Harper says he's closing in on Wilkinson

By C.A. DUANE BONIFER
Associate Editor

John Harper "missed out" getting a college degree. If he is elected governor, however, he said he will see that anyone who wants a college degree will get one.

"This institution is guaranteed in the Harper administration," Harper told about 75 people in 206 Student Center. "We will continue the amount of funding and hopefully more if the financial situation improves."

The Bullitt County state representative said if people are better educated, they will be able to have better jobs. Consequently, he said, the state's overall economy will improve.

With less than four weeks to go until the Nov. 3 general election, Harper said he is gaining ground on his opponent, Democrat Wallace Wilkinson.

According to Harper, a poll commissioned by the Republican National Committee and conducted by American Viewpoint revealed that people have "huge negative responses to Wilkinson."

Harper said 602 Kentucky voters were polled.

Law school receives donation of computer

UK's College of Law received a $100,000 state-of-the-art computer gift, making it the first law school in the nation to have a computerized law office.

Wang Laboratories gave $85,000 in computer hardware and software along with a gift of $75,000 in specialized programs donated by Informatics Legal Systems, a leading software supplier to the legal profession.

At a press conference yesterday announcing the joint gift, UK President David P. Roselle said, "It's the most technological innovation known in the modern world. Every couple of years, the information available to students doubles... this (computer) allows the retrieval of information and management tools."

The computer is a Wang VS65 which will enable students to have a unique legal education and gain experience using modern tools.

"Five years ago, I don't think we had a single piece of computing equipment in the law school. With this gift, we made great strides toward using computers in the education of our students," said Robert G. Lawson, UK College of Law dean.

Included in the new computer are functions of word processing, billing

Octoberfest features German band, food

By ANDREA BIDDLE
Staff Writer

North campus will be hosting the annual Octoberfest Saturday in the campus courtyard.

Students are in for a real treat, said Octoberfest coordinator Kim Gehlert, a resident adviser from Keeneland Hall. Several activities have been planned during the day, including live entertainment from a German band fully clad in traditional native attire. Students can also sample a wide variety of German cuisine, including bratwurst, pretzels and potato salad.

The excitement begins at 3 p.m. and all campus students are urged to participate.

Each dorm has planned to set up a booth to help raise funds for improving handicapped facilities in the north campus residence halls, Gehlert said.

A dunking booth, egg toss, banana-split eating contest and a ping-pong toss are just a few of the activities planned. Keeneland Hall will be sponsoring the dunking booth with RA's as the dunkees. Holmes Hall is featuring the egg toss event again due to its popular success last year.

Got a roommate you'd like to throw in jail? Boyd Hall will supply the cell for its booth, but the "prisoner" provides the bail. Patterson Hall will sponsor the ping-pong toss and Blazer Hall plans to sell character drawings and homemade buttons.

Anyone with a sweet tooth won't want to miss the banana-split eating contest sponsored by Jewell Hall and White Mountain Creamery.

The halls also plan to combine efforts later in the day with a game of Twister, the expanded version.

A disc jockey will be spinning records from 4 to 7 p.m. as the celebration winds down.

Food Service changes to serve students

By SEAN ANDERSON
Senior Staff Writer

Students returning to campus this fall were greeted — some may say confronted — with a number of changes in the way they get meals.

The work done in the Student Center and Blazer Hall this summer are the latest, and most obvious, examples of Food Service's new plans for feeding students on campus.

The most controversial change occurred in Blazer Hall. There the cafeteria was abolished and the Blazer Trail grill turned into an a la carte restaurant, the Courtyard Restaurant. The former cafeteria area was turned into Blazer Exchange, a convenient grocery store.

The Exchange also contains the Pizza Company North and sells deli sandwiches.

Initially, the Blazer change met with strong criticism from some North Campus residents. They didn't feel the restaurant and store were adequate compensation for a cafeteria.

Robert Braun, director of Food Services, said that while he expected some dissatisfaction with the moves, he "didn't expect the vehemence" of the negative response. He said despite all the talk and planning with student committees last year, he knew there would be some people displaced and he is "not happy about that" nor about the fact that North Campus students must now walk to Donovan Hall for cafeteria service.

UK students have many eating options to choose from due to recent renovations performed by Food Services over the summer. The Student Center Food Court and grill (bottom photo) has a pizza stand, coffee & sweet shop, a deli plus several other types of food, including pasta and fried chicken. The convenience store in Blazer Hall (top photo) is a combination sundry-grocery store. They sell everything from batteries to M&M's.

restaurant saw a 33 percent increase. Richard Clark, assistant director of Food Service, said the new Blazer system is working and has received a positive response. "In my 20 years in Food Service this is the most positive response we've ever gotten," he said. "This is an idea whose time has come."

Clark said the name of the restaurant was changed to Courtyard Restaurant in order to emphasize the change in decor. Much of the work isn't done yet, but Clark said new furniture and decorations will fit with the name change. He said the restaurant plans for an outside dining area in the spring. The cafeteria dining area has been converted into a lounge with

U.S. helicopters sink 3 Iranian patrol boats

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. helicopter gunships sank three Iranian patrol boats in the Persian Gulf yesterday after an American observation helicopter was fired upon without provocation, the Pentagon said.

It was the second American military engagement in the region since the United States attacked an Iranian ship laying mines on Sept. 21, and the first to involve a direct attack on U.S. forces by Iran.

Officials said no Americans were hurt in the confrontation. At least six Iranian crewmen survived the assault and were picked up from the gulf's waters by a U.S. patrol boat, said Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman.

Two of the six later died, and another was said to have serious injuries. Hoffman added that a search for other survivors was continuing.

President Reagan was informed of the incident by Lt. Gen. Colin L. Powell of the National Security Council staff. Powell went to the Oval Office at 3:30 p.m. EDT to brief Reagan, said presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater. He said the president would be updated on developments as warranted.

"It appears was an isolated incident," Fitzwater said. "We did not provoke the incident in any way.

Our helicopters acted in self-defense because they were fired upon."

He said the administration would review the incident in terms of the War Powers Act, which if invoked, gives Congress a say in whether American forces could remain in the region. The administration has refused to invoke the law over the Persian Gulf deployment.

Fitzwater said the act is reviewed every time there is an incident and "will be after this incident, as well, but there are no preliminary judgments to make other than we will comply with the spirit of the resolution by giving full and detailed consultations to the Congress."

Asked if the Iranians picked up from the water would be returned home, Fitzwater noted that the United States repatriated Iranians who were captured from the mine-laying boat.

"I think the other incident is instructive of our general attitude, but I just couldn't go beyond that," Fitzwater said. Hoffman said the incident occurred 9:50 p.m. local time in the gulf (2:50 p.m. EDT). He said the American helicopters were flying in international airspace and mounted the attack "within the rules of engagement in self-defense."

Hoffman said he didn't know how many helicopter gunships took part

Rebels set to invade Wildcat territory

By TOM SPALDING
Staff Writer

You can't blame the Mississippi Rebels if they're just a little disappointed in the way the fall has gone on the gridiron.

After all, anybody would have been optimistic. The Rebels were returning 18 starters from last year's 8-3-1 squad that had beaten Southeastern conference champion LSU and was just six points from a Sugar Bowl trip themselves.

In the preseason, Mississippi was picked third in the tough SEC. Hopes were high. So were spirits.

But the Ole Miss team that will roll into Commonwealth Stadium tomorrow is a different team than the one people were forecasting for greatness at the beginning of the year.

Just 1-4 after five games, many fans are already packing it in and some have even suggested that Ole Miss is just playing out the schedule. The Wildcats disagree.

"Their record doesn't give them any justice," said senior linebacker Jeff Kremer. "They're on probation and need to be dragging their heads just a bit."

The oddsmakers are leaning on the Rebels' record. Kentucky is even a six-point favorite to win the game. But then, the Cats were favored last year and they left Mississippi with a

ABOUT THE GAME

Matchup: Mississippi, 1-4, vs. Kentucky, 3-1.
Time: 7:30 p.m. Saturday.
Place: Commonwealth Stadium.

TV Coverage: Tape delay on WKYT-TV at 11:30 p.m. with Cawood Leford and Rob Bromley.

33-13 defeat. Don't think UK has forgotten.

"If somebody beats our tail, they better bring another board with them," UK offensive guard Butch Wilburn said. "We're just excited. I wish we played them before Saturday."

"We went down there and they totally embarrassed us," UK offensive tackle Greg Kunkel said. "We didn't play with any intensity. They were all jacked up and took it to us."

UK expects Mississippi to try and take it to them in the air tomorrow night. Rebel quarterback Mark Young has already completed 90 passes for 940 yards. UK quarterbacks Kevin Dooley, Glenn Fuhr and Bill Allen have not attempted that many passes (76).

The Wildcats are far superior on the ground — at least on paper. UK leads the SEC in total offense, rushing the ball 222 times in four games. Ole Miss, in five games, has run the ball just 183 times. The Wildcats are averaging 471 total yards a game compared to 382.4 for Mississippi.

The key to the game, though, could be who gets penalized the most. Last week the Wildcats drew the yellow flags 13 times for 105 yards.

"We got to improve on the penalties," UK coach Jerry Claiborne said. "We got some personal fouls and we don't want them to occur. We need to have better concentration."

Concentration was the big problem for the Cats in last year's game in the 33-13 loss. UK was penalized 13 times for 105 yards and turned the ball over four times.

"We came in there with our heads up and got them knocked off," UK running back Mark Higgins said.

The blowout seemed to send both teams in different directions. UK went on to finish with four losses in six games. Ole Miss got cranked up

"If somebody beats our tail, they better bring another board with them. We're just excited. I wish we played them before Saturday."

Butch Wilburn,

and went on to win five of their last six.

Tomorrow night's game could be pivotal again. At 3-1, UK has a shot at a successful season. The Rebels have sputtered all year. But a win over UK could turn the key to the Ole Miss engine.

"We're not going to take their record lightly," Kunkel said. "Something has got to be wrong and they're going to put it together sometime."

The Wildcats just hope that time is next week.

Tickets available

About 1,000 student tickets are still available for tomorrow night's football game. Students can pick up two tickets at Room 3 at Memorial Coliseum between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. by presenting two validated student IDs.

National statistics

After four games, Kentucky is still among the national leaders in several statistics. Higgins is ninth in rushing with an average of 122.5 yards per game and 17th in scoring with an average of nine points per game. The Wildcats rank fourth in total offense with an average of 471.8 yards per game and 19th in scoring offense with 29.3 points per game.

The UK defense is ranked third in total defense, yielding just 218.8 yards per game. The Cats are third in rushing defense (61.8) and fourth in scoring defense (8.5).

Wildcat upsets

On Sept. 26, 1984, the Rebels were ranked No. 1 in the nation and played host to the Wildcats. But UK quarterback Rick Norton hit split end Rick Kester for three touchdown passes and the Cats upset Ole Miss, 27-21.

One day and five years later, the Rebels came to Still Field in Lexington led by star quarterback Archie Manning. Mississippi left the victim of another upset, 10-9.

Wildcats hear call of the trail

Staff reports

The UK volleyball team will put its No. 10 ranking and 10-1 record on the line this weekend when it hits the road for two non-conference matches.

The Lady Cats will meet Notre Dame at 7:30 p.m. tonight in South Bend, Ind. The Fighting Irish are 14-3.

UK then heads to Kalamazoo, Mich., for a Saturday match with the 10-2 Broncos of Western Michigan.

The Wildcat cross country teams will be taking their spikes to Bloomington, Ind., tomorrow for the Indiana Invitational.

The UK baseball team will remain home but also on the field at Shively. Today, the Wildcats host a double-header with Marshall University beginning at 3 p.m. UK concludes its fall season with another double-header at home tomorrow. The Cats host Miami of Ohio with the action starting at 1 p.m.

MEASLES ALERT

An Important Message To All U.K. Students From The Director Of The Student Health Service

We Are Trying To Prevent A Measles Epidemic At The University of Kentucky!

From 1963-1970 many children were vaccinated with "killed virus" vaccines that unfortunately did not give long lasting immunity. Therefore many college students who were vaccinated during these years are NOT immune.

This situation has led to some serious measles epidemics on college campuses over the past three or four years. These epidemics occurred at neighboring universities such as Indiana, Purdue and Miami of Ohio in addition to many other colleges nationwide.

For this reason the Student Health Service is conducting a measles immunization clinic:
WHEN: Tues., Oct. 15th and Wed., Oct. 16th

WHERE: STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE, MEDICAL PLAZA BUILDING (the entrance to the building is just beyond the overhead bridge across Rose Street from the University Hospital), 1st floor (look for the WILDCAT BLUE DOOR).

TIME: 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

COST: FREE TO STUDENTS

THERE IS NO HARM IN RECEIVING A SECOND IMMUNIZATION IF THERE IS ANY DOUBT ABOUT YOUR IMMUNITY. (Students born before 1957 do not need further immunization because they would be considered exposed to natural measles and would be expected to have natural immunity).

Protection of the University of Kentucky student body requires 100% participation. Please give this matter your prompt attention. We need your cooperation to assure that U.K. does not experience a measles epidemic in this and future years.

TURNTABLE TALK

After Monday's overwhelming response from the student body to a phone survey in which 78 percent of the students polled agreed to help fund a campus radio station, Radio Free Lexington's General Manager Scott Ferguson has reason to sing. So what is he singing?

Favorite Album: "Songs in the Attic" by Billy Joel. "It's got a lot of his more rebellious songs on it," says Ferguson. "That was before he met Christie Brinkley and he was not doing all of the love songs he is now."

'Singin' comes to local stage

By JACKIE LATTIMER
Contributing Writer

Tuesday and Wednesday's weather set the scene and "what" the appetite of many Lexingtonians for the opening show of the Broadway Live Series at the Opera House, "Singin' In The Rain."

The musical, which opened on Broadway in 1952 and makes its first Lexington appearance this weekend recreates the point during the 1920s when silent movies were changing to become "talkies."

Richard Parly, executive director of the Opera House, said this show was chosen as the season opener because of the ease in its scheduling.

But it wasn't chosen solely for its convenient schedule. Parly had seen the musical last year in Louisville and was convinced to bring it to Lexington. "It's a lively show and great fun," he added.

One of the liveliest scenes is when Don Lockwood (played by Jay Cramford) strolls down a Hollywood street singing and dancing around puddles with rain pouring down his back.

Now how does an indoor theater such as the Opera House create this scene with pouring rain? Simple. With water.

Julie Ann Cunningham, assistant director of the Opera House, said the 50 gallons of water used for the scene are pumped from a tank to pipes above the stage and then are dispersed.

However, this rain isn't a typical cold drizzle. Opera House director Parly said the water is heated to such a temperature that when it hits the actor, it's a warm 75 degrees. Parly pointed out that the purpose for the heated water is to protect the actor from getting sick.

The stage too is protected, with fiberglass. Parly described the setup as "a stage within a stage." He said the stage, resembling one big gutter, is slightly raked so that the water will drain back into the holding tank, be reheated and ready to rain again. The fiberglass has been coated with a special non-skid paint containing pumice for extra skid resistance.

Jazz eccentric Keith Jarrett at UK

By WILL RENSHAW
Staff Writer

What has two arms, two legs, virtuosity in jazz improvisation, and periodically moans and dances while playing the piano?

This can only be jazz and classical composer and piano virtuoso Keith Jarrett, who will perform with drummer Jack DeJohnette and bassist Gary Peacock tonight as the second installment of the 1987 Spotlight Jazz Series.

"Jarrett is one of the true eccentrics in jazz," said Chester Grundy, the Jazz Series co-producer.

Along with these stage antics, he has also been known to reprimand audiences for talking, and has occasionally stopped in mid-performance to have the piano tuned. "Everything has to be perfect," said Grundy.

Jarrett has had these idiosyncrasies for so long that audiences come to expect them along with some of the finest improvisational work in jazz.

His work does not only harbor itself in the improvisational genre, but has extended itself into the realms of classical music, folk, French Impressionism, gospel and bebop.

Jarrett studied jazz at Berklee School of Music in Boston. His career rocketed early on in the '60s while working as a soloist with noted artists.

"In terms of his musical background, he has come up through some of the best teachers, such as Charles Lloyd, and probably his most noteworthy work was with Miles Davis around the time of Davis' Bitches Brew album," said Grundy.

Jarrett is what Grundy called a "purest," who nevertheless, during his work with Davis, made an exception and worked with the electric piano.

After this period, Jarrett pursued his best-known work, consisting of a large number of albums containing totally improvised pieces.

"He used no music," said Grundy. "He played extended concerts by creating music on the spot."

While still improvising concerts periodically, Jarrett has spent the best part of the last four years working with his current group, consist-

Fosse emerged with lecture on watercolor

By GREGORY NICHOLS
Contributing Writer

When it comes to painting with watercolor, UK faculty member and alumnus Robert James Fosse isn't short on opinions. A noted artist who has been featured in American Art magazine, Fosse will share his experience with the art form Sunday during a Center Sunday Series lecture, "The Contemporary Watercolor."

Fosse, a Pennsylvania native, has presented more than 150 exhibitions, one-third of which have been solo. He has also authored and illustrated many books, but he still enjoys watercolor the best. "I work in other mediums, but watercolor is probably my favorite."

Fosse traveled Europe extensively in the early '70s, as well as Central and South America. He says that travel is an integral part of his style, and he continues to visit Colorado each summer for that reason.

Yet Fosse is particularly interested in the vernacular architecture of Kentucky, that which is peculiar to this area alone. He has been known to paint familiar local structures, only to place them in different surroundings. This often confuses the local viewer, he says.

Fosse's interest in art may be traced to his exposure as a child to an uncle who painted, whom he calls a Renaissance man. "Here was a guy who actually painted. I'd never met anyone who made paintings," he says. "The idea of pursuing an art career was simply unheard of in these days."

However, Fosse says that his own style, which he describes as "certainly realistic," evolved independently of his family.

Fosse sees the need for the artist to draw upon his or her past, but he isn't obsessed with nostalgia. He adheres to the watercolor maxim, "quit one hour before you're finished."

He also adheres to Picasso's expectant optimism that the next painting will be his best.

"It's possible to overwork a painting. Watercolor is a loose-natured medium that can be muddled" with too much attention, Fosse says.

He is wary of the many gimmicks and shortcuts found in the art world today, calling much of it "fast-food." All the television advertisements for "the secret of oil painting" are, says Fosse, "too packaged and too convenient. Art is much more ephemeral than that. It is not a science."

WHEN, WHERE AND HOW MUCH

Robert James Fosse's lecture, "Contemporary Watercolor," will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Singletary Center for the Arts. Slides will be presented. Admission is free.

Sorority aids hearing impaired

By JAYE BEELER
Staff Writer

Delta Zeta sorority and the Lexington Hearing and Speech Center sponsored a free public hearing check yesterday.

"A low number of people turned up to receive a hearing check because it was downstairs in the Student Center, which didn't help much," said Mary Beth Woodrow, Delta Zeta philanthropy chairperson.

The hearing check was performed with an audiometer, used to measure the acuity of hearing in a quiet room, said Daena Wilds, audiologist from the Lexington Hearing and Speech Center.

"If a person passes the test, his hearing is normal," Wilds said. "If the test shows a person has a hearing loss, he should have a complete hearing evaluation done."

The hearing checks performed yesterday were a screening to verify that hearing is in normal limits — which is below 25 — or, if not, to let people know they may have a possible hearing impairment, Wilds said.

Daena Wilds of the Lexington Hearing and Speech Center gives Robert Leonard, a business senior, a free hearing test in room 117 of the Student Center sponsored by the Delta Zetas.

A hearing impairment may be a or speech and language impairments, Wilds said. "Often the school does outside testing to serve the community," Wilds said.

Woodrow said Delta Zeta sponsored the hearing checks as part of its national philanthropy, which is speech and hearing impairments. Delta Zeta also donates to the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville and their national philanthropy at the Galludet University in Washington, D.C., said Laura Thompson, a DZ and interior design junior.

The Lexington Hearing and Speech Center — a United Way agency — is a school for about 30 preschool children who have hearing warships in that waterway and adjacent Arabian Sea a month ago.

The situation in the gulf has intensified since July 18, when the United States started putting the American flag and American captains on Kuwait oil tankers and escorting them through the vital waterway.

Six days later, the first violence occurred with the reflagged super-tanker Bridgeton hit by a mine. Ever since, the United States has increased its naval presence in the gulf with the fleet reaching 26

warships in that waterway and adjacent Arabian Sea a month ago.

Pastagon sources, meantime, disclosed that a second, unrelated incident had occurred in the gulf yesterday.

According to the officials, Iranians on an oil platform apparently fired what was meant to be a warning shot at American warship or helicopter that was moving nearby. The Americans did not return fire and nothing further came of the incident, the sources said.

Committee members have questions on workers' comp bill

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Most members of the House committee that will first consider the workers' compensation bill during the special legislative session said yesterday they have serious reservations about the proposal.

An informal survey of 15 of the 17 members of the House Labor and Industry Committee by The Associated Press indicated that the concerns may be great enough to prevent committee passage of the bill.

The opposition, though, does not doom the workers' compensation bill. It will likely mean that the House and Senate adopt different versions that would have to be resolved in a closed conference committee.

The bill the committee will initially consider was authored by Sen. Ed O'Daniel, D-Springfield, and has come to be known by his name.

Ten of the 15 members said they had concerns that would have to be resolved before they could vote in favor of the O'Daniel bill. Three others said they were undecided, with two of them leaning against it.

Only two members said unequivocally they support the O'Daniel plan.

The major concern of House members involves the amount the coal industry will have to bear in the annual $10 million contribution needed to retire the debt of the workers' compensation Special Fund.

Under the O'Daniel bill, the coal industry would be called on to contribute about $6 million of the total with the remainder paid by all other employers.

Rocky Adkins, D-Sandy Hook, said the coal industry, especially smaller operators, would suffer greatly under that burden.

"I have a good feeling that this plan is going to close those small companies down," Adkins said.

Rep. Jimmy Brown, R-Central City, said he had similar concerns. "The coal industry right now is barely hanging on," he said.

Committee Chairman J.R. Gray, D-Benton, acknowledged the displeasure among his members.

He speculated that the House could change the funding formula to more closely reflect one offered several weeks ago by coal industry lobbyists and some leadership staff members. That plan would require about $9 million less each year from the coal industry.

Ron Cyrus, D-Flatwoods, who chaired Gov. Martha Layne Collins' task force on workers' compensation, also said he does not embrace the Senate funding formula.

"I still think the best plan of all was the governor's," he said.

The Collins administration proposed the sale of bonds to finance part of the debt and lower annual payments by all employers.

Even Rep. Marshall Long, D-Shepherdsville, who said he supported the O'Daniel proposal, predicted a tough fight in the committee. "It'll be close in here," Long said.

A funding formula has been the subject of debate and all of the lawmakers expect a compromise to be reached.

But some Labor and Industry Committee members say they also have concerns about the recommendations of Cyrus' task force, which are considered crucial to the total package.

Charles Siler, R-Williamsburg, echoed the concerns of some lawmakers when he complained about the proposed revisions in the treatment of occupational diseases.

The recommendations include revising the benefits for victims of black-lung disease.

St. Elsewhere, Humana officials to try to settle out of court

By JANET L. CAPPIELLO
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — A judge delayed the trial of a trademark infringement lawsuit filed by Humana Inc. against NBC over the television show "St. Elsewhere" after attorneys for both sides opted yesterday to attempt an out-of-court settlement.

Neither James Cox, the attorney for Humana, nor Donald Mulvihill, who is representing NBC, could comment on the potential settlement.

"There have been some discussions about a settlement," Cox said yesterday morning. "I'm optimistic. . . . We still haven't settled it yet."

By early evening, however, the attorneys had not reached an agreement. Mulvihill said from his Washington, D.C., office.

Humana, the nation's second-largest hospital chain, filed the lawsuit Sept. 29, asking for unspecified damages.

In the suit, the for-profit hospital corporation said "St. Elsewhere's" new fictional hospital company — recalled "Ecumena" — was too similar to Humana.

When the Emmy award-winning show debuted this fall, it introduced "Ecumena" as the new owner for St. Eligius hospital.

"Ecumena" was portrayed as a for-profit hospital chain based in the Midwest that managed an artificial heart program.

Humana, based in Louisville, is home to the only permanent artificial heart program in the United States.

A blue sign with Humana-type lettering also appeared on the building of the hospital, said Cox, a Louisville lawyer.

On Sept. 30, just hours before "St. Elsewhere" was to go on the air, Johnstone, sitting in Paducah, turned down Humana's request for a restraining order to prevent NBC from using the name "Ecumena."

The request would have meant NBC could not air that night's episode.

Instead, Johnstone ordered NBC to run a disclaimer saying "Ecumena" is not intended to represent a real company.

The disclaimer, which appeared at the end of that night's episode, read:

"Ecumena is a fictional company that does not represent any actual company or corporation."
Mulvihill said after the hearing that if the network had not been able to air the show last week, it could have lost $1 million in advertising and the 11.5 million viewers "St. Elsewhere" normally attracts.

During last week's hearing, Humana lawyers argued that "Ecumena" is portrayed as being more interested in profits than health care, a common criticism of Humana and other for-profit hospital chains.

But Mulvihill said Humana was simply upset with that criticism in general.

Cox also argued he had evidence that "Ecumena" was specifically named after "Humana," but Mulvihill said the name was derived from the word ecumenical.

Blue Cross delayed payments, lawmaker says

Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Kentucky may have "contrived" complaints about late payment of premiums as it sought to get out of its group health insurance contract with the state, a Kentucky legislator says.

Rep. Carl A. Nett, D-Louisville, said in a letter to Attorney General David Armstrong that records show Blue Cross & Blue Shield sometimes waited weeks to pick up payments from Jefferson County public schools.

Nett is a member of the General Assembly's interim joint Appropriations and Revenue Committee. Blue Cross & Blue Shield President G. Douglas Sutherland told the committee last month that the company had to cancel the remaining year of its contract because some state agencies and local school boards were chronically late in making payments.

"After discussing this matter with Jefferson County public school officials, it appears that at least some of these delinquencies may have been contrived by Blue Cross," Nett said in the letter, which he also released to other committee members and to reporters.

With the letter was a memo purporting to show that, eight times from July 1986 to May 1987, Blue Cross & Blue Shield picked up the payments for Jefferson County public schools days or weeks after the money was available. The memo said Blue Cross & Blue Shield specified that bills and deduction checks would be hand-delivered and were not to be mailed.

But the memo also showed that bills were not received from Blue Cross & Blue Shield until 11 days beyond the due date last December and four days beyond the due date in January.

The contract covers 67,000 state-government and school-board employees under Blue Cross & Blue Shield's Key Care plan.

UK residence hall students have rights

As a "lower-class dorm dweller," I would like to dedicate this column to my upper-class buddy, Peter Satera.

This column is in response to his letter which appeared in the Kernel on Oct. 7. I have only one thing to say to you, bud, way to go!

I don't know if the letter was intended to be satire, but it sure proves a point: that point being frat boys have attitude, as well as mental problems.

But Peter really shouldn't have a problem with his attitude, he paid $8,000 for a new one just a few years ago. Whoever sold it to him really took him for a ride, because he actually believes in this new attitude of his.

Everyone knows that the only reasons frats exist is for people who are too snobbish to make friends in any other way. They are also good for buying and distributing alcohol to members who are too young to buy it themselves. Does this make you

Contributing COLUMNIST

"elite?" Hardly. If anything, it makes you scum for doing this.

Have you ever heard of the Equal Rights of 1964, or even the Bill of Rights? I doubt it, since you probably skipped that day of class. Let me fill you in. These two documents mean that everyone is equal, and no one is better than anybody else, much to your displeasure.

Just because you pay extra dues to be a greek doesn't give you the right to drink on campus. As far as I know, no one has that right yet. Why should the laws be ignored for just you? And if you think frat houses make the campus more attractive, you're sick. I don't think a lawn littered with beer cans and garbage is very nice to look at. But I'm sure it impresses the crap out of future students and their parents, who pay the dues.

I know you greeks out there are thinking, "Ah, he's just pissed because he couldn't get in to one of our marvelous frats." Well, you are wrong, I'm happy to say. I had more than one offer, but when I met the people and saw that the others they joined was with the reason of their own species, I decided it wasn't for me.

And for how you closed your letter; are you trying for sympathy? "The greeks at UK have enough trouble..." What are you having trouble with? It cannot be classes, because you hardly go, and when you do, you leave early, so what's the problem?

I guess a problem could be stereotypes. All greeks are stereotyped by the independents, and most can tell a greek from others, even without his precious letters, or your Ray Bans, or your Duck Heads, or... You are all clones, and if I were you (thank God I'm not), I'd be worried. I guess another problem could be your annual search for a charity to help. This has to be one of the most blatant attempts at social relevancy I have ever seen. I honestly think that if you don't want to help, let someone who does. Every dorm that I have lived in has contributed to the United Way both semesters, and we even went to a hospital and sang Christmas carols.

But please, don't get me wrong. I am not a total greek-hater. Some greeks are great people, amazingly enough. They make me wonder how they can stand being one.

I came to UK to study, work hard and earn my degree. I didn't come to socialize or make new friends, even though I have made some life-long friends here. I came here for an education. I don't know, or care, why you're here.

Steve Bragg is a journalism student.

Hear ye!

This is your chance to speak out and be heard. Wednesday, Oct. 14, in room 113 of the Student Center there will be a forum held to discuss the possibility of a $1 tuition increase. The funds would be used to support RFL — UK's own student-run radio station.

Gregory G. Washington is a member of SGA's Public Relations Committee.

The Soapbox Dead days

Students can be heard for miles around at the end of each semester complaining that they haven't had enough time to study for their final exams. Some people at UK are trying to remedy that.

Student Government Association President Cyndi Weaver has been attempting for quite some time to get the University to implement dead days, or class-free days the week before finals week.

In fact, the results of a study released last week showed that more than half the students at UK would support three class-free days before finals.

Would you like to have three days off, plus the weekend, before your finals begin each semester? Or do you think it would be a waste of time?

This is your opportunity to reply. Submissions to "The Soapbox" will be printed on the Thursday following the introduction of a topic the week before. This is your opportunity to vent your frustrations or your congratulations.

People submitting material should address their comments to "The Soapbox," Kentucky Kernel, 655 Journalism Building, Lexington, Ky. 40506-0062. This can either be done by mail or dropped off at the office.

Bork opposed by Senate majority; Reagan won't surrender

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork's Supreme Court nomination was dealt an almost certain fatal blow yesterday as opposition spread to a majority of the Senate. But President Reagan said he wouldn't surrender "in the face of a lynch mob."

White House officials, giving what seemed to be conflicting signals, insisted the fight would continue to the Senate floor, no matter how bleak the outlook, but also said it was up to Bork to decide whether to withdraw.

The president himself said of Bork, "He has a decision to make. I have made mine. I will support him all the way."

Bork went to midday to the Justice Department to meet with Attorney General Edwin Meese III, raising speculation the nomination might soon be withdrawn. Department officials added to the speculation by saying Meese had arranged a meeting with Reagan to talk over Bork's fate.

However, presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said later that there would be no such meeting, that Meese had reported there was no change in the status of the nomination and that "our strategy is to continue to make our case and change minds."

Terry Eastland, a Justice Department spokesman said Bork "obviously wants to stay in the fight for the nomination as of today and the attorney general is not trying to persuade him one way or the other."

Meanwhile, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, — himself a former federal judge — declared on the Senate floor that he would oppose Bork's nomination if the White House pursues it to a final vote. According to an Associated Press tabulation, based on floor speeches, written statements and a telephone survey, Mitchell was the 51st senator in the 100-member chamber to declare he would reject confirmation.

The number of announced opponents later reached 53.

Reagan, speaking briefly with reporters at the White House, was asked if he were giving up the fight for Bork's confirmation and said, "It's virtually impossible to give up in the face of a lynch mob." He didn't say to whom he was referring.

But Fitzwater left the door ajar for Bork's voluntary withdrawal, commenting, "Obviously, his decision can be whatever he wants it to be."

As for the likely outcome of a floor vote, Korologos said, "We're not naive; there's no mystery on how the vote count is going to go. The handwriting is on the wall."

Mitchell was one of five Democratic senators who announced against Bork yesterday. Others were Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, Tom Harkin of Iowa and Daniel Inouye of Hawaii.

The AP count showed 33 publicly supporting Bork, including Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who announced his position in a speech yesterday.

McConnell offered Bork substitute

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Although U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell claimed yesterday he hasn't given up on Judge Robert H. Bork's nomination for a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court, he has recommended a federal appeals court judge from Kentucky as a possible substitute candidate.

In a telephone news conference with Kentucky broadcasters, McConnell said he had recommended Judge Danny J. Boggs of Bowling Green as a possible substitute for Bork. The Republican senator said he made the suggestion in a recent conversation with White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker.

"I think the president would be wise to send up a Southerner and I would hope it would be Judge Boggs," McConnell, R-Ky., said. President Reagan last year selected Boggs to sit on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which hears cases from Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Michigan, McConnell said. Boggs previously served as deputy secretary of energy, he said.

McConnell described Boggs as "an outstanding, bright, young conservative judge." In his conversation with Baker, McConnell said he had recommended that any new nominee be from the South and as conservative as Bork.

"I don't think the president should shy away from sending up someone of the same persuasion as Judge Bork," McConnell said.

The Bork nomination "appears to be on the ropes," McConnell said, adding that opponents have made "a circus" out of hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee. He said Bork is one of the best candidates during this centure for a seat on the nation's highest court.

"What's been done to him is really abhorrent to all fair-minded people," McConnell said.

On other topics, McConnell said: "There is a good chance of passage for legislation he has sponsored to give states the right to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on all four-lane limited access highways that are built to interstate highway standards."

McConnell said the bill would not apply to two-lane segments of Kentucky's parkways but that it could open the way for increased speeds on most four-lane portions of the state's parkway system.

"He planned to lead a strong effort to defeat a bill sponsored by Sen. George Mitchell of Maine that would impose strict new limits on sulphur dioxide emissions to help combat acid rain."

Falwell and PTL board resign posts

By G.G. RIGSBY
Associated Press

FORT MILL, S.C. — The board of the PTL ministry resigned yesterday and PTL Chairman Jerry Falwell said he feared defrocked minister Jim Bakker could return, making the ministry "the greatest scab and cancer on the face of Christianity in 2,000 years."

The resignations were prompted by a court ruling Wednesday that allowed PTL's creditors and contributors to file a competing plan for reorganizing the ministry, which is plagued by more than $60 million in debt.

Bakker, in a news conference at his mountaintop retreat near Gatlinburg, Tenn., said he would return to the ministry if invited to do so by its creditors. Bakker said he thought Falwell was resigning to avoid testifying under oath in bankruptcy court.

Falwell, who has his own ministry based in Lynchburg, Va., said PTL's main television program, the "PTL Club," will remain on the air at least three weeks, but the payroll at the "Heritage USA" theme park will not be paid today.

"I hope the successor will pay them," he said. Falwell asked PTL's 1,200 workers to stay on, although it was not immediately clear who would take control.

Falwell said members of the PTL's board were willing to fight Bakker, but unwilling to fight the courts. And he predicted that within six months, "barring a miracle of God," Bakker would resume control of the evangelical empire he turned over to Falwell in March amid a sex-and-money scandal.

Harry Hargrave, who resigned as chief operating officer, said PTL employees who earn the least will be paid first. He predicted that by Tuesday all would be paid for the past two weeks' work.

Bakker called the resignations a "wholesale walkout" and said he believed Falwell was stepping because he didn't want to face Bakker after neyn Melvin Belli in bankruptcy court.

"If they tell the truth they will have to reveal that they plotted to steal PTL," said Bakker.

Asked if Bakker has won the fight over the ministry, Falwell said, "No. The Christian family has lost the war."

"We want to help in any way to restore our baby," Bakker said. He said any invitation for him to return had to come from PTL creditors.

"I think if a child had a need I would call the father and mother to help with that need," said Bakker.

Falwell said the bankruptcy judge's decision to allow competing reorganization plans to be filed within a week dashed the ministry's plans to borrow $5 million to $10 million from a Wall Street investor.

Bakker turned the ministry over to Falwell last March 19 after it was revealed that he had paid $26,000 to cover up a sexual encounter with church secretary Jessica Hahn. Bakker later said he never expected Falwell to permanently take over the ministry.

On Wednesday, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds, who is overseeing the ministry's reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, ruled that Falwell's reorganization plan did not take into account the wishes of the creditors and partners.

Robertson says he wed after son's conception

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson acknowledged Wednesday that his first son was conceived months before his marriage and that he had concealed the wedding date.

Robertson, a television evangelist who stepped down from his ministry to pursue his presidential ambitions, said in an interview published in yesterday's editions of The Washington Post that he and his wife Dede always considered March 22, 1954, as the day their marriage started because "our son was conceived on that day."

He said the couple's legal marriage on Aug. 27, 1954 "to us, wasn't any big deal."

The Wall Street Journal on Tuesday had reported Robertson's legal marriage date, and that the couple's first son was born 10 weeks later.

In a July interview with the Post, Robertson had been asked to state the date of his marriage and replied: "We were married, we began. I'm trying to think, it was 33 years ago, March the 22nd, we celebrate, my birthday."

Robertson said Wednesday he had given the Post "an honest answer" in the earlier interview, saying the couple always considered the date of their son's conception to be the start of their marriage.
