Louisville Girl Defeats Dorothy Wunderlich For Presidency Of UKY Coeddom

380 GO TO POLLS; ROBINSON RETIRES

Ruth Johnson, Dorothy Santen, Mary Koppits, Rae Lewis In Other Posts

Francis Sadler, Louisville, junior in the College of Education, was elected president of the Association of Women Students, a self-government organization for women, in an election conducted by the association yesterday in the Administration building. Voting was done only by women students.

A total of 380 votes was cast in the election. The new president, an active worker in the Y. W. C. A. and president of Boyd hall, won over Dorothy Wunderlich, candidate for the office. She succeeds Virginia Robinson, retiring on the grounds of illness.

Other officers elected were vice-president, Rae Lewis, junior in the College of Commerce, who defeated Marie Hart; secretary, Dorothy Artis and Sciences, who won over Jane Potter; treasurer, Ruth Johnson, sophomore in the College of Commerce, and town representative, Mary Elizabeth Koppits, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, who defeated Ruth Johnson.

Candidates for the offices were announced by a committee composed of the Dean of the University, president of the association, and one of whose appointments was approved by that body. This method of nomination was inaugurated this year, in order to exclude the political bargaining which has characterized campus elections in past years.

Eligibility for the presidency of the A. W. S. requires that the girl complete five semesters of college work, at least three in the University. The vice-president must have completed three semesters, two of which must be in the University, and secretary, treasurer, and town representative must have completed two semesters in the University.

Having performed throughout the United States and Europe, Fowler and Tamara offered a varied program, pleasing to any follower of this art. Beginning with an "exotic dance," the modern dance, symbolic of East India, their selections continued through a French "Cantata," continental numbers, Spanish dances (the Tango of 1936, for example) to that of 1913, to a last entitled "The Debutante." The last was especially amusing, allowing the dancers to see themselves as they may appear to others. The final encore were in a similar vein, being brief satires on the dance as we commonly see it. The first two concerned the terpsichorean ability of a "tired business man dancing with his wife in a small town," and then the same person in New York with a chorus girl. Finally Miss Tamara impersonated Gloria Swanson in the role of Charlie Chaplin. Strauss popular "Blue Danube" was especially well received.

Fowler and Tamara presented themselves in a fascinatingly expressive manner, each number done with the utmost poise of the drama. Their attractive and appropriate costumes added vivid color to all.

Charles Rietsch was the brilliantly accomplished pianist who played a number of compositions in complement to the dancers' selections.

Prof. R. D. McIntyre again announced the concert program for the coming season. Miss Kathleen Meisner, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will open the series, followed by the vocalists, the Barbers, Britt concertina, Guimar Novaes, Brazilian pianist, and, finally, John Charles Thomas, baritone.

The Block and Bridge club will hold an important meeting Thursday night, April 15, at the Agricultural building. At this meeting the election of officers for the coming year will be held. All members are urged to attend.

The Dutch Lunch club will meet today at noon at the Maxwell Presbyterian church. There will be an election of officers for the coming year. Dr. D. V. Hegeman will speak on the "Status of Women in Germany."

The Senior Cabinet of the Y. W. C. A. will meet today at 3 p. m. in the Women's building.

The Worship Guild of the Y. W. C. A. will meet Monday at 3 p. m. in the Women's building, with Nancy Miller in charge of the program. The representatives of the peace group will discuss "The Christian Attitude Towards War."

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore Commission at 4:30 p. m. in the Women's building, with Frances Kerr, the Girl Reserve secretary, as the main speaker.

ACADEMIC HALITOSIS

People who perform in public are constantly subjected to condemnation or praise. When the comedian's retorts lose their saltiness and freshness, the public turns to someone else.

Another individual who earns his livelihood by competing with the public is the professor. Yet if his performance is uncolorful, unimpressive, his owner whips him not.

Here in the University are several bland bors whose prominence is blamable on a collegiate peerage (Professor), given to him by educational magnates. It is solely because of this brand (Professor) that students act respectfully towards him.

Year after year students complain about the same professors. The employers do nothing about it. Perhaps they are unconscious of this scholastic poison. But this campus disease must be antidoted.

The comedian, the actress, the senator, and the athlete were all fired at the first sign of incompetence. Why spare the professor?

Every man will have his own criterion in forming his judgment of others. I depend very much on the effect of affliction. I consider how a man comes out of the furnace; gold will lie for a month in a furnace without losing a grain.—Richard Cecil.

CUTTIN' UP THE CAMPUS

CAMPUSOUNDS:

Disillusion—"Gee, kids, I heard some seniors say that honoraries are the bunk!"

Sarcasm—"He's been unhappy ever since he discovered that some coeds on the campus don't know who he is—and now that he's found that they don't care, either, he's inconsolable!"

Ridicule—"Why don't you sit down some time and just think? Or can you?"

Horror—"He was trying to tell the gal that he wanted to call the whole thing off, but got so sentimental and flowery while he was doing it that she thought it was a proposal—and now he's stuck!"

Humor—"Can I bring a friend?"

Sentiment—"Of course I love her! Haven't I been flunking all of my classes since we met?"

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT—you've been writing in my diary the last three days, roommate!

CAMPUSIGHS:

- 1. Explaining to your heartbeat back home about that little scandal column item.
2. Explaining to your professor about missing that last exam.
3. Explaining to your gal friend about what you were doing with her date the other night.
4. Explaining to your family about why the next check has to be a large one.
5. Explaining.

THEO-RIES:

And then there was the professor who thought he was making friends with all of his stoogents everytime he made a play for a pretty coed!

Seemingly So...

According to recent newspaper dispatches the Nazi government of Germany has issued a decree whereby all invalids of Germany are to be made fit for the coming war. The method by which such a miracle is to be accomplished is through an extensive program of physical exercise.

According to the plan the invalids will start with a light exercise with dumb-bells and gradually work into more vigorous forms of exercise such as road work, at the end of which the invalids are expected to march with the regular army with packs on their backs.

This and many other decrees of the Hitler government cannot help but bring forth contempt and disgust from democratic countries. Such decrees easily point out the brutality of the German government and promote a feeling of pity for the German people.

The man, Hitler, is a character to incite the most passive imagination. One often wonders if he and others like him are not born in incubators. It is hard to believe that men of this type could have had a mother.

The tactics of Hitler and his right-hand men are inhuman, unjust, and contradictory to all religious, moral, and mental ethics. Just how far Hitler intends to go in this suppression may be seen in the fact that he is to have himself supplanted for Christ in the Bible.

It is not for this writer of this column to start expounding his or anyone else's religious beliefs, but in regard to Hitler, the writer feels safe in saying that all Christian religions regard him in somewhat the same manner.

Even the most religious of persons, whether they will admit it or not, must revel in the satisfaction that in the life beyond this world there will be some sort of reckoning for those who here on earth have been dealt unmercifully with their fellow beings.

There is a sublime satisfaction in the knowledge that revenge and justice will be meted out to such persons. But at the same time one cannot help but feel sorry for such individuals whose destiny is without hope, whose soul is without compassion, and whose very existence is either openly or secretly despised by the world.

It is indeed a paradoxical situation in which one can hate and pity a person at the same time.

BAND PREPARES FOR PARADE

Man-Made Sand Storms Are Now On Exhibition

Floods, and now sand storms! Sand storms in Kentucky? Yes, in the heart of the Blue Grass, shifting sands have completely engulfed one whole area and have completely buried two houses in that area. State geologists say there is no danger, however, of the sand spreading to other sections of the state as the condition is only one of local extent.

Is this geological phenomena a result of soil erosion, or is it brought about through lack of soil preservation? Is it a result of improper farming or lack of rain? No, this sand storm was not caused by any of these conditions. In fact, this sandy area only covers about 18 square feet; the sand is only two inches deep and the sand covered houses are only three inches high.

These Central Kentucky sand storms are man made and are completely glass enclosed so that no one need worry about the sands shifting to other sections of the state. The department of geology at the University has a small model of a typical sand storm area, run by a blower fan.

The students at the University use this small working model in their geology studies. The blower is set at one end of the glass-enclosed model and can be set at different speeds to correspond with wind changes similar to real storms. The sand is allowed to blow against small houses set up in the model, and according to natural processes the sand slowly catches against the houses and gradually erodes them until small sand dunes are formed. Later the dunes shift on and new ones take their place, just like a typical western dust storm.

According to University geology instructors, Kentuckians won't have to worry about sand or dust storms ever covering their homes. In fact, the nearest sand-covered area is in Dune Park, Mich. Therefore, we will only have to concern ourselves with the flood situations and for the present, let the sands "shift for themselves."

STUNG BY THE DEFEAT handed them Saturday afternoon by the Dark Blue team, Coach Chet Wynne's Light Blue gridmen thoroughly trounced the former lepid on the practice field Wednesday afternoon by the lopsided score of 24-0, in the second practice game of the trying session.

The mistakes of Saturday afternoon proved advantageous to both elevens Wednesday, as they both showed improvement. The number of corrections to be made, questioned as to the respective merits of his men, Coach Wynne said, "Until a regularly scheduled game has been played, they all look the same to me."

A notable feature of Wednesday's game was the improvement shown by the Blue Diamond Bump, Luke London. This pachyderm was to be seen at the bottom of nearly every pile-up with his mighty arms pinning the ball-carrier down.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' professional football club might well be called the finishing school for University of Kentucky players. In 1932, after his graduation from this institution, "Shipwreck" Kelly made his debut as one of the Dodger halfbacks, playing with the great Chris Cagle of Army fame.

AG PLEDGES (Continued from Page One) club vacation scholarship to a camp in Michigan. Frank Bell, Providence, was awarded the senior medal for making the highest score for a senior in the annual livestock judging contest held by the Block and Bridle club.

Kentucky's famous "dry-land" swimming team is at present enjoying a short respite before engaging some of the collegiate clubs of the state again. This organization, without a pool of its own, has defeated several of the teams of K. I. A. C. colleges including Berea and Eastern.
