The main duty of the consultants will be to suggest ways to stream-line the administration, Wethington said.

"I have charged them with re-viewing the senior level administra-tive structure of the University ... to determine whether our administrative organization can be or should be changed in any way to make it better," he said. Wethington said the exact details haven't been worked out but that the fee will not exceed $22,400. The money will come from private funds, not state money, he said. Wethington said he received "nu-merous sugeessions" of firms to

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — All the way seems the only way for this UK basketball juggernaut.

That's what made this otherwise sleepy Nashville subregional, in which all but one of the topseeded teams advanced, at the very least intriguing.

"I'm thinking about six games,"
junior forward Jamal Mashburn said before UK's big win over Rider, "Six-and-O. That's how I look at this."

er. "Six-and-0. That's how I look at this."

UK fans are looking at it that way, too. They're going all the way. Six games is only three way. Six games is only three weekends for them. The long drives won't stop Big Blue backers, and classes aren't stopping UK students.

Track errors not hindering fieldhouse encountered more problems but still is scheduled to open next month. Despite constant setbacks caused by bad weather and errors in some aspects of the building's construction, everyone involved promises that opening ceremonies will take place April 24, the day of the Blued White football scrimmage. The latest reported completion date for the multi-purpose building was March 15. But problems last week with the track and other finishing touches forced the date closer to April, said Bussell Pear, UK coordinator of athletic facilities. "We were more optimistic than we should have been, but now we're more concerned that everything is done right," he said. The six-lane, 290-meter track, however, was not done right. "An error was made in that not as much product had been put down as we had specified," said Ken Clevidence. UK director of procurement and construction.

Weather puts spring break plans on ice

By Lance Williams Staff Writer

Thousands of southbound sun worshipers traded swimsuits for snowsuits early last week after one of the worst winter storms of the century dumped snow across the eastern region of the country. The weather delayed spring break plans for many after officials closed parts of interstates 64 and 75 throughout the region, and airports as far south as Atlanta shut down. Rob Webster, an English senior who made it to Florida with 44 other en members of the Campus Crusade for Christ, said the "winds, tornadoes and stuff were worse than the snow."

But Webster was able leave town

Saturday before the snow became bad enough to close roads and strand motorists: "People who left a half hour latest han we did were de-layed by two days," he said.

Fonda's movie puts new twist on French film

By Greg Labor Staff Critic

If it's true there are no new ideas left in Hollywood, filmmakers aren't worried. They always can import them from France.

Although American films tend to dominate the world market, France certainly has proved to be a cinematic super-power, as is evidenced by the number of American remakes of French films. "Sommersby," America's verian one "The Return of Martin Guere," has burned up the box office with its red-hot romance between Richard Gere and Jodie Foster.

Now, audiences are being treated to yet another taste of the film français in the form of Bridget Fonda's new film, "Point of No Return."

Fonda's new film, "Point of No Return."

Originally titled "La Femme Mikita." the French version was an international smash. Now Hollywood is hoping its version will match the original's success. The story begins when Maggie, a drug addict mixed up in a street agang, unwitiniply kills a police officer. She is sentenced to death for her crime, but is given an alternative by the government. Boh, a mysterious agent sensationally played by Gabriel Byrne ("Coot World"), offers her a position as an assassin. The alternative is a bullet through the brain. Maggie accepts, and her training begins in an underground facility, which she can not leave without Bob's permission. She is instructed in firearms, computers, therefore, and the strength of the takes Fonda under her wing.

Eventually, Maggie is ready to begin her assignments. But it's not long before she decides she wants no part of the assassination game.

Her personal life is interrupted constantly by strange phone calls demanding her to fire blind shots at unknown targets. When she tries to back out, Bob warns her that she has crossed the point of no return that she has crossed the point of no return.

The film draws its strength from the believability of its premise. This isn't just another James Bond spy flick. The audience can imagine these events unfolding logically. As a result, we can sympathize with the terrible consequences of Maggie's actions.

The top-of-the-linc cast doesn't hurt things either. Fonda is engaging as the bewildered assassin. Byrne is equally good as her duplicitous mentor.

Bancroft's performance is rich with humor and menace, but top honors go to Harvey Keitel ("Thelma & Louise," "Bad Lieutenant") in a cameo role as a cold-blooded killer known only as "the cleaner."

"Point of No Return" is a mo "Point of No Return" is a mo-vie about mistakes, lost opportu-nities and eventual redemption. Maggie has made her share of mistakes, and it appears as though she will spend the rest of her life paying for them.

In the end, she must risk everything for a second chance.

It's a theme to which audiences should relate, and there's enough action and adventure to avoid being preachy. Each of Maggie's assignments is filled with edge-of-your-seat suspense coming to a chilling climax with the entrance of "the cleaner."

The film benefits from it

The film benefits from it French roots. Characters are fulrenen roots. Characters are ful-ly developed and the gunfights are not glorified. The members of the audience are not asked to approve of what the characters are doing. Instead, they are horri-fied by it.

Director John Badham ("Saturday Night Fever") has been criticized for relying too much on style over substance.

With the help of a well-written With the help of a well-written script, however, Badham's clever camera tricks add to the atmosphere of the film. Everything is bathed in an eeric blue neon and shadows stretch across every corner.

Ironically, this film's strength is in its originality. "Point of No Return" works because it is not what we have come to expect. Although the finale may come as something of a leddown, audiences will not be disappointed by the latest of the French imports.

"Point of No Return," rated R, is showing at North Park, South Park and Man O' War cinemas.

Like beer Gaming over in a Dixicup, Baird's new dirt-toad poetry came to a head at the show with his souped-up renditions of songs off the new album, which is one of the best stripped-down rock 'n' roll efforts this year.

Baird and company, which included Slim Dunlap (guitar), Mauro Magellan (drums), Keith Christopher's fine harmony vocal.

After "Keep Your Hands' the mix improved, as Dunlap and Christopher's fine harmony to starded through the band's barrage of power chords.

Although Baird has long since been run out of the Bluegrass state, (He moved to Nashville about a month ago), his stint in the state, was a direct influence on nearly every song on the album.

"You know I got run out of town on a rail," Baird said in a phone in-crivet." "They discovered what I did for a living, and

So Vicini, an associate sports communications director at UK, wasn't surprised at all when more than 3,000 Big Blue backers showed up Thursday night to watch their Wildcats practice.

"They're a Final Four team, and I hope they win it. It's nice to say you got beat by the eventual national champions."

Mashburn scored a team-high 19 points on seven-of-13 shooting with four threes and grabbed a team-high nine rebounds to boot.

Ford, the little guy with the big game, added eight points and six assists to the mix. And sophomore Andre Riddick and freshman Jared Prickett com-bined for 22 points and seven re-

"I had to pull Andre Riddick and Todd Svoboda through the crowd to the bus," Vicini said. "If I hadn't come out and seen it, they would have gotten left."

Of course, Svoboda and Riddick are still green when it comes to superstardom.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — UK freshman Jenny Hansen expected a spot on the ground floor of the Southeastern Conference Gymnas-tics Championships winner's podi-um after her performance Saturday night.

To her surprise, though, she had the penthouse reserved. Hansen tied Alabama's Dee Foster for the SEC all-around title at Coleman Coliseum.

Hansen's perfect 10 on vault was an elevator to the top with a 39.65 total score, making her UK's first ever SEC champion.

me."

Hansen's efforts were not enough, as UK finished last in a six-team meet. No. 2 Georgia outdueled No. 3 Alabama in an old-fashioned border war to win the team title.

More than 100 Georgia fans, wearing all black and looking rath-er like Johnny Cash, traded taunts and cheers with the rest of the SEC record crowd of 8,138, mostly boisterous Bama boosters.

The performances were just as intense as the fans. Georgia and Alabama hit routine after routine, and

UK faces more cuts

Staff reports

Kentucky state government's budget wees have continued, causing Gov. Brereton Jones to announce two weeks ago that this year's appropriations for most state agencies — including UK — are being cut 2 percent.

Primary and secondary edu-cation were among agencies exempted from the cut.

Jones had already ordered 2 percent of state appropriations to be withheld from agencies, in case the cut became neces-sary.

The cut totals $4.4 million The cut totals $4.4 million between the Lexington Campus and the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center, and $1.1 million for the community colleges, said Vice President for Management and Budget Ed Carter.

Jones' announcement car-ried more bad news. Next year's state appropriations for agencies are scheduled to in-crease 3 percent, but agencies were told to plan for another 2 percent cut next year. That would equal, with the 3 per-cent increase, about $4.5 mil-lion for the Lexington Cam-pus and the medical center and $1.2 million for the com-munity colleges, Carter said.

Russian president faces impeachment

Associated Press

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Russia's standing legislature took the first step yesterday toward impeaching President Boris Yeltsin, while outside thousands of protesters gathered to jeer or cheer the president.

A day after Yeltsin declared emergency rule in an effort to side-step legislative opponents of his economic reforms, the Supreme Soviet's action appeared to cement a stalemate. Yeltsin's chief legal adviser, Sergel Shakhrai, said earlier that the president would not step down if impeached.

Yeltsin's chief rival, parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov, and other political opponents accused the president of usurping power and leading the nation toward civil war. More Western governments offered support for the Russian leader, echoing President Clinton's statement Saturday that Yeltsin appeared the best hope for reform.

As long as the army and police stay neutral, neither Yeltsin nor the parliament appear able to enforce their decisions.

The result could be a chaotic period of what Russians call "dual power," in which two competing authorities claim to run the country and annul each other's decisions.

University to study effect of RU-486 on tumors

Associated Press

A national study is being launched in an effort to learn whether a controversial French "abortion pill" can be used to combat the common brain tumor and UK will participate, officials said.

The University announced Friday that it would take part in the study, stressing that the work will be limited strictly to cancer research and has nothing to do with the RU-486 pill's use for abortions.

The pill's potential for birth con-trol has overshadowed its other possible uses, according to French researchers. The pill, which was de-veloped in France, induces abortion by blocking a sex hormone required to sustain a growing embryo. Anti-abortion groups see it as a serious threat because it makes get-ting an abortion easier, taking a pill instead of undergoing a surgical procedure. procedure

The pill remains illegal to use for abortions in the United States, although it is available in France, England and Sweden.

The project at UK will focus on meningiomas," which are tumors gery who will direct the research at the Lexington campus. Meningiomas make up about 15 percent of the 20,000 new brain tu-mors diagnosed annually. Although slow-growing and considered be-nign, they can be fatal in some cas-es.

Meningiomas are resistant to tra-ditional chemotherapy and, depend-ing on their location, can be inoper-able.

Patchell says RU-486 may offer a new, non-surgical treatment.
Scientists know that most meningioma tumors contain molecules that bind with a normal human sex hormone known as progesterone. It is thought that progesterone may stimulate growth of the the tumors.
But RU-486 contains a potent drug called mitepristone, which blocks progesterone.
Patchell says the drug might prevent the meningioma tumors from

UK team testing Alzheimer's drug

Staff reports

A research team at UK soon will onduct a unique study of the safe y of a new medicine for the treat nent of Alzheimer's disease.

UK is the only center in the Unit-ed States that will test the drug at this time.

Although a cure for Alzheimer's disease does not exist, several new medications, including the drug UK will test, hold promise as therapies. The study will last three months and will use several doses of the medicine.
