" series on Decca, as well as the Bethlehem releases of Chris Connor and Helen Carr. Jaye P. Morgan's LP, 12" at $1.98, is well placed in the gift parade.

A hint about the 10" records—there is some word that they'll soon be discontinued, and for that reason many of the retailers are dropping price to $1.98.

A look at the top ten: "16 Tons," Tennessee Ernie; "Autumn Leaves," Roger Williams; "Moments to Remember," Four Lads; "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing," Four Aces; "He," Al Hibbler; "Only You," Hilltoppers; "Shifting Sands," Billy Vaughn; "I Hear You Knockin'," Gale Storm; "Love and Marriage," Sinatra; "Suddenly There's a Valley," Coe Grant.

And with that, we'll wish you all the merriest of Christmas, and the best of the coming year.

UK Applies For Property

The University and the Fayette County School Board have applied for sections of the 117½ acres of surplus property of the Veterans Administration Hospital.

W. C. Mitchum, assistant manager of the VA Hospital, said that the central office of the Veterans Administration had called for a survey earlier this year to determine the amount of surplus property contained in the government reservation. It was decided that a smaller section east of the reservation and a larger one on the west would be sold.

The University filed an application for all the surplus property and the Fayette County School Board applied for the smaller tract.

Dr. Frank J. Welch, dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, said the property would be used in animal husbandry and in the development of grasses and clovers.

According to J. B. Williams, director of the Kentucky Division of Property Utilization, the land could be sold to business and industry, but educational and health institutions would have the high priority. Schools and hospitals would be required to pay only the cost of transferring the property.

Owls Hand Kentucky First Loss

Temple University assumed the role of David the giant killer last Saturday night as they knocked off Goliath Kentucky 73-61 in the Wildcats' home opener.

This defeat was the first such loss in a home opener that has ever been inflicted on a Rupp coached Wildcat squad in his 26 years at UK.

Also, this was only the second home floor defeat the Wildcats have tasted since 1943. The other defeat was the stunning upset registered by Georgia Tech last season.

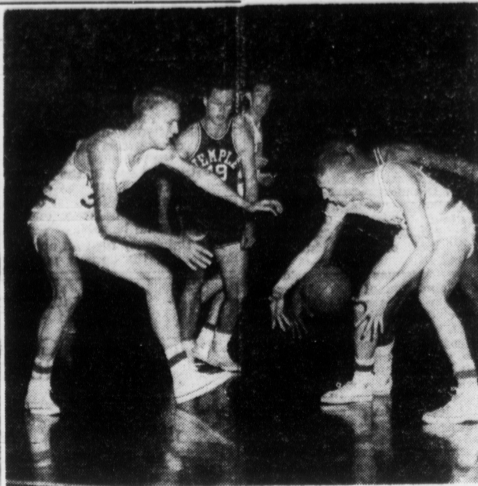

Kentucky was never in the game except for one brief dying spurt late in the second half when they pulled within three points of the hot-shooting Temple five.

The visitors quickly regained their composure however, and pulled away as the Cats suddenly chilled.

In the vital statistic department the Owls had all the better of it. Kentucky could manage only 20 buckets in 82 attempts for 21.7 average, while Temple canned 27 shots in 76 tries for a 35.6 game shooting average.

In the matter of rebounds, UK dominated in that department as they snared 79 rebounds to 55 for the visitors.

At the free throw line the Wildcats edged Temple by two points, hitting 21 of 34, while Temple scored 19 in 33 attempts.

Mystic Ball Trick

Kentucky and Temple players team up to perform a mystic ball trick in Memorial Coliseum, or that's the way it appears. Wildcat guard John Brewer and an unidentified Temple cager seem to have the object suspended in mid-air as Cat center Bob Burrow and the Owls Tink Van Patton (19) help out.

Cox Collects 35 Points As Kittens Win Opener

Coach Harry Lancaster's yearlings won their opening cage contest by defeating Lees Junior College, 87-65, in a preliminary tilt to the varsity battle with DePaul.

Johnny Cox, 6-4 center who last year guided Hazard to the state championship, led all scoring with 35 points.

Cox was followed by Billy Hill, a scholarship recipient from East Lynn, Ill., who scored 13 points. Sonny Cobb, former Lafayette cager, and Charles Webb of Lafayette, Tenn., each tallied 10 points in the night's effort. Saltee led the Lees attack with 22 points.

The Kittens were leading by only 10 points at halftime, 43-33. In the final quarter they netted 25 marks of reach and preserve the victory.

Sue Bennett Junior College will be the next opponent to face the freshmen. This game will take place Dec. 17 as a preliminary to the UK-Idaho contest.

ers while Lees could only collect 9. This was enough to put them out

Marston Is Victor

Jack Marston, PDT, captured the intramural handball singles title by defeating Ray Leist, SN, in the finals.

Marston's victory was especially pleasing because he was runner-up last year, losing to Pete Ayer, Ind., in the finals.

Flynn, Gilb Win Golf

Jim Flynn, KA, and Helen Vance Gilb, DDD, scored a 2 and 1 victory over Gene Neff, PKT, and Barbara Paxton, DDD, to win the intramural golf mixed doubles crown.

Utes Going Strong

The University of Utah basketball squad sent a lot of crying teams home last season with their high scoring fast break, and if the first three games of this year are any indication, then the Utes' 1956 opposition are also going to have some "B's" in their bonnets.

The "B's" are Arte Bunte, Gary Bergen, Morris Buckwalter and Ted Berner. So far this year these men have totaled 116 of the Red-skin's 285 points and have accounted for more than half of the rebounds with 101 of 198. Utah is a UKIT visitor.

Cats Escape Second Loss; Edge DePaul

By BILL HENRY

Kentucky's rebounding Wildcats edged DePaul's Blue Demons 71-69 last Monday night as Coach Adolph Rupp used 11 men in the wildly played contest.

When the final horn blew, four of the original five Wildcat starters were on the bench as the Baron injected reserves into the lineup in an effort to find a winning combination.

Both clubs played ragged and wild basketball as the lead changed hand 10 times and the score was knotted an equal number of times. The score was tied twice in the very closing minutes of play.

Second half play was featured by the outstanding, and at times, amazing outside shooting of Ron Sobieszcyk, Blue Demon forward.

Sobieszcyk was the high point producer for both clubs as he pumped 24 big points through the hoop.

Jerry Bird led the Cats with 16 tallies, the most important of which was a driving lay-up shot in the last 19 seconds of play to give his club the game.

Gerry Calvert, diminutive guard, brought fans to their feet in the

3rd Annual UKIT Begins Tuesday

Three nationally ranked teams from Utah, Dayton, and Minnesota, along with Rupp's Wildcats, will be featured in the third annual University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament set for Memorial Coliseum on Dec. 20-21.

Pairings for the opening night doubleheader pit Utah against Dayton and Minnesota against Kentucky.

The first game is set for the tip off at 7:30 p.m., followed by the nightcap at 9:20 p.m.

First night winner will meet the following night for the championship and losers for the consolation trophy.

Utah is currently ranked second in the nation. Dayton is one jump ahead of the Wildcats in fifth position, and Minnesota has just dropped from the first twenty.

However, the Gophers, who were edged out by Iowa last year for the Big Ten crown, have the same club back this season and are plenty tough.

Utah and Dayton are perhaps the toughest clubs in this year's tourney.

The Redskins of Utah last year wound up the season with a sterling 23-4 mark with two of those defeats to powerful San Francisco and the Wildcats.

Dayton can also boast a high caliber squad led by All-American Bill (seven-foot) Uhl.

Last season Dayton ended up as the ninth ranked team nationally and was runner-up in the NIT.

The UKIT, in its third year, is probably the finest holiday tournament of its kind in the nation.

It is also the first tournament of national scope ever presented in Lexington and consistently has top nationally ranked clubs playing for the crown.

Town Team Wins

Town Team defeated Kappa Kappa Gamma in the finals of the women's intramurals volleyball tournament, 42-27.

ENGINEERS, what's your opinion? Following the suggestion of Adolph Rupp that groups be organized to lend vocal support at UK's cage tilts, an engineering student has come up with another idea.

First, though, let's review Rupp's plan. He recommends that there be a setting up of two pep sections, one male and the other female. He hoped to have around 800-900 in each place.

General dissatisfaction to Der Baron's proposal was that males would be segregated from the ladies.

So, James Stamper puts forth this possibility.

Have the engineers, UK's second largest college, sit in a RESERVED section on the student side of Memorial Coliseum. The slide-rulers would not be alone though. They could have dates to sit with them in the reserved section which would naturally make the 'gang' more gigantic.

From the time that Memorial Coliseum's doors open until, say 7:15 p.m., a given part of the student side would be under reservation. But after 7:15 the remaining seat tickets would be first-come, first-serve.

Stamper sees the Engineering Council as the organizing factor. And from all indications (the football pep rally) they would have quite a turn-out he said.

Well, right now only one club sits together at the games, the K-Club. Their tremendous job plus the magnanimous support of engineers would draw considerable attention to both parties.

OK engineers, let's hear from you. How about it?

SOME teams participating in I-M basketball this year didn't have jerseys. UK's Intramural Department couldn't always furnish uniforms to these squads. This made it pretty tough on squads that did have the proper equipment but were forced to compete against a quint of "skins." Many fraternities and independent organizations at least could supply themselves with a sufficient number of shirts or jerseys.

If a club expects to engage in mural hardwood play it should provide itself with the proper equipment. Otherwise I-M competition ought to be limited to only those that can furnish acceptable uniforms.

HITTING a measly 29.5 per cent in field goals doesn't look like a Rupp coached team. Netting only 58.4 per cent in foul shooting is even worse. But that's the way Kentucky's Wildcats have been performing in their past trio of games.

Gerry Calvert is top scorer for UK with 37 points averaging 12.3 each contest. Cookie Gravenmeyer has pulled the most rebounds from the boards, a total of 45.

Also, check the scores of the last three tilts. Both UK and opponents have scored 194 points.

A lot of people wonder why the Kernel doesn't have Thursday night sport events in Friday's paper.

The answer is simple. The Kernel is printed Thursday afternoon but not distributed until the next morn. So, some news doesn't get into the sports columns and news columns. It kinda hurts us too! But, that's life.

Oh well, Merry Christmas.

I-M Swim Meet Rescheduled

An intramural swimming meet has been rescheduled for Jan. 9-11 because of the large number of entries that failed to meet the requirements of having two practices before the meet.

The change was decided by a unanimous vote of the I-M managers in a meeting with Bill McCubbin, I-M director, and UK Swimming Coach Algie Reece.

Originally, the meeting was to scratch swimmers and designate which events their entries should swim.

The meet was to be held Dec. 12-14 but due to many students preparing for the Christmas holidays the meet was changed.

Qualifying heats will be held at 5 p.m. Monday, Jan. 9, and the finals will take place the same time Wednesday, Jan. 11.
 McCubbin and Reece, supervisors of the meet, urged I-M managers to impress upon their swimmers that they will not be eligible to swim unless they work out twice in the Coliseum pool before the event and have a physical examination.
 Also the scoring system has been changed.

Meet Mr. Mills

Just Mention Temple— Then He Starts Hopping

By MARNEY BEARD

One of the highlights of Kentucky's young basketball season was when Ray Mills came off the bench against Temple to spark the Cats in their second-half surge with a 14-point outburst.

A 6-4 forward from Clay County High, Mills was not considered a regular at the beginning of the season, but he quickly thrust himself into contention for a starter's berth with his play against Temple.

Ray (or "Tiny" as he was known in high school), was born in Clay County, but went to high school his first two years at Oneida. He transferred to Clay County High his junior year and was one of Kentucky's outstanding prep hoopsters his next two years.

While a senior in high school, Ray scored 875 points in 36 games, with a single game high of 45 points. His Clay County team won 35 consecutive games that year, but lost to Lafayette in the State Tournament.

For his play that season, Ray was selected on the All-State team and nominated to play in three all-star games. In one of these schoolboy classics, the East-West game at Hazard, he garnered 23 points.

His freshman year at UK, Ray was high scorer for the frosh team with an 18.3 game average. Last year, although used only sparingly, he tallied 73 points.

Twenty-four of those 73 points, came in a single game spree at Philadelphia, where Ray again came off the bench to fire up UK against the same Temple team. He rates this game, which represents his highest individual point total

Independents End Play Of I-M Cage Tourney

Civil Engineers defended their independent basketball title when they played the Independent Cats in the tourney finals last night.

(The result of the final game was unavailable when the Kernel went to press.)

CE reached the final round by handing Newman Club I their initial loss of the season by 21-28.

Newman Club led at half 12-9, but could not hold their lead over CE. Harold Mays and Dick DeLozier hit for nine and seven points to lead the winners. Eddy Lassiter played his usual fine game tallying eight points.

Independent Cats continued to play good ball as they easily handed Mechanical Engineers 44-39 to reach the finals opposite CE.

High scorer for the winners was Dick Jordan, who hit the nets for 12 points. Bill Boone with nine and Jerry Vance with eight followed Jordan in the Cats' scoring column. Phil Shrohmeier scored 12 to lead the losers.

ME defeated the Sharp Shooters 44-38 to gain the semi-finals. Again it was Shrohmeier who led the ME attack, this time he garnered 11 points. Following Shrohmeier were Jerry King and Bobby Flynn, each with 12. Owen Lea paced Sharp Shooters with 14.

Independent Cats captured a high-scoring affair from the Cool H.A.'s, 56-48.

Bobby Flynn and George Gleason were high for the Cats with 10 points each. Smith tallied 15 points to take scoring honors for the losers, followed closely by Gene Grider's 13.

CE had little trouble in disposing of Dorm I 43-26 as Dick DeLozier's 18 points paced the winners. Steve Logan came behind DeLozier with 11 points. Gary Hicks was high for Dorm I, scoring 13 points.

Newman Club I earned the right to meet CE in the semi-finals by romping over EE 54-32. It was Newman Club's seventh straight win.

Ed Lassiter captured scoring honors by tallying 17 points, but he was pushed by teammate John Milton, who scored 16.

Independent Cats reached the semis by edging Clifton Cats 34-28.

The defeat was Clifton's first for the year.

It's PKT versus KA for this year's fraternity basketball championship.

But: (The PKT-KA title match was played last night, and the outcome was not available when the Kernel went to press.)

PKT and KA gained the final round by capturing thrilling semi-finals contests from SN and SAE.

Gene Neff's scoring talents and rebounding skill proved too much for a fighting SN quintet as PKT edged them 40-37.

Winners of the past two fraternity basketball tournaments, PKT had its hardest challenger in SN. PKT, led by Neff's 13 points, had a 23-20 lead at halftime, and then in the second half held their lead for a three point victory. Behind Neff in the PKT scoring column were Wes Johnson with 12 and Dorsey King with 11.

Jim Ingram's 15 points were tops for SN. Bob Bert and Ray Leist followed Ingram with 11 and 8 points respectively.

KA moved into the finals by conquering SAE, 51-45.

The game was decided on the boards and at the free throw line. KA completely out-rebounded the taller SAE team, and then tallied 23 points on the vital free throw line.

Dan Chandler led the KA attack with 13 points, but received good support from Short Sautley, who garnered 12, and Billy Heinz, who tallied nine.

Bennie Coffman took high scoring honors for SAE with 13. Don Crutcher scored 11 to follow Coffman.

PKT had no trouble in defeating ATO 41-23 in the quarter-finals.

Leading only 14-11 at intermission, PKT opened up in the second half to coast to victory. Neff's 21 point performance paced the winners.

King added eight points to the PKT cause to take runner-up scoring honors. Jack Burchett led ATO with 13.

KA gained semi-finals by coming from behind to down SX 42-37 in a thrilling contest.

DePaul

In the matter of statistics the Blue Demons hit a sizzling 42.9 per cent of their shots and an outstanding 84.3 per cent of their foul shots.

The Wildcats could do no better than wind up with a poor 32.9 per cent field goal average and a 65.3 free throw average.

Kentucky edged the visitors in the amount of rebounds, snaring 51 to DePaul's 46.

SX, by controlling the boards, led at halftime 21-14. Then with a well-balanced scoring attack, KA opened the second half with sharp-shooting and finally iced the contest in the closing moments of the game.

Jim Farris was high for KA with 10. Jim Flynn and Sautley each tallied nine points each to follow behind Farris.

Dwight Price, SX's center, led the losers with 14. Bill White gave Price good support in scoring 13.

Mills

Mills, who is 22, will graduate in June '57 with a degree in physical education. He hopes to either coach or enter into business in his home town of Manchester after graduation.

Tom Gola, LaSalle's great All-American, receives Ray's vote as the best player he has faced, while Utah, whom the Cats played in last year's UK Invitational Tournament is rated as the toughest team he played against.

Ray likes square dancing as his chief hobby, with hunting and fishing being a close second.

And for both Kentucky's opponents and fans who have been startled by seeing Ray consistently out-jump taller men—he is a high jumper on Kentucky's varsity track team.
