DEAN JONES

The men students on this campus owe much to Dean T. J. Jones, who has been dean of the college for the past two years, having been appointed to the office upon the retirement of Dean Melcher in 1933.

Dean Jones has had two major problems confronting him during his short period of office—the administration of the FERCA work on the campus as provided for under the New Youth Administration, and the financial problems of the eighteen fraternities on the campus.

When Dean Jones assumed his duties, he made a survey of the financial conditions of the fraternities and was alarmed to find that the majority of the organizations were in a pitiful state of affairs.

With the cooperation of the Interfraternity Council and the Fraternity Presidents' Council, which was formed, Dean Jones succeeded in passing a rule whereby no fraternity could be granted or have its credits transferred to another school.

This enabled the fraternities to collect all of their debts and subsequently regain a firm financial footing. At the time Dean Melcher retired, the men's residence halls had many vacant rooms, but this year the dormitory was filled several weeks before the first day of registration.

Another innovation which has been a boon to the campus is the origin of the Wednesday night All-campus dances, for which Dean Jones is responsible.

These dances provide inexpensive entertainment, which the entire student body can enjoy, since nobody is restricted because of lack of money, lack of evening clothes, or social standing.

THE ALL-CAMPUS DANCES

"It's the tops!" Pardon the slang, but that's the way we dub the Wednesday night dances. There are no dances so keenly collegiate, so delightfully human and so cosmopolitan as these mid-week affairs. We say hats off to Dean Jones and those cooperating to make these dances a success.

These dances bring together the students for a period of relaxation and companionship. There is no other single function during any week at which one finds so many students gathered in a spirit of cooperation and friendship. The students therefore need this get-together every week. It is for that reason that we would urge each student to make it a weekly schedule of these dances.

Enough of praise. There are two aspects of these otherwise delightful and charming gatherings which discount them considerably, but which could easily enough be remedied. We refer to the "crashing" of the dances by high school students and undesirable townspeople.

PREPARATION FOR LIVING

With embarrassing frequency young men appear at the offices of The Enquirer in search of jobs. It is embarrassing because so few of them can be encouraged to continue their search, and because still fewer can be taken into the ranks of The Enquirer staff.

Often they speak of having studied journalism. In a period of two or three or four years, at considerable expense, they have laboriously acquired some proficiency in the writing of headlines and the editing of copy.

OUR NEW SIDEWALKS

Sidewalks under our feet! As yet, because of dry weather, the advantages and benefits of the hard surface of the campus walks have not manifested themselves other than in the form of less dust.

When old man winter comes stalking around the corner with his icy winds, and cold, sleet rains and the icy snow come, the comparative luxury of such pavement. "But," say the freshmen, "why all this fuss about the asphalt sidewalks? I've seen better."

"Just ask any of the upperclassmen about the sidewalks or to put it more literally, the lack of walks which existed last year." The foregoing was the subject of much comment, editorially and otherwise.

HE'S OUT

As the curtain falls on another baseball season, a great American character has answered his last call. DeWolf Hopper is dead. But the institution of American baseball, which he so immortalized with his recreation of "Casey at the Bat," lives on.

On lonely farms and in crowded alleys of city slums barefooturchins will continue to emanate the "night Babe." What gray head doesn't thrill to the words "from Tinklers to Every to Chance?"

Ten thousand Mudvilles will cheer ten thousand Caseys on Bankers and lawyers, loafers and bums, to the boxes and bleachers will continue to come. Here a man need claim no Alma Mater, just brave a little sun. De Wolf Hopper, you represented a great American tradition of peanuts and straw hats. Oh gawky of boys, whose grandmothers were like the proverbial nine lined cats. May that tradition flourish on. And may your beloved stage come back where it belongs.

Kappa Delta Parties
Epsilon Omega of Kappa Delta entertained with a cabaret party Wednesday from 3 to 6 p. m., at the chapter house. The guests were seated at individual tables covered with gingham cloths. The refreshments, sandwiches and cakes, in beer mugs, were served from a bar, tended by Miss Sara Kinney. The house was decorated with mirrors on which were painted pictures of the "Gypsy" and "Wimpy". During the afternoon a floor show was presented, including popular songs and tap dances.

Rushes Entertained
Members of Delta Zeta sorority were hostesses for a Gypsy party from 3 to 6 p. m., Wednesday at the chapter house in honor of rushees. The house was decorated to represent a Gypsy camp. Music, dancers and a crystal gazer were among the features of the afternoon. A salad course was served to 25 guests.

The sorority will entertain from 3 to 6 p. m. today with its annual rose dinner at the Wellington Arms tea room. The tables will be decorated with the sorority colors, rose and green. Special music will be furnished by Miss Mary Louise McKenna, soprano.

Alpha Gamma Delta Entertains
Epsilon of Alpha Gamma Delta entertained with a style show Wednesday afternoon at the chapter house on east Maxwell in honor of its rushees. The latest in clothes for all occasions were modeled by Misses Dorothy Broadbent, Helen Lee Hagarty, Lillian Holmes and Catherine West. Throughout the afternoon an orchestra furnished music for dancing. At the close of the style show a unique salad course in the sorority colors of red, buff and green, was served. The house decorations consisted of dahlias and gladioli.

This afternoon the alumnae chapter will entertain the active chapter and rushees with a tea at the home of Misses Anette and Virginia Kelley on South Broadway. The guests will be received by Mrs. W. H. Pre-witt, president of the alumnae, and Miss Annette Kelley. The traditional rose ceremony will be observed.

Broadcasting Program
Beta Chi of Kappa Kappa Gamma entertained with an Amateur Broadcasting program from 4 to 6 p. m., Wednesday in the ball room of the Phoenix hotel.

Garden flowers were used for decorations and after the program refreshments were served. The guests were received by Misses Annie Payne Perry, president, and Josie Tunis, rush captain.

Rush Parties
Alpha Delta Theta entertained in honor of rushees Wednesday from 3 to 6 p. m., at the chapter house on South Line. The feature of the program was a scavenger hunt based on the acrostic of Alpha Delta Theta.

Thursday afternoon the members took the rushers for a tour of the blue grass section, visiting a number of prominent stock farms; after which they went to the home of Mrs. Harold Hill on Franklin avenue for tea.

This afternoon they will entertain with an Alpha Delta Theta wedding at the chapter house.

Tri-Delt Parties
Delta Delta Delta entertained with a Gypsy party Wednesday from 3 to 6 p. m., at the Lexington Country club in honor of rushees. The club room was decorated as a forest with an iron kettle hung over an open fireplace, and in one corner was a fortune teller in a Gypsy tent. During the afternoon music was furnished by a string quartet.

The active members will entertain today with a cabaret party at the Phoenix hotel.

Chi Omega Style Show
Chi Omega entertained with a style show Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 p. m. in the gold room of the Lafayette hotel. The latest styles were furnished by the May-fair, Embryns and the Loom and Needle, and were modeled by Misses Betty Powell Rodes, Price Fisher, Mary Lou Starks, Anne Stevenson, Mary Lewis Shearer. The music was furnished by "Shiny" Herrington and his orchestra.

The active members will be hostesses for a Gypsy party at the chapter house this afternoon. The main features of entertainment will be a fortune teller, dances given by students of Marjorie Hall Dancing school, and Gypsy songs sung by Mr. Billy Lancaster.

Series of Parties
New girls in the sorority were guests of honor at a colonial party given by Alpha Xi Delta Wednesday afternoon. During the afternoon the guests enjoyed a scavenger hunt through the stock farms of this section, after which a salad course was served at the home of Miss Betty Hulet, by members of the active chapter dressed in colonial costumes.

Alpha Xi Delta entertained Thursday afternoon with a football party at the chapter house. Decorations and refreshments carried out the sorority colors of double blue and gold.

The alumnae chapter will entertain the active and rushees with a luncheon today from 3 to 6 p. m., at the Ashland Country club. The "Gypsy" colors were used in the decorations.

"Forty-Niner" Party
Members of Zeta Tau Alpha were hostesses Wednesday from 3 to 6 p. m., at the chapter house for a "Forty-Niner" party. The house was decorated in cabaret style, and an orchestra furnished music for dancing during the afternoon.

New Group Lecture System Is Devised

Political Science Department Has Adopted Innovation

The Political Science department is adopting a new method of conducting courses in American Government. It was learned today from Professor Vandebosch, acting head of the department.

In place of the numerous small classes, the students will be grouped in three large lecture sections, each section meeting three times a week. There will be two hours of lecture and one quiz hour. The quiz section will be broken into several small groups.

Assisting the staff in executing the new system will be the following graduate students: J. Sherman Porter Jr., Carl Rader, Oren Wilder, William R. Willoughby, and Donald Dorris.

The dates of the first meeting of the International Relations club and the Pan Politikon club will be announced later.

German Club Will Hear Dr. Hegeman

The German Club will hold its first meeting of the current school year in the Women's Building, Wednesday, October 2, at 4 o'clock. It was announced today by Miss Fannie Herman, president.

Dr. Daniel Van Brunt Hegeman will deliver an interesting address on his travels in Germany, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and England which he took in the past summer. Election of officers and plans for the school year will be held during the meeting.

At the conclusion of the meeting which will be presided over by Miss Herman, refreshments will be served. All members of the German department and those interested in German literature and customs are urged to attend.

When Kentucky's Wildcats jog out onto the well-manicured Corcoran field under the floodlights, tonight, it might be a good idea for each of them to remember, individually, that this Xavier University team will not be anyone's pushover and that it's going to take a lot of playing before the Musketeers will ever consider defeat.

We believe that Coach Wynne's club can hammer its way to a win only if it takes the opposition with the proper amount of seriousness. Most of this same "Cat" team heard the cry of "Wolf" from Cincinnati last year and may not be inclined to listen to it as it comes to us from the Queen City this fall.

The stories drifting in here about Coach Joe Meyer's Avondale combination credit it with being the finest machine he has ever moulded at Xavier. Little Leo Sack, who has earned the nickname, "Twinlites," because of his speed and shiftness, and Tony Schmeig, a hard-hitting halfback, have the featured roles in the Muskies' offense. They are working behind a line composed of lettermen, with one exception, which indicates that the Meyermen will have experience, at least.

Now if all the advance notices on the Musketeers should be the real McCoy, Kentucky would do well to be prepared. Even if they are slightly exaggerated, it still won't be harmful to be ready for a tough evening. We hope to see Wynne's team get the jump on the Cincinnati squad and continue to bear down with everything, because we are still a bit naive and gullible enough to believe some of the stories of the Musketeer prowess.

If advance indications mean anything, it appears that the Wildcats will covet before a goodly crowd of their own rooters, as plenty of students have signified their intention of making the journey and alumni are expected to be present in large numbers. And they'll all be wanting to see the Blue and White pennant floating out from the top of the mast when the battle is over.

It seems that the customers always write and a few days ago we had a letter from Mr. George R. Smith, an alumnus of the University, who, it appears, has been wrongfully accused of being a star performer in his undergraduate days. But let Mr. Smith tell you about it in some excerpts from his very interesting letter:

Dear Sir:

I want to correct a statement regarding my football playing which appeared in your first edition of the season.

You write me up as a former star tackle in my time as a player. Each year I notice a squib or write-up to the effect that I was a former end, tackle, center or halfback. You are advised that I never played tackle in my life. I did not play any position well enough to receive a printed word of commendation. However, at the rate of annual increased praise, I will have been on Camp's All-American team in the next five or six years. How do you get that way? There are a long string of names of men who deserve honorable mention, and all I did was to "hold that line" of benches along with the other scrubs. I was the only man on the squad who knew I was good. Every coach we had in the six years I played used to have the same fool notion or lack of ability to discover me.

I am shocked with you. You college boys of today are wonders, but those who played when I did won't believe you, and after they read your stuff they look at me cross-eyed over extended nostrils.

I think I am good now, but as then, it will be a quarter of a century later before any one will agree with me. Thus, I suggest that you place my name back on the shelf and forget it. Your loss of copy won't be missed. You have already stirred up so much of something in me that I went and looked in the mirror at myself and instantly recognized your error, and then I felt bad.

I consoled myself with the idea that I was a good scrub since the stars failed to fall on me. I often dreamed I would race to the stadium in the swirl of life's big game. I thought I would, take a sheepskin and run the ends. With eyes ablaze I'd set a pace down life's laurel-lit way. I'd buck to glory on the grid-iron's white chalked field of life. But, I found the old bread line was hard to buck. The world still romps across my spine. Competition and disappointment tripped me up.

Thus, instead of lauding me with featured, praise, you must let me settle on a lower round. I must be a "commoner" player and of baser metal. Some day I will descend until I find my level where I may bask in comfort; but again competition may be hot there. In the meantime, thanks for the buggy ride.

Yours for the scrubs,
GEORGE R. SMITH, '15

After reading Mr. Smith's protest we decided we had better find out who was wrong. According to the Kentuckian of 1915, George R. Smith played guard and center with the team of the previous year. An earlier yearbook informs us that Mr. Smith, who, by the way, is a prominent attorney here in Lexington, was named president of his freshman class, so we are bound to give him some sort of build-up, if not athletically.

From Enemy Camps

If the wonderful adjectives so well used last Saturday in the Cincinnati newspapers are any real indication of the prowess of the Xavier football team the University of Kentucky gridsters are in for a very tough evening in the Queen City this coming Friday night. The Musketeers defeated the Georgetown College eleven last Friday night, 34-0. Among the many paragraphs appearing in the Saturday papers was one running like this: "Xavier never before has been so far advanced so early in the season as the Musketeers last night. The tackling was of the teeth-jarring variety and the blocking was so dexterously executed that it was as though a giant scythe were chopping down the Georgetown defense." But if this is just so many words as the early stories on the Cincinnati Bearcats were last year, the Wildcats should not have such a hard time.

Looking at statistics on the Xavier team shows them to be a fairly half back. Sack made 3 of 5 touchdowns. Xavier scored on Georgetown, while Schmeig scored one and kicked 3 points after touch-downs. One of Sack's scores was made after a 70-yard punt return through the entire Georgetown team. A sophomore named Cummings, also looked very good in this game.

From Cincinnati let us go to Columbus and take a peek at the Ohio State squad. In a scrimmage last week, Coach Francis Schmidt had the scrubs run Kentucky plays against the varsity. Nearly the entire afternoon was taken up with defensive work but when the regulars finally were put on the offense they showed they were well schooled on trick plays. Many laterals were tried and on some plays the ball was handed by as many as five or six men. Both Xavier and Ohio State were well represented at the Kentucky-Maryville tilt Saturday and both head coaches are preparing in earnest for their encounters with the Big Blue team.

NIGHT CLASSES TO BE OFFERED

Prof. Louis Clifton, head of the University Extension department, announced last week that there had been prepared for this year a number of late afternoon and night courses in 27 departments and four colleges of the University.

These will be offered for the benefit of those people who are unable to attend classes earlier in the day because of teaching or other professions. Financial credit will be given for the work done in these courses.

The colleges in which this work will be offered are: Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Education, and Commerce. The courses include: anatomy and physiology; ancient languages, art, bacteriology, economics, English, geology, German, history, hygiene, mathematics, political science music, psychology, romance languages, sociology, animal industry, horticulture, school administration, agricultural education, commercial education, educational psychology, elementary education, home economics education, philosophy of education, health education, visual education, and eight courses in the College of Commerce, including principles of accounting, public finance, statistics, economics of public utilities, American business leaders, retail merchandising, C. P. A. problems, and contemporary economic thought. Registration for these courses will be at the Registrar's office. September 30 will be the last date on which entrance will be allowed to any of the classes, and registration will continue until that date. These courses are not regular extension courses and will afford residence credit to those entering them.

Here's another one of those snappy little columns again, girls! Our honorable managing editor insisted last night that he just couldn't get along without it. However, since this isn't the scandal column, I guess he shouldn't even rate mention here—especially because this is strictly for us girls.

Anyway, don't forget about those numerals you all are going to win next spring and wear home to show all the folks. Better start Monday with archery—it's held on the athletic field behind Patterson hall at 4 p. m. That will gain 50 points for you. Then after that there is hockey which will be a major sport in making the team's tennis, swimming, and baseball.

You can keep in touch with other girls in various colleges by means of the annual Play Day sponsored by the University. The University of Cincinnati too has one for Ohio colleges primarily, but honors us by an invitation each year. Competition in different sports is with the outstanding Buckeye schools, including Ohio State University. Incidentally, we have a basketball defeat to make up for them, so let's show 'em, gals. We'll have to begin early, though, so remember archery Monday at 4 p. m.

"We ought to march forth together, I'll be in that learned bunch myself."
It wasn't funny. She nodded.
"Is't not as nice as we've been lead to believe, is it?"
Bill looked wistful.
"I almost flunked Old Crawley's History."
A long silence.
"Stayed up two nights to study for it, loobyah." Incredulously, "I practically outlined the whole book for the exam."

down a sudden chill distrust in his own words.
At the door, she turned.
"We're walking out on our very nicest lives, aren't we?"
"Don't alumni count on all with you, Lady?" Nice affluent alumni, with shiny cars?
She smiled wistfully.
"I will never be the same again."
"No."
Inside, the music went on, a little faster, not sad anymore, but, to them, heartbreaking in its gay make-believe. Outside, the moon made everything lovely. It was all the same, just as they had known it, and as others would know it—Science Hall, and the Administration Building, and the Library, and the walks, and turns, and paths. They never changed. It was only people who changed, who came and went, and never came back again.
"Want to walk across the campus?"
She shook her head as she slipped her fingers into his.
"I don't like ghosts, either."
They didn't look back.

Rainbow Campaign
In fall I feel the calling of the hills
I have a love of nature which in fall alone I know.
Hearing streams so softly flow,
Seeing all the world aglow,
Until the autumn season is ushered out by snow.

The early frosts have mellowed all the pumpkin and the corn,
Making krip the early morn.
With the rustling of summer torn
From its place upon the earth—it seems the world's reborn.

The sugar maples' old gold tones and crimson-darkened leaves,
Combined with harvest sheaves,
Lead one to believe
That the tree vine and bush can all sunset tones retrieve.

The early frosts have mellowed all the pumpkin and the corn,
Making krip the early morn.
With the rustling of summer torn
From its place upon the earth—it seems the world's reborn.

I have a love of nature which in fall alone I know.
Hearing streams so softly flow,
Seeing all the world aglow,
Until the autumn season is ushered out by snow.

Dick Bray Talks About Changes In '35 Grid Rules
By DICK BRAY
Southeastern Conference Official
Last year about this time we were hearing that the men who make the rules for football had decided to let the game stand as it was played in 1933. In 1934, the rules were again proven to be just what the doctor ordered, and this season finds no changes in the football code.

Let us look back on some of the ideas we set forth as good examples of the studying of football rules. The forward pass that becomes incomplete in the end zone. The first forward pass, in any series of four downs, that becomes incomplete in the end zone, is not a touchback. However, a second incomplete forward pass in the end zone, or a forward pass becoming incomplete on fourth down, is a touchback, the opponents getting the ball on the 20-yard line.

A ball is kicked and partially blocked, but the ball goes across the scrimmage line, even though one of the opponents touch the ball back of the scrimmage line and the ball crosses the line, it must be played as though it were not touched at all. So many have the opinion that the touching of the ball back of the line of scrimmage makes it a free ball, but this is incorrect. The referee always, or at least most of the time is the villain when the teams are penalized. Whether right or wrong, the fouls are called by all four men working the game, and each has equal rights to penalize either team. The referee is in charge of the contest, that is true, but very often on his shoulders is placed the burden of a decision made by one of the officials. Many the point be emphasized in the awarding of first downs, particularly when the foul is made by the defensive team.

There are but three (3) defensive fouls: 1. Offside; 2. Fourth time out without substitution; 3. Delay of the game. An illustration may help to prove our contention. The Blue team has the ball, second down with 20 yards to gain for a first down. The White team's right tackle caught holding, the penalty for defensive holding is five yards and, since holding by the defense is not one of the three exceptions, the five yards are marked off from the spot of the foul and the next down is first with ten yards to be gained.

The time out rule. In football a team is allowed three times-out in each half. The first three times-out count whether a substitution is made or not. On the fourth time out a player is injured and taken from the game, this nullifies the time out and no penalty is inflicted on the offense.

Who is eligible to catch a forward pass? Boy, how often that question is asked and we shall attempt to clarify that situation. The four backfield men and the two men on the end of the line are eligible to catch the forward pass. Should any of the other five men on the line touch or be fouled by the forward pass the ball is turned over to the opposing team in the spot where it was put in play. This to the writer's way of thinking, is the most unfair and most severe penalty in the rule book. We can picture another scene here in the eligibility of players who may catch a forward pass. The end on the White team runs down the field, the forward pass is thrown to this same end, it hits his hand and bounces into the hands of the opponent at the spot where it was put in play, first down and ten yards to gain. Seems very unfair, but it is gain. Seems very unfair, but it is gain. Seems very unfair, but it is gain.

A foul is made, the ball is in the air, or lying loose on the ground, a free ball, the ball goes to the offender's side, at the spot of the foul, first down and ten yards to gain. Another one that is severe and often misunderstood.

There are many complications that can arise and the writer has taken those most commonly misunderstood and hopes the reader will benefit by his endeavor to help him enjoy the game. Do not try to memorize the rules, it would take much of the pleasure out of the game. The officials work hard to master the rules, let them do that end of the job, and your team will win, if it is best, the best team usually wins, and needs no help from anyone. The best way to get support and cheering-up in stands.

discussing a Louis match here indoors, they are almost without qualification. No banjo hitter will ever have the slightest chance against Louis, which eliminates Lasky. Impelliere and perhaps Ford Smith. No man with a fragile countenance should be allowed in there under penalty of the law, which eliminates Lasky and Impelliere all over again, thus beating the corner to it. The fact is that the man hasn't a fighting weakness even in temperament. I might add, neither has a tiger—and oddy both have the same superb indifference for human kind.

A COLLEGE PROFESSOR DISCOVERED That Often It Isn't a Student's Brain but his Pen that Runs Dry—causes Failure—in Classes and Exams!
So he invented this sacless Vacumatic, and Parker engineered it to perfection—gave it 102% more Ink Capacity—made its Ink Level VISIBLE, so it suddenly can't go empty!
YES, a scientist on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin was amazed to find how pens that run out of ink slow down classes, demoralize thinking, and bring marks that no student wants to write home about.
His observations led to the birth of the revolutionary Parker Vacumatic. This miracle pen writes 12,000 words from a single filling—shows when it's running low—tells when to refill!
Any good store selling pens will show you how the Parker Vacumatic eliminates 14 old-time parts, including the lever filler and rubber ink sac found in sac-type pens.
And due to this, it has double room for ink, without increase in size.
But don't think that sacless pens containing squirt pumps are like Parker's patented Vacumatic. This new creation contains none of these. That's why it's GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT!
Go and try writing two different ways with its Reversible Point—solid Gold combined with precious Platinum—skillfully fashioned to write up at the tip so it cannot scratch or drag, even under pressure!
Do this and you won't let an old pen impede your learning another day. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin.
Send a Post Card for Free Booklet of Parker Quins—the most famous new quick-drying, non-bleeding ink, and three year blaster away. Address: Dept. 712.

Hinkbein stepped into the spotlight last year as number one center on the Kitten squad and inspiring practice served notice on Myers that he was going to have to work to hold his job. As a result Myers started working harder. Hinkbein put forth a little more effort, and today, both boys are exerting all their energy to land the starting berth. As a result the center position on the '35 Wildcat team is probably the strongest.
