PERSONALITY IN TEACHING

Colleges and universities of today are coming more and more to realize the value to the institution of men on the staff who possess striking or captivating personalities.

Doctor Jessup brings out the fact that the survival of any college over a period of years is due largely to the men who have lived in it.

In their attempts to arrive at recognition in the field of academic rating, many colleges and universities have placed altogether too much emphasis upon the external attributes of scholarship.

The depression, with increased enrollments, has especially taught institutions of learning the value of outstanding men of personality.

Although it might appear that the controversy at hand is one of scholarship versus personality, we do not believe such to be the case.

Those professors who maintain their positions by scholarship alone are sadly lacking in one of the essentials of a truly great teacher.

ENCOURAGING THE PRESS

Two legislative measures of importance to newspapermen and to devotees to the right of press freedom in general have recently been acted upon, the first by the Supreme Court and the second by the Kentucky general assembly.

Although this latter bill is interesting to Kentuckians, it should serve to show the nation at large that the trend of governing bodies toward honest and conscientious journalism is becoming more and more favorable.

Most of the captains of the university football teams in the last sixteen years are now outstanding successes in their respective fields.

reveal information they had received in confidence would have incited journalists all over the country to write scathing denunciations of a system that would allow anything of this sort to happen.

In Louisiana, the 1934 Long-controlled legislature passed a bill taxing newspapers with a circulation of 20,000 or over two per cent of their gross receipts.

Last week the Supreme Court, in a decision rendered by Associate Justice George Sutherland, declared that a tax on newspapers tended to reduce the power of the press, that such a tax was a "letter" to a free press.

Both cases indicate clearly that the days of journalistic oppression are over and that any return to them is being made virtually impossible by the action of our governing bodies.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Europe has become a series of armed camps, similar to the aspect she showed just prior to 1914. On every hand we find alliances, revolutions and other weapons equally dangerous to the peace of the world.

Spain has just completed a political revolution. During the recent election the government was turned over to the Leftist control, under Premier Manuel Azana.

The first official act of the newly-elected President was to free 30,000 political prisoners. In 1934 there was an uprising, at the close of which prisoners were taken.

The Ethiopian-Italian War continues in Northern Ethiopia. Italian attacks show the results of superior training and advanced methods of warfare.

The attempts of President Roosevelt to bring about a better understanding between the various countries of the Americas seems to have had a serious setback. War again looms in the Chaco.

Other countries of the world are looking forward to war, and are trying to make the best possible alliance for their country during the oncoming engagement.

Great Britain has warned Italy that there is no need to "prolong correspondence" on the Mediterranean problem.

Mussolini has been communicating with Hitler as to the European situation in general. They are particularly interested in knowing what would happen in case either country was attacked.

Despite the war-torn aspect of the world, it is very desirable that the United States remain neutral in all controversies.

Night and Day

Ice and snow sometimes brings out amusing incidents... Overheard two men talking... One related how his companion of a winter jaunt to an early class one morning had laughed when the speaker took a couple of tall spins on an slippery walk.

See the blazer is back in town... Randolph's flash... fresh from the naval academy... full of nautical terms, to impress commonplace landlubbers of the campus.

On Military

THOMAS S. BAKER, President CARNegie INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

I think that it has a definite value. In addition to the fundamental knowledge obtained, it develops qualities of leadership, loyalty, self-discipline, an appreciation of team work and a regard for lawfulness. Military and academic education are complementary.

Until the nations have outlawed war more effectively than has been accomplished to date, I believe this type of education to be desirable for reasons other than its benefits to the young man, and it is worthy of inclusion in a college curriculum.

student union building. The student union project at the University of Cincinnati, long discussed and much needed, became a reality late in 1935 when the Council of the City of Cincinnati voted to issue bonds for a large portion of the costs and the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works granted the balance.

Ground has been broken and the structure is expected to be completed by January, 1937. Its site is near the center of the University of Cincinnati campus and convenient to the two largest undergraduate colleges of the University.

The structure will follow the Georgian Colonial style of architecture, harmonizing with the adjacent Old Tech and Leathe Research Laboratory buildings. The building will be of three stories, with the exterior finish of brick trimmed with stone and a slate roof.

With sunlight exposure on three sides, the ground floor will offer ample quarters for the students co-operative book store, a small, informal lunchroom and soda fountain, six offices for student organizations and service facilities.

The second or main floor, which will be entered from the street level, will house a large student lounge, measuring 48 by 111 feet, a faculty dining room seating 200 persons and additional offices and meeting rooms for other organizations, such as the Cincinnati Bearcat, student newspaper, the Cincinnati student annual; the Student Council, and the Men's and Women's Senates.

The University Commons or student dining hall will be on the third floor. This room will measure 79 by 111 feet and will be equipped to serve 700 persons at one sitting. With its high arched ceiling and decorative windows this hall will also be available as a ball room.

The kitchens and seven private dining rooms seating from 30 to 120 persons also will be adjacent to the Commons on the third floor.

Two large recreation rooms have floor, one measuring 61 by 94 feet, the other 20 by 47 feet. The general design of the interior finish will be of plaster and knotty pine wainscoting. Rubber and mastic tile will be used on the floors except those of the corridors, which will be surfaced with terrazzo.

No final plans has been adopted for the upkeep, supervision and operation of the building, the upkeep cost of which will be financed through a student fee of $5. President Raymond Walters of the university has named a joint student-faculty committee to decide as to the distribution of space among student organizations and as to the form of control.

This committee has not presented a report, but it seems likely that the Cincinnati Union will be operated by a joint faculty and student committee, to which a full-time salaried director will be responsible.

For Digestion's Sake—smoke Camels

A QUIET PICTURE of student life? That's the way it looks—but underneath, nerves may be seething and digestion askew from the long grind. Turn to Camels—they promote good digestion.

Smoking Camels Found to Ease the Strain and Promote Well-Being Life gets more complex. The pace grows faster. Where do we see the effects? Frequently on digestion, so often overtaxed by the busy whirl! It is significant that smoking Camels has been established as a definite aid in promoting good digestion. You'll find it worth while to turn to Camels yourself. They have a mildness that never grows tiresome. Make the pleasant experience of smoking Camels part of your daily life, and see how much more zest you have for smoking and how your digestion is measurably improved. Camels set you right!

And now we come to one of modern life's most gracious privileges—dining at Keen's English Chop House in New York... famous gathering place of those who enjoy good living. We've noticed that patrons who appreciate fine foods also appreciate fine tobaccos," says William, of Keen's. "Camels are a favorite here. We've noticed that our guests who smoke Camels during and after meals seem to find more pleasure in dining."

IRON MAN.

Murray Murdock (in center), of the N. Y. Rangers, has played over 500 straight hockey games. "I often have to eat and run," Murray says. "Camels help me to digest my food."

JUNGLE BOUND!

"I smoke Camels for digestion's sake," says Frank Buck, famous wild animal collector. "Camels for favor!" he says. "They are rich and mellow, yet delicately mild."

Kentucky's basketball knights are off to the tournament wars and are ready to launch their offensive in the opening just tonight against Mississippi State.

If we were to name the probable winner it would be one of two clubs. Tennessee seems to merit the first choice with Kentucky a close second.

There are two reasons which cause us to name Tennessee as the logical victor. The first is that the Volunteers have won every game they have played this season on their home court.

The second reason for Tennessee's nomination as the top-seeded entry in our handicapping, is that even without the home floor under foot, the Vols still have a well-rounded ball team.

Kentucky is our second choice, however, only by a slender margin. Don't mistake us, we want to see the Wildcats come home as champions just as much as you do, but in this case we are merely trying to point out a few facts which will give some bearing on the situation.

It is our opinion that the best team in the tournament is Kentucky. Unfortunately, however, the best team sometimes does not come home with the laurels because when the firing has ceased, one of the difficulties the Wildcats have encountered during the past campaign is the seeming inability to hit their stride on a foreign floor.

Then, too, Kentucky has never this season, been much of a club for sustained brilliance. They have been at top form for most of their important tilts but in between they have lapsed into mediocrity even, through no apparent fault, when and if they are forced to play three games to capture the title there is no assurance that they will be able to keep themselves at the peak.

Next in order in the list of probable winners comes Alabama with Vanderbilt bringing up the fourth position. If there is a "dark horse" entry it is probably from Louisiana State, our choice for that dubious honor for lack of other possibilities.

So let the tournament get underway and let the best team win. But if the best team does, Kentucky will be the titleholder.

INTRAMURAL

Basketball intramural activities are in full swing now, with two divisions having already started playing off their games. The third, or independent division, has not started as yet.

One of the hardest fought games so far was Monday night when the Phi Dels defeated the S. A. E.'s 14-13 in the last few minutes of the game.

In the second division, the Sigma Chi's, strong favorites, defeated the Pi Kaps another strong team, 24-15. In other games in this division the K. A. S. defeated the A. T. S. 13-7 and the S. P. E.'s defeated the Kappa Sigis 16-12.

Entrants in the ping pong tournaments have been received and the tournament play will start February 24 in the basement of the Alumni gym.

THE WHITE SPOT

KENTUCKY WAS WINNER OF FIRST S. C. NET TOURNAMENT IN 1931

At the first Southern Conference basketball tournament, held in Atlanta in 1921, Kentucky was represented by one of its outstanding teams. Captained by Basil Hayden, the team was composed of Paul Adkins, Bill King, Lawrence Burnham and Bobby Lavin.

These Wildcats worked their way to the finals of this first tourney and in the last game were opposed by the powerful Bulldogs of Georgia. Georgia had been the favorite before the meet opened and had so far justified its choice.

But in this final game Kentucky matched the Bulldogs, basket for basket, until with but minute remaining to play. At this point the Wildcats were trailing by a single point, 19 to 17. Here is the picture.

The capacity audience jammed into the Atlanta auditorium, is on its feet shouting the majority pulling for the home state team, but some few urging on the Blue Grass representatives. Co-eds were howling for their heroes to kindle that final spark which would mean victory. In short, the vast hall was in an uproar.

Out on the floor the athletes, their eyes dull and their faces drawn are putting their concentrated efforts into these final few seconds which will be recalled long after these same athletes have walked the path of life.

King steps up to the line. Thousands, who just ten seconds ago were taking their vocal cords, are now deathly still. Then the timer's gun breaks the silence. The game is officially over. But King is still allowed his free throw according to the rules. He takes a new stance, deliberately.

Then he throws. The ball goes up and hits the rim of the hoop, bounces for a moment and falls through the netting. A man shouts, a woman faints, Kentucky wins the first championship.

Dust Over The Ruins by Helen Ashton—A story of adventure in a remote part of Northern Arabia. The plot deals with the strange chain of circumstances befalling a party of five archaeologists on an expedition. The blurb says: "The story is tense throughout, and has an element of strangeness which comes from the background of the 'dig,' when winter forces upon the party a maddening intimacy, with no chance of escape from the blinding desert light, the sting of the wind-blown wastes... and their own nerved nerves." Adventure and romance are combined in this, the latest of Helen Ashton's novels. Seven League Boots by Richard Halliburton—Of the many authors who go "globe trotting" and write of their travels, few produce interesting accounts. Richard Halliburton is one of those few. His travel books are read by all from the grammar grades up. Here is another "Royal Road to Romance" just off the presses.

Talk United States by Robert Whitcomb—At last a book more or less depicting American life and told in the American dialect... it's painfully authentic. Matt Williams is Americanized to the core and gives it to you straight. The boyhood days, slinging papers from a delivery truck, picking up a girl in Prospect Park, skipping out to ride the rods and see America, signing up for a trip on an ocean freighter, and finally beating it back to Chicago for more adventures. For you neighbors who are not informed on the exact meanings of terms such as "suck in the puss," "kibitzer," and such, the volume will be a liberal education... mighty liberal.

LUCKIES—A LIGHT SMOKE

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO—"IT'S TOASTED" Luckies are less acid. Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes. They include preliminary analyses of the tobaccos selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product. All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.
