In Washington

*STW: Zumwinkle to attend
ASG conference*

By BONNI BROCKMAN, Kernel Staff Writer

University and college presidents, student government presidents and high-ranking officials of the Nixon administration will join in a three-way dialogue at the Presidents to Presidents Conference in Washington, D.C. Friday through Sunday.

Student Government President Scott T. Wendelsdorf and Dr. Robert Zumwinkle, vice president for student affairs, will participate in the conference sponsored by the Association of Student Governments (ASG). The association is a predominantly southern group which broke away from the National Student Association in the early 1960's.

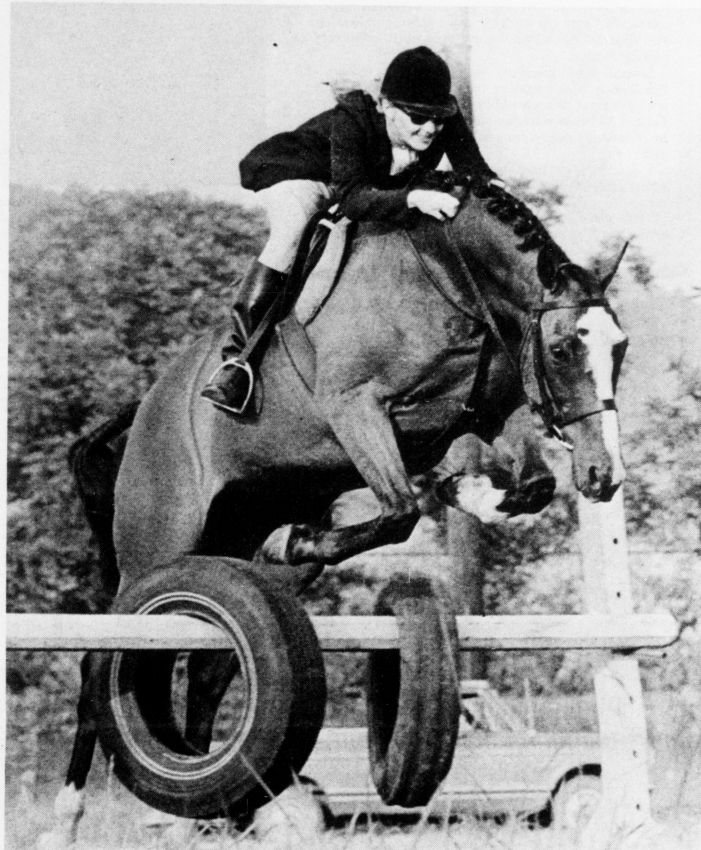

Zumwinkle will represent President Otis Singletary who will be unable to make the trip.

"I think this will be a worthwhile opportunity to feel out the leaders of this administration," Wendelsdorf said, "and to learn about the thought processes involved in developing their policies."

Speakers at the conference include Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney, Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton, and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Elliot Richardson. Senators George McGovern, Edmund Muskie and Hubert Humphrey will also speak.

By attending the conference Wendelsdorf will be eligible to attend the National Student Congress in February, when student body presidents from throughout the nation will draft formal political position papers and legislation.

Although not a member of ASG, UK was invited to attend the conference as were the other major southern schools.

SMC to march on Federal Youth Center

By DALE MATTHEWS, Assistant Managing Editor and
CHARLOTTE POSTLEWAITE, Kernel Staff Writer

The Student Mobilization Committee (SMC), met Wednesday night to discuss plans for the march on the Federal Youth Center this Saturday in Ashland.

Lexington Mayday, Lexington Peace Council, the Morehead Student Mobilization Committee and SMC are sponsoring a demonstration by Kentuckians at the prison to correspond with the national effort.

David Walls, co-ordinator of the UK marchers, said the demonstrators may not be allowed onto prison property.

Walls said plans had been made with the prison officials in Ashland to allow the demonstration to take place within the prison walls earlier, but that a directive from the Federal Bureau of Prisons has forbidden such activities Oct. 2 because of an alleged "national conspiracy to ferment insurrection" by federal prisoners.

"We're going to check with the sheriff's office first," said a SMC member.

"We don't know anything definite about the march around the prison until we check with them first . . . we're going to try to avoid arrest."

Morale is still high among the SMC protesters. When asked what activities were planned for Saturday night, a student simply answered, "We'll probably just be sitting in jail picking splinters out of our heads."

Walls said there would definitely be a rally in Ashland's central park, during a meeting held Tuesday to explain the march. He also said plans for the march to the prison would be dependent upon the Ashland prison officials and the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

In addition to the national reasons for demonstrations, which include parole reforms and an end to U.S. support of South Vietnamese tiger cages, Walls cited particulars for the Kentucky demonstration.

Show of sympathy

According to Walls, one of the major reasons for the Ashland march is to show sympathy for 42 demands of the 66 women prisoners now reposing in the Kentucky prison because of an incident at the Alderson federal prison in West Virginia.

The women allegedly were leaders in a work stoppage, hunger strike demonstration at Alderson.

The 42 demands came in the form of a petition circulated to the 600 women at Alderson. Three hundred and seventy-eight of the inmates signed the petition and others expressed support for the move but were afraid to sign because of fear of reprisals from the parole board.

UK people going to the rally in Ashland central park and possibly to the prison will leave from the Student Center parking lot Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Drug Center organizers want student control

By DAN RHEA, Kernel Staff Writer

"Student control is advantageous to establishment control," said Student Government President Scott Wendelsdorf last night. He was discussing, with sophomore philosophy major Rayner Scott and other volunteers, the terms of a possible grant from the Comprehensive Care Center (CCC), to help set up a UK drug information center.

The CCC in Lexington offers treatment for drug problems with the aid of physicians, psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers and nurses.

Wendelsdorf said negotiations with CCC for a cash grant to operate the center and still retain freedom from CCC control were "still up in the air." He said the talk's biggest problem involved the extent to which CCC will be involved in the actual operation of the clinic.

"I would much rather see an operation where the group received a bloc grant from Comprehensive Care," Wendelsdorf said.

He said an organization run completely by students would be more credible to potential users of the clinic than one run partially by an "establishment" group such as Comprehensive Care.

If CCC were involved in the operation of the clinic, Wendelsdorf asked, "why would a person paranoid enough not to go to Comprehensive Care come to us?"

EAS wants UK land for recreation area

By DEBBIE PHIPPS
Kernel Staff Writer

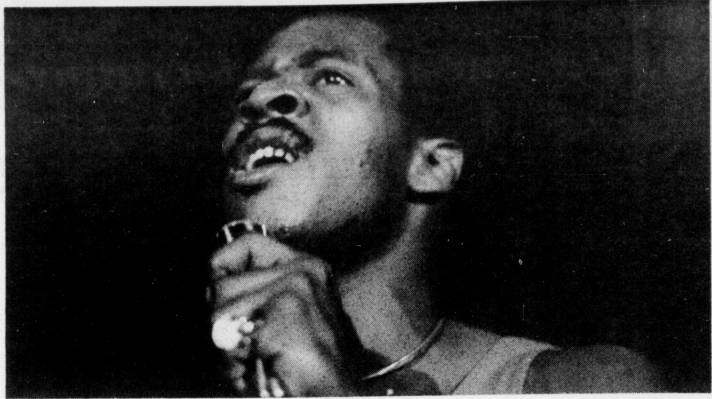

The Environmental Awareness Society (EAS) voted Wednesday night to send a letter urging the University to make a recreational facility out of a UK-owed lot.

The letter, addressed to Lawrence Forgy, vice president for business affairs, recommends that UK turn a two-acre lot on Virginia Avenue into a recreational area for students and residents of that area. The University has tentative plans to turn the lot into a parking facility.

Several EAS members met with Dr. Robert G. Zumwinkle, vice president for student affairs Tuesday, and discussed the possibility of UK purchasing Indian Falls, a 145-foot waterfall surrounded by a wooded area in Jessamine County, for a nature study or a recreational area.

Indian Falls has been used as a picnic-camping area for years. Recently pollution has become a problem in the area.

"This place," said Roger Westman, vice president of EAS, "needs to be cleared of garbage and turned into a nice recreational place for people."

The Persuasions entertained an enthusiastic crowd last night at the Student Center Board Coffeehouse held in the Student Center Grand Ballroom. Jerry, the lead singer, told the members of the audience that the group would like to perform for them again. (Staff photo by Ken Wilson)

Right on Spiro . . .

We love Spiro Agnew, really we do. He is a source of constant amazement and amusement. You might say he brightens up our day with his cryptic, poly-syllable utterances.

So, because we love him, we aren't going to call his recent statements about the Attica Prison riot asinine.

We aren't going to say that his intemperate attack on the media reports of the riot seriously undermine the free press of this country.

We aren't going to comment on his charge that the media is trying to transform the senseless killings at Attica into, "yet another cause celebre in the Pantheon of radical revolutionary propaganda," mainly because we don't know what that means.

We won't offer any "querulous criticism" (another Agnewism) of his praise for Gov. Rockefeller "for the courageous action he took in ending the confrontation after exhausting all practicable alternatives."

And we won't say that he is engaging in the lowest form of the politics of fear when he claims that, "Now the name 'Attica' joins the list of geographic place names and slogans whose very utterance, in the litany of anti-American hate preached by radical propagandists, is a dagger at the heart of our country's free institutions."

We won't do any of this because we love you Spiro and we think you're doing one hell of a great job.

Women's rights

Complaint may begin a revolution

At least it seems that something will be done about the status of women at UK. If HEW (Health, Education and Welfare) lives up to its past record, coming down heavy on institutions found guilty of sex discrimination, UK women may have a brighter future in store for them. And the administration may have to be contemplating and acting on some major realignments and changes.

The national office of WEAL (Women's Equity Action League), has said that UK's situation is one of the worst they have ever seen. Women at UK could have told them that the situation was intolerable a long time ago. The figures of the report reinforce these assumptions.

It is inexcusable that women make up only 9.4 percent of the full-time faculty. That percentage is not due to the lack of qualified women, however. It is due to the failure of UK and other large-scale employers to recruit and train eligible women.

Yet even this is not the essential root of the problem. The foundations of today's unequal status for women at UK were laid years ago. It began when men decided that women were designed to bear children and little else. From that came the notion that she was ill-equipped for anything else, so she must be content with her child-rearing activities and leave the rest of the doings of society up to the more versatile male of the species.

These basic belief systems have continued up until the present day. Their effects are far-reaching and fundamentally damaging to the majority of our society.

With the filing of the WEAL complaint we are witnessing a small part of a larger movement (perhaps we should correctly say, revolution) that will eventually bring this society to a point where it redefines its concepts of womanhood and moves to correct permanently the injustices suffered for so long.

We have no doubt that the investigating committee of HEW will find that UK has been practicing sex discrimination. We just hope that UK acts quickly and fairly in establishing permanent corrective measures. That is the first step.

Abortion comment

Abortion was commented on by Ellen Rodman in Monday's Kernel. She pointed out that Kentucky law says the fetus is human and has all human rights. The law may say this but since a fetus which aborts naturally (miscarriage) is not counted as a death and since surgical abortions can be performed if the mother's life is threatened (according to enough doctors, that is), I don't think the law can be interpreted as treating a fetus as human.

Also, Ms. Rodman points out that we are learning to be concerned about the rights of various people we've "tended to overlook." She's right. And one of these groups to be considered is the woman who, through ignorance, apathy, or accident, suddenly has to bear and care for a child she never intended to have.

There is much more to making a human being than merely carrying a fetus for nine months. Even asking a woman to do this unwillingly is bad enough because involuntary servitude has long been considered wrong. To force a woman to put in nine months carrying a fetus and then insist that she give it up for adoption (not knowing what will become of it) or force her to spend the next 18-21 years in giving it daily care when she has neither the ability nor the desire to do so is completely irresponsible.

Those who claim to be concerned about the rights of the fetus will never convince me until all of our now living children are given all the medical care, food, clothing, education, shelter and love and acceptance they need. When groups that scream "right to live" work twice as hard on caring for youngsters, then I'll believe them.

In the meantime, I believe it is my right to decide whether I am able to carry and care for any child I might conceive.

Liked karate story

I was in the process of writing you a letter of complaint because the Monday, Sept. 20, Kernel's report of the National Karate Tournament showed only some pictures of missed control. After reading Robert Matlow's report of the tournament in the Tuesday, Sept. 21, Kernel, my complaint has changed to a commendation. Matlow did an excellent job of reporting the spirit and excitement of the tournament.

In a letter to Gov. Nunn

RJW asks for a larger room for Board meetings

Rebecca Westerfield, student government vice president, has asked Gov. Louie B. Nunn to move the Board of Trustees meetings to a room large enough to accommodate more spectators.

Ms. Westerfield said in a letter made public Tuesday that she was denied admission to last week's meeting because spectator space ran out. This happened despite her office as vice president which makes her an "alternate member" of the board she said.

Westerfield stressed in her letter that she was not asking for any special privileges because of her position. She added "any student or Kentucky citizen" should be able to attend the meeting.

Ken Brandenburg, associate dean of students, confirmed that Westerfield had been barred from the meeting. He said Westerfield probably should be permitted to attend meetings because of her office but that meeting time was "a little late to make special arrangements."

Brandenburg said she could make arrangements to attend meetings by making a request at the dean of students office at any time. He was less sure that special efforts should be made to admit ordinary students and taxpayers.

Brandenburg added that 126 students had watched the meeting on closed circuit television and he assumed most of them had tried to get into the board room.

He doubted that the meeting site would change.

A spokesman for Gov. Nunn's office said he had not seen the letter and would probably have no comment. "It's a decision the board would have to make," the spokesman said.

Since CCC is the only realistic source of funds for a drug clinic at this time, Ms. Scott said priority of the clinic should be an agreement with it.

Besides financial matters, the major problem facing the clinic involves volunteers, Scott said. She said she has found many people who originally intended to volunteer have dropped out.

She also said the volunteers would undergo training sessions run by professionals, including psychiatrists and physicians. One of the problems the training sessions may have to cover is the possibility of clinic workers making life-or-death decisions for the people who come there.

Later in the meeting, Scott said one reason for Student Government involvement in the operation was to get better publicity and more volunteers to work at the clinic.

However, she warned against soliciting aid from established businesses or sources of money. She said if a business contributed to the clinic, it could want to control the clinic.

'Radical Man' exposes everyone

Book Review: "Radical Man" by Charles Hampden-Turner, Anchor Books, Garden City, NY. 508pp. $2.95.

By RON WEINBERG

Doubtless numerous books and texts exist which deal with psycho-social development and its impact on various contemporary social and political problems. Most are cumbersome, indexed or footnoted affairs with a good deal of theory and disappointingly little substance.

Fortunately, this condition has now been somewhat remedied by an expatriate British intellectual named Charles Hampden-Turner whose latest work, "Radical Man," is likely to have a profound effect on the modern intellectual community.

Topic is not limited

"Radical Man" does not concern itself with a topic as limited as campus malcontents or political crackpots. It is about everyone, be he a factory worker or a corporation president; and within the text is set down an operational model which incisively predicts or explains the behavioral patterns of the complete human spectrum of personalities.

While this model is complicated to explain unless the book is read, it must be emphasized that one reading of this text will create an extreme dissatisfactory curiosity which will in turn require a second examination.

The reason for this lies in the fact that Turner has developed within the interstices of his work a unique perspective from which previously complex, seemingly unrelated problems fit into a unified, cohesive picture like the pieces of a giant jigsaw.

Reasons "obvious"

The reason for radical dissent on campus suddenly becomes obvious as does the action of the administrators. Old paradoxes and resolved conflicts literally melt away as all doubt falls by the wayside. The true substantive nature of the conservative, the moderate, the liberal and the radical are suddenly obvious.

And yet the feeling is not clinical. One does not feel he has psychoanalyzed them all and can cast them aside like the crystal of an old watch taken apart out of sheer curiosity.

Rather, these members of the political spectrum are understood as human beings and can be observed in their natural habitat with a full understanding of what may happen.

Despite all his perspective and intuitive incisiveness, Turner makes no secret of where his sympathies lie. He is obviously a radical or very left-leaning liberal and if his theories are correct, he has good reason.

In test after test recorded in the book, radicals and liberals are found to be more "people oriented" and compassionate than are conservatives. The latter, Turner contends, not only tend to bind themselves blind with routine and ritual but reflect this type of approach in the cold and subjective way they treat those individuals with whom they deal.

Cadets "conquer" women

For example, studies show that ROTC cadets are more likely than their liberal counterparts to treat females as objects to be sexually conquered. Liberals are more likely to treat women with compassion and form more lasting and emotionally meaningful relationships.

Turner brilliantly traces the personality of the conservative from politics to all forms of people-people interaction and the results are stunning. Again, this is the result of an extraordinary approach which views man as a whole being subjected and reacting to a continuum of emotional events. A careful reading of the book makes the success of this approach obvious.

SCB plans drama group

Have you ever daydreamed of staging "Hamlet" as a musical? Or appearing in a UK theatrical production as something other than an extra in a crowd scene? Or seeing your own play produced? An opportunity for fulfilling those dreams is in sight.

The Student Center Board Dramatic Arts Committee has originated a plan for a new performing theatre group because they want to give students interested in acting, directing, producing, writing or staging more chances to develop and exhibit their talents, according to Chairman Peggy Kennedy.

The performing theatre's organizational meeting will be held Sept. 30 at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center Theatre. Students interested in participating, but unable to attend the meeting should leave their names in Room 203 Student Center.

Defends SEC title

Cross-country team opens

By MARTY BAUER
Kernel Staff Writer

The UK cross-country team, defending SEC champions, open their 1971 season Saturday in Lexington against the University of Cincinnati.

The team is led by senior Paul Baldwin, the SEC co-champion and record holder. Baldwin, along with the former UK distance runner Vic Nelson, who graduated in May, traveled the four-mile course in the time of 18 minutes and 26.8 seconds to win last year's title.

"Baldwin came back in good shape," said Coach Press Whelan. "But as a team we have a lot of work to do."

By work, Coach Whelan is referring to miles. Baldwin at the present runs over 120 miles a week.

With the absence of Nelson, a two-time SEC cross-country champion and three-time SEC three mile winner, Whelan still feels that his team is a contender.

"We are going to miss Vic, but I think this year's team has more potential ability than last year. We have much more depth," said Whelan.

Four new runners
Among the newcomers to the team is Wayne Chromer, a transfer student from Allegheny Community College. He is a junior All-American with best times of 4:10 in the mile and 9:10 in the two-mile.

Also joining are Jeff Smith from Chaminade High School in Dayton, Ohio; Brad Swope, a former marine and graduate of Louisville Westport High School and Steve Potts, state two-mile champion from Owensboro.

Returning from last season's championship team are Baldwin, sophomore Rick Hill, junior Mike Haywood and senior Don Weber. Haywood placed in the three-mile run in the SEC meet in May and has run a 9:06 two-mile.

UK will be out to avenge a three-point defeat from Cincinnati last year, but the team's main objective is to be ready for the SEC meet Nov. 15 in Birmingham.

"Our goal is to win the conference. We want to repeat. We're a conference oriented team. Our guys run best in the big meet as seen in the past few years," he said.

Vols, Tide strong

Whelan also pointed out that the opposition is going to be tough this year. "Tennessee and Alabama both have strong teams. They want to show us that last year was a fluke, and we want to show them that it wasn't," he said.

Anyone interested in attending the meet should meet at the Sports Center at 10:30 Saturday morning for directions to the course.

Seat blocks available

Registered student organizations and residence hall units by floors desiring 30 or more tickets together to UK home football games may send one representative to get all tickets.

A representative of the organization can go to the Blue Room in Memorial Coliseum between 8:30 a.m. and 9 a.m. on the Monday preceding home football games.

He must bring ID and activity cards for each student and a spouse book or check for each non-student guest desiring a ticket in that organization's group. Checks for each guest ticket should be made payable to "University of Kentucky Athletic Association" for $7.

The representative must bring all cards, checks and spouse books in a secured container appropriately marked with the organization's name.

In addition, he must bring a request form, completed in duplicate, signed by the organization's president or the residence hall's corridor advisor and also a list of the names of those members and guests requesting tickets.

The representative will be given a receipt which will be needed to pick up the tickets at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Room 23C in Memorial Coliseum.

Order of distribution of tickets will be determined by lottery.
