

The University Senate met in regular session at 3:00 p.m., Monday, September 11, 1972, in the Court Room of the Law Building. Chairman Flickinger presided. Members absent: Staley F. Adams*, A. D. Albright, Lawrence A. Allen*, James R. Barclay*, Charles E. Barnhart, Thomas G. Berry, Norman F. Billups*, Harold R. Binkley*, Wesley J. Birge*, Harry M. Bohannon, Louis L. Boyarsky*, Garnett L. Bradford*, Mary R. Brown*, Sally Brown, Lowell P. Bush*, S. K. Chan*, Jose M. Concon*, Alfred L. Crabb, Larry Craft*, Glenwood L. Creech, Stephen Diachun*, George A. Digenis*, R. Lewis Donohew*, Anthony Eardley, Jannette Fallen, Paul G. Forand, Joseph R. Fordham*, Michael B. Freeman*, James E. Funk*, Eugene Gallagher*, Richard E. Gift*, John V. Haley, Jack B. Hall, Joseph Hamburg, Charles F. Haywood*, Andrew J. Hiatt*, Raymon D. Johnson, Robert F. Lawson, John L. Madden, William L. Matthews, Thomas P. Mullaney*, Vernon A. Musselman*, J. W. Patterson*, Nicholas J. Pisacano, Sheldon Rovin*, John S. Scarborough, Eugene J. Small, Dennis Stuckey, Shelby Thompson, Nancy Totten*, S. Sidney Ulmer*, H. Mac Vandiviere, Jacinto J. Vazquez*, M. Stanley Wall, Daniel L. Weiss, David R. Wekstein*, Harry E. Wheeler*, Raymond A. Wilkie*, Paul A. Willis*, William W. Winternitz*, and Leon Zolondek*.

The minutes of May 8, 1972 were approved as circulated.

The Chairman asked the newly elected Senators to stand and they were welcomed by the Senate.

The members of the Senate Council were introduced. They are Dr. Garrett Flickinger, Chairman; Dr. Michael Adelstein, Chairman-elect, who will assume the Chairmanship effective January 1, 1973; Dr. Staley F. Adams, Dr. Timothy H. Taylor, Dr. Sheldon Rovin, Professor Paul Oberst, Dr. Constance P. Wilson, Dr. Jacqueline Noonan, Dr. Stanford Smith, Mr. Howell Hopson, student member, Mr. Scott Wendelsdorf, Student Government President; and a vacancy created by the resignation of Wendy McCarty, student member, which is yet to be filled.

The Chairman also introduced the Secretary and Recording Secretary of the University Senate, and the secretary in the office of the Senate Council.

Dr. Flickinger presented Dr. Otis A. Singletary, President of the University of Kentucky, who addressed the University Senate. The context of his address follows:

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Senate:

It is a pleasure to be here this afternoon for this first meeting of the Senate in this school year, to have an occasion to welcome you back, and to say something about what has been and is going on on this campus in some areas that you may or may not be aware of. You may recall, those of you who were members of the Senate last year, that at the opening session I gave a somewhat formal talk that had to do with a ten-year look at the institution and some projections for the future. About the best thing that can be said about that is we only have to do it once a decade. It does not have to be repeated now. However, in a less formal way, I would like to pursue some of the topics that were broached a year ago. I hope to do this in the future, as we look at this institution in the context of what we have already enunciated as goals, or concerns, or objectives. Certainly, I believe we are in general agreement on a number of things that need to be done. I would like to make sure that there is at least some awareness in the community of what is being done and what, hopefully, might be done.

*Absence explained

A year ago I talked about academic programs and their future on this campus -- what was likely to happen. I am happy to say that since that time there are some new programs around, and most of you are aware of some of them, but I am not sure that you are aware of all of them.

The Bachelor of General Studies degree which took up a good bit of the time of this body last year is one clear example. Another is the masters program in Computer Science. I hope you are aware of the fact that the University moved last year in the UYA program, an experiential learning program, the University Year in Action. You should, I think, be aware of the development of a joint UK-U of L program in Musicology at the graduate level. If you have not read it in the newspaper, we are creating a Department of Family Practice to be activated in July of this coming year. We have located the Chairman and are now trying to ready facilities and recruit the staff. A Department of Rehabilitation Medicine is also being created, in the Medical Center but the Chairman has not yet been named.

In the area of undergraduate studies, a number of things have happened that I think are noteworthy. The Senate's Report on Accelerated Programs was a very helpful step in giving some emphasis to wider use of things like the CLEP program, Advanced Placement, and special examinations of one kind or another. Advising, which plagues all large institutions and, I suspect, a large number of small ones, continues to be a problem here. The Advising Information Center was created on this campus last year. We are hopeful that it will be of some help, at least to a student who, having reached the point where he or she wants to find out something, can go to that place and find it out. The idea is to keep some up-to-date information in one specific spot on this campus about the academic programs. We are hopeful that there will be a University Advisor's Handbook published this year. John Stephenson is working on that. We are looking forward to the publication of another issue of the Special Academic Opportunities at the University, a supplement that was put out last year. I think we tend to assume that students know about lots of programs on this campus that actually they really do not know about. I think we are going to see a Committee on the Freshman Year at work during this school year; and also, if we can put the resources together, the creation of an Instructional Resources Unit that we hope will be helpful to members of the faculty and to teaching assistants.

There are a number of other things that probably bear mentioning that are related to the academic area -- the newly-created Institute for Mining and Minerals Research, state-funded, is in its first year of operation. The Tobacco and Health Program, which also comes from state funds, is under way. We are now looking at the possibilities of some kind of new facility or structure in which these operations can take place.

A number of other things -- a special education program which has had considerable outside support and is engaged in a number of important activities. Whether you know it or not, the University Press of Kentucky has had its best year in history in terms of volume of sales and publications, and the University's Research Foundation has had the highest dollar volume of extramural support, in this past year in the University's history -- the previous high being the year, 1969.

All of these things, I think, bear some tidings for future developments and, I hope, some brightness of outlook.

We also said a year ago something about graduate and professional education at this University and the basic assumption we made was that we were not turning our backs on this -- that it was an appropriate role for the state University -- and I repeat that as a statement now.

I will not bother to talk about the new degree programs in the University and in the Allied Health areas, in particular. There are a couple of international programs that you, perhaps, know about; the one that has to do with Thailand, which centers in the College of Agriculture and the Venezuelan project that centers in the College of Education. I think there are about four Ph.D. programs that are in various stages of consideration within the University, and what we will do with these is really not yet clear. I say this because the Council on Public Higher Education has declared a moratorium on all new degree programs, and I think we will have to have something other than our own preferences and desires to get such programs through. We have managed to get one M.A. program through since the moratorium was declared, and we did that on the basis of demonstrated need for that program, here and now. I would hope that in this year we are going to get under way in the business of evaluating graduate programs--and undergraduate programs, for that matter--but I think we have got to give a fairly hard look at the range of graduate offerings and answer those difficult questions: Are we doing what we ought to be doing and, if we are, are we doing them the way we ought to be doing them? Dean Royster has a very clear commitment to move in the direction of evaluation of the graduate offerings.

I might also say something about that perennial topic of interest to all of us, the financial situation at the University. Clearly that problem is not going to go away; it is going to come back to us annually and, more pointedly, biennially, and I think we need to have some view in front of us constantly about what the currents at play are. In terms of state appropriation, you know that in the last legislature, while we did not get what we wanted, and, in some cases, what we needed, we did get a continuation budget with some fairly carefully-selected areas of new program money. I suspect that kind of scrutiny is going to continue, and perhaps tighten, in our state. We have also seen in this year an increase in tuition, and another one has been established for next year. Tuition for in-state students has gone up $75 a year this year and will go up another $75 a year next year. This was action taken by the Council on Public Higher Education during the past year, and I think it is going to have some implication for this and the other campuses in the state. There is a point where suddenly the question of being able to pay the fees of the institution becomes a determining factor as to who goes and who does not go. I think it is time we began to get more concerned about this question because I fear that we are seeing this country of ours in an escalation of costs -- not by any escalation of dollars for student loans, grants or scholarships -- that is going to take a toll. With reference to federal programs -- I am probably more informed than you are about what actually happened. Higher education and legislation in the past, as is usually the case, have been a lot longer on authorization than they have on appropriation. It is also true that we got a letter not long ago that verified what we all suspected, that it would be too late for these programs to be affected favorably this year. Therefore, it is going to be business as usual in the appropriation of monies.

I would like to report to you something that I suspect is not very widely known and that is the developments on the front of attempting to secure private money for this University. You have heard me say before that there has been no wide-scale tradition of giving to the University of Kentucky. I make that statement as a matter of fact, and not as a matter of condemnation. We have tried in the last couple of years to create a University development group and to get various programs under way. I think it should be of interest to you that they are, in fact, under way. For example, there is the University Fellows Program. The University Fellow is someone who has given the University $10,000 or more. There are several ways they can do this. But the point I would mention to you now is that we have approximately 119 University Fellows at this time. We have developed an Annual Giving Program, an organized systematic way to go at the question of annual gifts to the University, and I am pleased to report to you here that in this first year we already have over 232 people who belong to the so-called Hundred Club, who give $100 or more to the annual giving program of the University. For comparative data, in the last six months of last year we received something like 1800 gifts for a total of $72,000. This was the over-all picture of gifts to the University. So far in the first eight months of this calendar year we have over 3100 gifts and over $134,000 in annual giving specifically; that does not include the general development. When you take all the development gifts, grants, requests, combined we have, so far, over 4200 gifts and slightly more than a half-million dollars given to the University. The reason I take the trouble to give you these facts is that I think it shows what we have suspected all along, and that is that if we could make an effort to organize and develop such a program, we could, in fact, expect some reasonable level of support from our graduates, corporations, foundations, and other sources. I find that very encouraging, and I hope that you will.

We talked a year ago about the hope that the physical facilities of this University could be paid some attention, and I am pleased to say to you that, to the degree this is possible, we are doing so. There is something in the vicinity of twenty-five million dollars worth of construction now under way of academic facilities in the System. Such buildings as the Animal Sciences Building, which is nearing completion, the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building, the Library Addition which you see, a Community College at Madisonville under construction, the whole utilities complex that you know about, because I am sure that you stumble and fall at the open trenches, and hide behind the earthworks, as everybody else does, going to and from your duties, but that is likely to continue for a while or, hopefully, it is going to continue for a while because these disaccommodations are signs of some good things going on, and I hope that you can tolerate the temporary disability. In addition to that 25 million dollars, there are two other projects under construction here in Lexington that are primarily and principally with funds from another source -- the often-discussed stadium being one of those with the state's nine-million dollar bond issue, and the new Veterans Administration Hospital which will be finished in this year that we are entering. I am told that about the best estimate one can make is that that hospital, when it opens, will represent about a seventeen-million dollar facility, and it is going to have some real impact on our programs and services.

Looking to the future in terms of the physical facilities, I would say that we could sit down and very easily tot up a score of another thirty-million dollars worth of projects that we would like to see constructed -- Biological Sciences, an addition to the hospital, Family Practice space, nursing. Believe me, when I tell you there are many, many, many needs and requests for space. Along with that we are now spending, in this year, about a million dollars in renovation, and I hope that you have noticed. Those of you who are back have seen some of the changes that have taken place. The renovation dollars help make it possible for us to improve old and declining facilities and make them somewhat more useful. If you have not seen what has been done with the old Porter Memorial Church, you ought to look at it. If you have not seen some of the labs in Funkhouser, and classrooms for that matter, I hope you will look at them. And then some of the older buildings here in the Quadrangle. We have to continue to put a certain number of our dollars into the renovation and improvement of existing buildings. We simply cannot afford to tear down or to let them remain fallow. I have a feeling that we are in relatively good shape as far as our physical facilities are concerned.

The Medical Center? Everybody's goal, I think, can reasonably be the making of a better and more serviceable Medical Center and I think that some things have happened in this last year that indicate our movement in that direction. I mentioned the two new programs. The Student Health Service has had, I think, a right significant milestone. I am not sure that this figure is precise and that I will not be held accountable for it, but I think we have something like 75 per cent voluntary cooperation in that part of the Student Health Center Service that represents expanded service, where the students, themselves, are coming in and paying a certain number of dollars to provide a certain level of coverage. And that is all to the good. The V.A. Hospital is going to do a great deal to increase the range of services, programs, activities, in the medical field, and one of the most striking figures, because this not happening all over the country, is that we have seen an increase in the size of the incoming class in the Medical School. Everybody knows the crying need for more doctors, and other needs, such as the distribution of doctors, in this country, but it is at the medical school level where something has to be done about training more doctors. In the last four years we grew from an entering class of 75 up to an entering class of 103-105, and in the next two years we will move that up probably in the range of 115 or so. But at any rate, we do see that the opening of the V.A. Hospital and the rest of it has given us the necessary resources to train some additional medical students, and we are moving to do that.

I would go on beyond that somewhat to talk about the Community College System. We have the Lexington Technical Institute as an integral part of this campus, right here. In Lexington, we tend not to see or hear too much about the Community Colleges but we ought to be aware of the fact that, as part of our University System, there is this Community College System that is doing, I think, a very impressive job. The things that have happened there in the last year help, I think, to settle some of the dust around. We have issued a new Policy Statement which is the basic document approved by the Board of Trustees for the Community Colleges. We have also gotten the question of academic titles settled there. We have issued a document on appointment, promotion, termination, and tenure for Community College faculty members and relied very heavily on the basic document used on the Lexington campus. We have instituted the division structure, and incorporated Fort Knox. It was rated before sort of as a Community College, and the plain fact is it is now offering work through the College of Arts and Sciences on this campus and no longer is a part of the Community College System. In turn, up at Southwest Jefferson, we have created a new Community College campus as a satellite, you might say, of Jefferson Community College, to deal with that population. I haven't seen the enrollment figures for Southwest Jefferson, but I suspect that we will have a hard time meeting the need. You might be interested to know that we are now offering through the state some 36 associate degree programs in the Community College structure and that about one-fourth of the students in that System are in those associate degree terminal programs. The remainder are in the college-parallel curriculum. The Council on Higher Education has appointed a committee of which Vice President Wall is chairman, to do something about this problem, if there is one, of articulation between the Community Colleges and all the four-year institutions, not just the University. That committee is at work, and we are hoping that they will facilitate a much smoother transition to the four year institutions. Certainly, we have every reason, I think, to be proud of the Community College movement in this state. When one realizes the limited resources that have been available to it, I think the achievements, in terms of the programs, personnel, recruiting and staffing of those facilities within such a short time, are phenomenal. We are probably going to have something like 11,000 students in the Community Colleges in the University's System this year. I believe that the Community Colleges really do represent the best of two worlds. On the one hand they have the advantages that come from University affiliation, and our contribution from this campus to the Community College System has been significant. But in addition to that, they also, through their local advisory boards, have a measure of autonomy and local concern that gives them the ability to respond to the felt needs in their community and I think that is a system that is hard to beat.

We are now preparing for the next round in the annual evaluation and methods of performance review. A committee is, in fact, already at work. What we want is feedback from those of you who are interested, and I gather almost everyone is interested in this business of faculty evaluation and performance review. I am not sure there is any ultimate solution to this but we are willing to keep finding out what it is that is wrong with that system the last time around and trying to eliminate it the next time around; and giving you the opportunity to find out what new is wrong with it, so we can try and deal with that. The fact of the matter is there is a very strong feeling in favor of performance review. We simply are not sure that we have come up with any good way to do it. The Committee will do the work, and any of you who have input to that committee that you want to make, I hope you will do so. Certainly you will be interested to know that we have recently appointed a committee to draft and, hopefully, soon publish a faculty-staff retirement benefit book. There just isn't any such thing around on this campus, and we are hopeful that, in the course of this year, we will get both the content decided upon, and some kind of publication available to members of the faculty and staff about retirement benefits.

We have continued the summer program and grants for the improvement of teaching and we have just had the second of our graduate teaching assistant orientation programs and from what I saw of the one this year, I thought it was probably very helpful and certainly hope that is the case.

In the case of students, I think you will be interested in an overview of the enrollment situation. I begin this by saying that we did not, and are not going to have, the kind of enrollment increase that we anticipated as recently as 90 days ago. This is I suppose, not so surprising since it is the national trend. Two years ago we had a nine per cent increase, and last year, 10 per cent. I don't know what it is going to be this year yet, but I don't think that it is going to approximate those figures at all, and I think there are a number of reasons. I mentioned tuition awhile ago. Tuition, by itself, probably, is not what keeps youngsters out of school, but as these costs go up, and it isn't just tuition -- everything -- the whole inflation of this economy is affecting students as well as everybody else. And the cost is a very serious factor. It is by no means the only one. There are a lot of people who, for one or another reason, have just opted out, some through disenchantment, who do not happen to believe that what is going on here is relevant to their purposes, and, that being the case, are opting for other things. Some who are deciding on other kinds of educational opportunities, some going into community college terminal and vocational programs. Many, many things, I think, go into this, but the fact is that what is a national phenomenon, is affecting us as much as it is anybody else, and I will await with interest to see what happens here and in the rest of the state, in the enrollment area.

You will be interested in this. Figures indicate that we have a significant drop in Education and Engineering in the number of students; and a fairly stable enrollment in the Graduate School, Business and Economics, in Architecture and in Arts and Sciences -- not too much plus or minus. And a very high level of enrollment increase in Home Economics, Allied Health, in the Social Professions, in Agriculture, and in Nursing; in fact, the pressure on the Nursing school is just fantastic, and I suspect is going to continue.

We also have undertaken some efforts to improve UK's performance in the area of the minority student. Last year we created, as you will recall, the Office of Minority Student Affairs. That office has had a person added to its staff this year. In addition, the University is participating in a federally financed talent search grant, which we hope will bear some fruit. A new assignment has been made in the Registrar's Office, where we can have some focal point where the problems of registration, etc., can be handled. We are moving to do what we can and I hope that these efforts will be productive. I would add one word about another group of students here -- what, for lack of a better phrase, I would call the academically-talented student. We don't do much at this University in the way of providing encouragement for the really superior student to come to this institution. We get a lot of them,

I am happy to say, and they come, I suspect, from certain natural attractions this place has. Not all academic, I suspect, but in any event, they are very real. The Honors Program does, however, get a relatively small grant out of whatever funds are available, and I think last year we had about 10 small scholarships that we were able to offer in competition. We not only got the 10 that were chosen but I suspect a number of others who were competitors in that program, and I received a report no later than this morning about that with the request that those funds be made available. I suspect Professor Evans knew that today would be a good day to make that request. I will tell you that before you get an answer, in writing, I will give it to you verbally, and the answer is "yes", I think we should continue.

A number of things I would classify in the general area of administrative developments, things that I am not at all sure that you are aware of but things that I believe you should be aware of. You, no doubt, are aware of the fact that we had a banner year in deans last year. We had great turnover in the Deans' Corps: Dean Royster beginning his first year as Graduate Dean; Art Gallaher has taken over in Arts and Sciences; Dean Funk in Engineering, replacing Bob Drake, who resigned his deanship; Dean Eardley in Architecture, who is here on campus in his first year; Dean McKenna in Nursing; we've had a rather significant turnover in Deans within the last year. I would like to see that problem get somewhat more stabilized than this. We are still in the process of looking for two. We are looking now, and are fairly well down the road, I think, in the identification of candidates for the Home Economics deanship, and the Search Committee of the Law School is still at work in identifying candidates for that position. I would hope that we can settle both before we get too far into this academic year.

Another thing happened just before school let out that probably either went unnoticed by you or, if you noticed it at all, it was to be outraged by bureaucratic heavy-handedness. That was the publication of the Governing Regulations and Administrative Regulations. This has a story that is worth repeating. When I came here, in reading literature, I was made aware of the fact that there were three sources of all wisdom on this campus, the Governing Regulations, the Senate Rules and Regulations, and the Administrative Regulations. I got the Governing Regulations very fast since they were being re-written. Now they were a matter of very real interest to everybody on this campus at the time so I did get some familiarity with them. And then I did locate the Senate Rules and was able to look at those and read them. And then I began looking for the Administrative Regulations that were the third component, and after considerable fencing, it was finally made abundantly clear to me that there weren't any and that there never had been. There were some documents floating around that were Policy Statements, but there was no compilation of any of these in any systematic way. Well, we determined to do something about it, and the result is the publication of a number of Administrative Regulations that were issued and we waited till we got a rather substantial number, to promulgate. As a matter of fact, if this does sound like just a bunch of bureaucratic nonsense, let me tell you there are some very important documents in there and it was high time that this was done.

I will say further that it was largely through the efforts of a member of this body, Professor Paul Sears, who is on part-time assignment to my office. Paul Sears did yeoman's work in getting these identified and getting them re-written and cleared through the various bodies that had input to them and I am hopeful that we now are beginning to have available, in print, the things you can refer to when you have questions pertaining to, I think, some very important matters. If I may take a minute, I will bore you with this because I suspect that for some of you it may turn out to be important. First of all, we have about 10 absolutely new regulations, or interpretations, in there. There is one in there that you won't believe, but you can go ahead and look at it. It describes the responsibilities of the officers of Central Administration. When you have nothing else to do, you can read that for kicks. The policy for faculty performance review is in there; you had better read it fast because it will come out and another one will go in very shortly; budget policies and procedures; consulting and overload employment; enrollment of post-doctoral scholars, interns, residents, and clinical fellows; copyrights and property rights; educational opportunities for University employees; the Community College faculty document I mentioned a moment ago; management and allocation of space for the renovation of existing structures; policies for receiving gifts, etc. We also revised a number that were already around, and some of these, I suspect, are very important: A part of the so-called Garrigus Committee report which has been looked over very carefully and is there for you. There have been questions about what the policies were or ought to be. Now, at least, there is something specific for you to look at: a Policy Statement on the Community College System, etc. We still have a number of others--ones that had already existed that were included in there: the off-campus speaker policy that you recall from an earlier time; a policy about appearing before the Board of Trustees, etc. We are working on a number of others that I suspect will be considered in the course of this year and, as adopted, will, in fact, be issued; for example, the use of Memorial Coliseum, Memorial Hall, time, place, and manner, which has been kicking around for over a year, policies and procedures for the review of educational units, policies dealing with contracts and grants, use of computer resources, personnel records. A number of these are now in one stage or another, and we hope to get them included. I say again, and then I will leave this topic - this is an attempt to bring it together into some kind of coherency. The only thing I warn you about is that you may just have to thumb through it and find it if you are looking for something. Sears never convinced me that that numbering system we have in there will work. But if you can't find it any other way, call Sears.

I think you also are probably already aware, so I will only mention it in passing, that we have created several specific focal points -- offices on this campus -- to deal with certain kinds of problems, where people can go to establish this. I mentioned the Minority Affairs Office. You also should be aware of the creation of the Action Office with Nancy Ray. Whatever else it becomes, we expect that office to become a focal point for those specific concerns of the women on this campus. In addition to that, we have created in the Registrar's Office, an Office of Veterans' Affairs. We have over 2,000 veterans on this campus and they have had no particular point to which they could go to identify or get information about the various services, etc. of the campus. We are trying to meet these needs, as resources become available.

I would like to say a little more about the affirmative action business. We are in the process of talking with HEW about a compliance review that will take place, I suspect, this year on this campus. An official from HEW will come to this campus for a stated period of time and will conduct an in-depth review of the situation as it exists here. We have had an earlier meeting with them -- we deal with the people out of the Regional Office in Atlanta -- and they asked for certain information which we immediately provided - computer print-outs of one kind or another - they have had that for some time. In fact, we will be talking with them again very shortly about procedures, etc. and about a time for them to come. I cannot announce now when that will be because I do not know. But I suspect we will know in the near future, and that will be circulated. There is a problem involved in this that has surfaced and I do not pretend to have any resolution for it at this point, and that is the problem that goes to the question of confidentiality of records. It is my understanding that what they are seeking is the free and unrestricted access to our staff and personnel files. That creates a very real problem as many of you may know. Lots of letters are in those files which were solicited for people on the grounds that they would be handled as confidential information, and I have a hard time with the concept of people wandering in to look over a file. I have no quarrel with their right to have access to the information they need to render a judgment on the question before them, but that does not go with the question of free and unlimited access into the personnel files. I see two situations here - the ultimate weapon they have, if they were to choose to use it, is to cut off federal funds at this institution, and I need hardly tell you that is a serious consequence for this or any similar institution. It is not to be taken lightly. I am troubled at that thought. Beyond that, I also am not at all sure that there isn't an issue here that ought to be resolved somewhere down the line about what the real authority of a federal agency is in this matter: the question of the rights of faculty and staff members of this institution not to have their records looked at by somebody, in an open and unrestricted way, because they happen to want to do that. I find myself in the usual box of wanting, on the one hand, to cooperate to the degree that we can in providing the information they need but being hooked on the principle of the confidentiality of these records, and we are looking at this now and as many of you know, if you follow these accounts around the country, they are matters of very real concern at several institutions. There have been threatened lawsuits and all the rest of this, but to my knowledge, no such case has yet been positive. I don't know that we will and I don't know that we won't but we will be talking to them to see if there is any resolution of this problem on a basis that is mutually acceptable. I say again, because you will hear a lot of folklore about this, it is not our intention to take a non-cooperative stance with these people. We have already, as a token of our good faith, given them the information they have asked us for. Where we are going to have trouble is when they come up and say "We want the file of X". That is essentially the problem that I can see coming.

I would mention to you very briefly, because I have another meeting coming up, that the Office of Institutional Planning has a number of groups at work on projects of interest to some of you. Performance review I have already mentioned. A group is looking at this question of University goals in an attempt to articulate some kind of basic policy statement about the University's responsibilities. Another group is looking at this whole question of program analysis and assessment. What are the criteria we are going to use if we are going to evaluate these units, etc. Another group is looking at enrollment policies -- where should we move in this University to restrict enrollment. And how, And with what ramifications. I would also like to say that I am pleased to learn of the appointment recently of certain Senate committees that will have assignments that I think are going to be of very real interest and of significance to this community. One committee has been appointed, as I understand it, to look at the Senate, itself, in terms of its status and function; another is looking at this matter of evaluating tenure and promotion; still another is looking at General Studies and I gather outside the context of some specific proposal but to take a look at the over-all question of General Studies in this University. Still another one, and I suspect one that is long overdue, is to come to grips with this question of the role and status of the graduate student particularly the graduate teaching assistant in the University, and I am told that discussions are still going on about a Faculty Code. I don't know much more than that at this point. I would say one other thing. I can see an administrative structuring problem. Now that we have settled the Deanship of Arts and Sciences I think now we will move to look, and look very carefully, at the question of restructuring that College. There is general agreement that it is kind of cumbersome and clumsy and unwieldy and it is literally more than one person can say grace over. But there are many alternatives and many considerations to go into this, and I have already talked to Dean Gallaher and I have asked him to be thinking in terms and be seeking advice from his own people about the alternatives that are involved because I would think that in the natural order of things this year we are going to try and come to grips with that question of restructuring, and I promise you that it will not be easy.

Well, there are other things, but I assume that I have done enough to your patience and tolerance this afternoon.

A year ago, at this same occasion, I also made the statement that I thought there was reasonable room for some degree of optimism about this institution; that I believed it was in a relatively strong position. I simply want to reiterate that. I still believe that to be true and probably believe it more than I did a year ago. We have our fair share of the problems and most of you know about them, I am sure. But if anyone is willing to take a look at the larger picture of the University of Kentucky, not just that part that touches you every day, and not just that part that you are involved in, but if you will kind of back off and look at it for what it is -- which is a very large and complicated and complex enterprise -- then I think you can see some very interesting and impressive things. I think you can see that we have been and are continuing to educate an awful lot of young people, and that number continues to increase whatever the relativity of that increase. I think you can see that we have somehow managed to choke and absorb the inflation that has, in effect, hit everybody in all institutions and enterprises of this country. I think you can see that we have, indeed, expanded our graduate and undergraduate programs and are continuing to do so; that we have enlarged and modernized the physical plant and we still have a good bit to do. We created a Medical Center that is impressive in its accomplishments, and a Community College System that nobody would have believed, just a few short years ago, could be where it is today. We have acquired additional lands for the growth and development of this University and provided a far wider range of services to the people of this Commonwealth than we were doing a brief few years ago. I think it is to our credit that we have moved in that time and are moving today in the direction of becoming one of the major research centers and one that I suspect Kentucky has needed. I guess what I am saying to you is that we are all part of an institution that is actively pursuing its primary tasks of teaching and research and public service; that we are part of a University that is expanding its services to this Commonwealth; a University that has given evidence of its commitment to what people say you can't do and that is, having any appreciation for change or renovation or experimentation. I think the Bachelor of General Studies degree is an example of this. We are part of a University that I say to you has already done credit through its willingness to provide avenues for student participation. The Board of Trustees, this body, every single committee that is appointed -- an administrative committee or a Senate committee -- every college has an advisory group and many departments do. I think there are plenty of avenues for participation by students on this campus and I think that record ought to be recognized. We are part of a University that is clearly growing in size, and in resources and facilities although not as fast as perhaps we need or could use.

Without pursuing those things I would just close by urging you to consider two things. First, I would like for you to consider your own responsibility, and to be aware of some of these things, and if these kinds of sessions have no other useful purpose, I hope that would be one of them -- for you to get some view of the larger sweep of what is happening to our campus and out of your awareness, to have a somewhat less parochial viewpoint sometimes about these matters.

Beyond that, I would urge you, and this is far more significant I think, that by your own important contributions, you, personally, do what you can to help make this University a much more effective instrument for higher education than it ever has and perhaps can be.

Thank you.

The Senators gave President Singletary a warm ovation both at the beginning and at the close of his address.

On behalf of the College of Arts and Sciences, Professor Clifford Amyx, Department of Art, presented Resolutions on the death of Professor Edward W. Rannells, retired, with the request that these Resolutions be made a part of these minutes and that copies be sent to the members of his family.

Edward Warder Rannells, Professor and for many years Chairman of the Department of Art, and retired since 1963, died suddenly this last summer. Professor Rannells contributed greatly to the understanding of art at the University, and in the Commonwealth, and was respected greatly by colleagues throughout the nation. Born in Missouri and educated in Idaho and at Ohio State University, he studied later at Harvard and the University of Chicago where he received his Master's degree. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He always maintained close ties with Chicago and the Art Institute, and was Associate Dean of the Art Institute before coming to the University of Kentucky as Professor and Chairman of the Department in 1929.

During the years when he was Chairman he attracted many important scholars to the University as teachers, including among others the late Karl Lehmann, one of the great classical historians, and Sir John Rothenstein, who was until recently Keeper of the Tate Gallery in London. He also maintained a steady and high level of exhibitions at the University Art Gallery when he was responsible for its direction.

Professor Rannells was long an eager advocate of the serious role of art and art history in the humanities, both within the University, and as a member and official of the national and local Art Education Associations, and the Midwestern and South-eastern College Art Conferences as well as other national organizations. He maintained a steady flow of publications in the journals, almost all directed toward the role of art in education, the place of perception in teaching, and in the broader aspects of the theory of art. In spite of weakening sight in his later years, he continued to attend major conferences and exhibitions throughout the nation, and he published as recently as this spring an article in a special issue of one of the art education journals.

Professor Rannells is survived by his wife, Doris, an artist in her own right, and by three daughters, Martha and Susan, who now reside in California, and Molly now in New York. The daughters in their turn have been active in art, in museums and galleries as far distant as Boston and Berkeley. A host of former students of Professor Rannells, of course, have made distinguished contributions to art.

Professor Rannells was known for his courtly manners, as enormously perceptive and active as a teacher and artist, and he was interested in literature, the stage, and music, as well as active in the visual arts. Those who worked closely with him remember him with affection. The members of the Department of Art are sure that many of the older members of the University Community will share their sense of personal loss at his passing.

On behalf of the College of Arts and Sciences, Professor Aimo Kiviniemi, Department of Music, presented Resolutions on the death of Professor John Chance.

John Barnes Chance, Associate Professor of Music and Head of the Theory-Composition Division in the Department of Music, met his death by accident, Wednesday, August 16, 1972. Professor Chance was born November 20, 1932, in Beaumont, Texas. He attended the Beaumont Public Schools, later receiving a Bachelor of Music degree and a Master of Music degree in Composition from the University of Texas. He has been with the University of Kentucky since 1965, and since that time has commanded the respect and admiration of his colleagues and students.

Professor Chance is a nationally known composer; his catalogue of publications is long and impressive. Among other awards he was the recipient of a Ford Foundation grant, the Oswald Award of the American Bandmasters Association, and numerous commissions. A brilliant, talented composer, Professor Chance personified the best attributes of the musician and gentleman. He was a true renaissance man, profoundly interested in many disciplines with a gratifying perspective of the place of music and the composer among those disciplines. The loss is a great one for the University of Kentucky, his colleagues, students, and the world of music.

He is survived by his wife, Linda, and two children.

This Resolution is submitted as an expression of sympathy for Barney's family, and in appreciation of his service to this institution.

On behalf of the College of Agriculture, Professor H. H. Bailey, Department of Agronomy, presented Resolutions on the deaths of Mr. Paul Keen and Mr. James T. Hatfield, both of Agricultural Extension.

Paul Keen devoted more than 25 years of his life to improving the economy and social well-being of rural people, especially those engaged in farming.

He was an employee of the Agricultural Extension Service, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky from November 1, 1946 until his death August 10, 1971.

He served as Assistant County Agent in Pike County and later as Area Agent for youth work and resource development. On January 1, 1970, he was appointed County Agent for Agriculture in Perry County.

Mr. Keen was born at Dry Hill, Kentucky on November 30, 1915. He received a B.S. degree in Agriculture from the University of Kentucky in 1940. Prior to joining Agricultural Extension Service Staff, he served in the United States Army for nearly four years and was a County Farmers Home Administration Supervisor in three eastern Kentucky counties.

Mr. Keen was highly respected by all who knew him. His integrity and desire to help his fellowman was known to all.

The faculty of the College of Agriculture extends its sympathy to Mrs. Keen and her two sons, Charles and Rodney.

James T. Hatfield was an Extension Agent for 15 years. He served as Assistant County Agent in Calloway County for one year before being appointed County Agent in Crittenden County on March 1, 1955. Other than the year he served in the Army he used his knowledge and time to assist those engaged in farming and to improve economic and social well-being of the citizens of Crittenden and adjoining counties. He was an Area Extension Agent from 1967 to January 1, 1970.

Mr. Hatfield's contributions to agriculture in Crittenden County affected the lives of many farm families. None of their problems were too small or too large for him not to offer a solution. He had a helping hand for farm youths as well as adults.

Mr. Hatfield was born in Grayson County and received a B.S. degree in Agriculture from the University of Kentucky in 1953.

The faculty of the College of Agriculture extends its sympathy to Mrs. Hatfield and her children.

On behalf of the College of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Garrett Flickinger, Chairman, University Senate, presented Resolutions on the death of Professor Barry T. Baughman, Department of Theatre Arts.

Born in Ohio, educated at Muskingham College (B.A., 1964) and Kent State University (M.A., 1968), Barry Baughman came to the University in 1969 as Instructor in Theatre and Technical Director for the Department of Theatre Arts after a year on the faculty at Kent State University. A member of United Scenic Artists, he had also served as Technical Director for the Theatre Program at Blossom Music Center and as Scenic and Lighting Designer for Dorset Playhouse. Full of laughter, demanding of himself and of his students, he demonstrated tremendous potential for growth as a teacher and artist. His impact in a few short years was significant.

Words of sorrow or commemoration after his tragic death seem feeble. No recording of his activity can indicate the life he brought to those around him. So we, his friends, remember him with joy, share in sympathy toward his family and express our keen sense of loss as his death touches our lives.

The Chairman asked the Senators to stand for a moment of silence in respect and tribute to Messrs. Rannels, Chance, Keen, Hatfield, and Baughman, and in acceptance of the Resolutions.

The Senate approved a waiver of the 10-day circulation rule in order to accept the list of candidates for degrees at the August 9, 1972 graduation date which had been circulated to the faculty under date of August 30, 1972. The list of candidates was accepted as circulated for recommendation to the Board of Trustees.

Chairman Flickinger made the following report to the Senate of what had occurred during the summer months and stated that these actions had been circulated in May:

The merger of Areas VII and VIII in the General Studies Program, making it possible to satisfy either Area by certain options in one or the other. He pointed out that this does not change the number of Areas from eight, to seven.

BIO 100 was added to Option C of Area III for one year only.

Approval was given to a revised program for the degree of Bachelor of Music in Applied Music, for a total of 128 hours.

Approval was given to a revised program for the degree of Bachelor of Music in Music Education, for a total of 129 hours.

New courses in Music were approved in connection with these revised degrees.

Approval was given to a revised program in Telecommunications and new courses were approved in connection with this revision.

Approval was given to new courses in the College of Business and Economics and to reduction of the credit hours required for graduation from 130 to 120, with some changes in degree requirements.

Approvals were given to new courses in Engineering, Medicine, Allied Health, and Dentistry.

Chairman Flickinger stated that the following items had received approval by the Senate Council, subject to reporting to the University Senate:

1. minor changes in the approved 1973-75 University Calendars, namely, inclusion of the four-week summer session on a permanent basis; inclusion of a day following each semester registration to be used as a drop-add day; inclusion of a six-week summer term on an experimental basis for 1973;
2. procedures proposed by Student Government for determining the apportionment of the additional nine student seats;

He said the following formula was used in determining the apportionment:

The full time equivalent (FTE) enrollment in each College was determined for the Fall Semester. This FTE enrollment was divided by the total FTE enrollment of the University for the same semester. This gave the fractional proportion of each college to the University as a whole. This figure was then multiplied by 25 to determine what that college's perfect proportion of the 25 seats would be (if on a one person-one vote system). This enabled one to determine which colleges would normally be entitled to more than one Senator on a perfect direct apportionment basis (fractional seats over .5 became full seats and fractional seats below .5 were not counted). Those colleges theoretically entitled to more than one Senator were then placed in a pool. The FTE enrollment of each college in the pool was then divided by the total FTE enrollment of all the colleges in the pool. This resulted in the fractional proportion of each pool college to the pool as a whole. This figure was then multiplied by nine to determine each pool college's share of the seats to be apportioned. This resulted in additional seats for the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business and Economics, Education, Engineering, and the Graduate School.

3. reappointment of Professor Relmond P. Van Daniker as Sergeant at Arms and Mr. James P. Alcorn as Sergeant at Large.

Dr. Flickinger reported that the Council also recommended and received the Report of the Senate ad hoc Committee on Class Scheduling and Credit System. He stated that there were recommendations made by that Committee which were forwarded to the Rules Committee, specifically, regarding student load, and the definition of residence credit, and that the Council expected to hear on them shortly.

He reported further that there were four recommendations requiring administrative action which the Council forwarded to the Administration and on which the Administration had responded favorably. The four:

that the University Catalog should include a section presenting full information on all options available to students relative to examinations for credit. It should also provide information on any other special exams which a student could take while in high school or after high school to affect his program at the University (he reported that this had already been implemented); that more multisection courses should offer at least one regular evening section. In some cases, this could be on an experimental basis. To restrict a single section offering to evening hours could be a hardship to some students but if there is a choice, it would serve many students better and improve room scheduling. In the case where there is already a section of a course offered in the Evening Class Program (those sections numbered 91) students should be allowed to pre-register in these sections just as they do now with other courses. These sections should also be cross-listed in the schedule book under both the Evening Class Program and the department that teaches the course; that all departments should review the possibilities and practice of the use of the course presented as 395-399 (undergraduate independent work). All departments not offering a 395-type course should review their reasons for not doing so with the view towards instituting such opportunities in the curriculum. Those departments presently offering 395-type courses should review their present policy with the goal of informing more students of the possibilities and potentialities of independent work and encouraging more students to take advantage of the experience. It should be possible for the student who has both the desire and the capability to spend a semester or entire year on a particular project or topic; that each college review its requirements for graduation with consideration of 120 credit hours as a goal for optimum credit requirement where feasible. (May not be feasible for such colleges as Engineering.) This would suggest eight semesters of 15 hours each. This appears reasonable on the basis of a forty-five (45) hour work week with three hours of effort for each hour of credit. If the total is substantially greater than 120 credits to earn a degree, serious consideration should be given to a program leading to other than the Bachelor's degree.

He said that several of these recommendations had already been implemented by a number of colleges and other colleges are working on these matters.

The Chairman reported that the Senate this past summer had reviewed, in totality, the document, Beginning a Second Century, for new programs and ideas, and as a result of this review, had established four committees (which the President referred to in his address), namely, a General Studies Program Committee, chaired by Professor Sidney Ulmer, Department of Political Science. Chairman Flickinger stated that if the faculty had any particular gripes, suggestions, or comments in terms of the evaluation they are making, they should contact Professor Ulmer;

a committee to examine Promotion and Tenure. He stated that since a number of changes were made, such as the establishment of Area Committees, the maximum number of years (with reference to the number of years of teaching in other institutions), a number of complaints had arisen in several elements of the University concerning the impact of those rules and that the Council established the committee to investigate and evaluate those procedures; that the committee is under the chairmanship of Professor Joseph Krislov and that if any faculty had a particular concern in this area, he or she should contact Professor Krislov in the College of Business and Economics, a committee to determine the status of the graduate student with particular emphasis on the teaching assistant; that this committee was under the chairmanship of Professor Richard Lowitt, Department of History;

a committee on the nature and function of the Senate; that this particular committee formulation was necessitated by the many changes that have occurred in the Senate body in the past few years, for instance, student representation, the change and addition of administrative voters, the re-apportionment that is going to occur because of the new members coming into the Colleges of Medicine and Dentistry as a result of the new addition of the Veterans Administration Hospital; that this committee is chaired by Dr. Malcolm Jewell, Department of Political Science.

He stated further that the ad hoc Grading Committee established last year has still to file its final report; that he understands it is being worked on even though the Chairman and one of the members has left the University; that it may be necessary to re-form that committee to get the final report but that he has been assured that it will be forthcoming and he hopes to have it circulated and ready for discussion at the October or November meeting of the Senate.

Dr. Flickinger also mentioned the Faculty Code. He stated that the Senate Council was on the final stages of that document and that he sincerely hoped to present the Senate either with the final draft for its consideration at the October meeting, or a suggestion that the whole thing be dropped.

He reported that the University Senate Rules had been rewritten, revised, revamped, and a new reference system had been employed but it was not known how long it would take to get these Rules printed [at this writing the Printing Plant has indicated that they will be out sometime in October].

The Chairman reported further that the Senate Council had circulated to the Deans and Department Chairmen new deadlines for courses; that these deadlines had been accepted by Vice President Cochran for the Division of Colleges, Dr. Bosomworth of the Medical Center, Dr. Elbert Ockerman, Dean of Admissions and Registrar, and the Senate Council; that some emergency clauses have been inserted; that the advising system would worsen unless we got information to the advisers in fair time for them to advise the students so that the students could make choices at advance registration.

He reported that the Council had reestablished the annual Recognition Dinner Committee to set up an annual recognition for retiring faculty members; that because it was so successful last year the same committee had again been established.

He reminded the Senators of the Annual Report of the Library Committee which was submitted to the Council last spring and was returned to the Director of Libraries for his comments. He reported that the Director was in accord with the report 100 per cent and that it would be presented to the Senate at its October meeting.

He reported that the Council had been and is working with Vice Presidents Cochran and Bosomworth on the procedures for evaluation of academic units, including the evaluation of academic heads.

He stated that the Council had also been working and making suggestions to the Rules Committee for some changes in the Rules, e.g., the attendance rules (to see if they are being followed); the final examination rule; a change in the late registration rule; and an additional academic offense known as coercion and bribery.

He reported that the Judicial Board had approved the Student Government's proposal of procedures to be followed for the election of the nine (9) new members; that the Senate Rules provide that the procedures be approved by the Senate Council and that the election take place in the Spring Semester; that, obviously, those rules were established in terms of the original decision to start with student members; and that it seems only fair, therefore, that he ask for a motion to suspend the rules to permit Student Government to hold the election this month for the nine newly-created Senate seats, in accordance with the decision of Student Government and the approval of the Judicial Board. The University Senate then approved a motion to suspend the Rules of the University Senate so that Student Government can hold an election this month to elect the nine additional student Senators to the University Senate.

On behalf of the Senate Council and with its recommendation Mr. Howell Hopson, Secretary of the Council, presented two recommendations for changes in the University Senate Rules, a directive to the Dean of Admissions and Registrar, a recommendation to the President of the University, and a recommendation to the Dean of Admissions and Registrar. These recommendations had come out of the ad hoc Calendar Committee which was appointed by the Senate Council in the past summer to review University Calendar procedures, and were circulated to the faculty under date of August 28, 1972.

that Section II, 1.0, 1.1, (i) of the Rules of the University Senate, Revised, August 1972, be changed to read:

(i) All grades shall be due in the Registrar's Office three (3) days after the final examination is administered.

that the following additional provision which is underscored, be added to Section V, 2.0, 2.2 Student Load, second paragraph:

The maximum allowable load to be carried during any summer term for undergraduate students (including residence, correspondence and extension courses) shall be nine (9) credit hours in the eight-week summer session; six (6) credit hours in the six-week summer session; and four (4) credit hours in the four-week intersession. The maximum load for undergraduate students in any combination of the six and eight-week sessions shall be nine (9) credit hours and the maximum load for undergraduate students for the summer and intersessions shall be thirteen (13) credit hours. (See Section V. 2.2, third paragraph, for exception.)

that the Dean of Admissions and Registrar include in the University Calendar the date of the Commencement Convocation each year.

that the President of the University should set aside a time (so recorded in the Calendar) for a presidential convocation day. This day should be considered an educational experience for the University community and would hopefully deal with contemporary problems for University-wide discussion.

that the Registrar's Office be directed to suggest to next year's ad hoc Calendar Committee that it consider reducing the interval of time between semesters from the present 24 to 16 days.

The University Senate approved these recommendations as circulated.

The Chairman again recognized Mr. Hopson who presented a recommendation, on behalf of the Senate Council, that the Advisory Committee on Business Affairs be made a Senate Advisory Committee and that the Rules of the University Senate be changed to reflect this committee. The Senate approved this recommendation as circulated under date of August 31, 1972.

4.29 Senate Advisory Committee on Business Affairs -- will consult with and suggest to the Vice President for Business Affairs concerning matters that involve the Business Affairs function, with particular emphasis to be placed on the working relationship between Business Affairs units and other University units, especially academic organizations. It is not intended to supplant already established channels of communication. It is intended to provide liaison with organization unit heads and/or other University persons who do not have an accustomed or satisfactory method by which they may address questions or problems concerning Business Affairs.

The committee may initiate recommendations and shall advise with the President at his request. It shall, in accordance with the Rules of the University Senate, make recommendations to the University Senate through the Senate Council on matters, including space and physical facilities when they affect the attainment of educational goals, and shall report to the Senate at least annually.

It shall report and recommend to the Senate Council, upon request, on any specific matter referred to it. The committee shall, upon the advice and recommendation of the Vice President for Business Affairs set regular meeting dates on a bi-monthly basis or on some other mutual basis which will insure an active group.

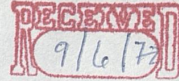

The meeting adjourned at 4:30 p.m.

JOHN BARNES CHANCE
(1932-1972)

John Barnes Chance, Associate Professor of Music and Head of the Theory-Composition Division in the Department of Music, met his death by accident, Wednesday, August 16, 1972. Professor Chance was born November 20, 1932, in Beaumont, Texas. He attended the Beaumont Public Schools, later receiving a Bachelor of Music degree and a Master of Music degree in Composition from the University of Texas. He has been with the University of Kentucky since 1965, and since that time has commanded the respect and admiration of his colleagues and students.

Professor Chance is a nationally known composer; his catalogue of publications is long and impressive. Among other awards he was the recipient of a Ford Foundation grant, the Ostwald Award of the American Bandmasters Association, and numerous commissions. A brilliantly talented composer, Professor Chance personified the best attributes of the musician and gentleman. He was a true renaissance man, profoundly interested in many disciplines with a gratifying perspective of the place of music and the composer among those disciplines. The loss is a great one for the University of Kentucky, his colleagues, students, and the world of music.

He is survived by his wife Linda, and two children.

Dear Wes:

The Senate Council would appreciate receiving a resolution relative to the recent death of Professor Chance. Since the Senate wishes to introduce such resolutions at it's first meeting in September, I suggest some haste. Will you please indicate in your letter to Garrett Flickinger, Chairman, Senate Council, whom you suggest to read the resolution to the Senate.

Sincerely,

Dear Professor Flickinger,

Professor Clifford Amyx graciously consented to write the enclosed resolution commemorating the service of Professor Edward Warder Rannells to the University. Among the Art Department Faculty, Professor Amyx has had the longest association with Professor Rannells. He is presently a University Senator. Therefore, it is most appropriate that he read the resolution to the Senate.

Sincerely,

RESOLUTION ON THE DEATH OF PROFESSOR

EDWARD WARDER RANNELLS

Edward Warder Rannells, Professor and for many years Chairman of the Department of Art, and retired since 1963, died suddenly this last summer. Professor Rannells contributed greatly to the understanding of art at the University, and in the Commonwealth, and was respected greatly by colleagues throughout the nation. Born in Missouri and educated in Idaho and at Ohio State University, he studied later at Harvard and the University of Chicago where he received his Master's Degree. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He always maintained close ties with Chicago and the Art Institute, and was Associate Dean of the Art Institute before coming to the University of Kentucky as Professor and Chairman of the Department in 1929.

During the years when he was Chairman he attracted many important scholars to the University as teachers, including among others the late Karl Lehmann, one of the great classical historians, and Sir John Rothenstein, who was until recently Keeper of the Tate Gallery in London. He also maintained a steady and high level of exhibitions at the University Art Gallery when he was responsible for its direction.

Professor Rannells was long an eager advocate of the serious role of art and art history in the humanities, both within the University, and as a member and official of the national and local Art Education Associations, and the Midwestern and Southeastern College Art Conferences as well as other national organizations. He maintained a steady flow of publications in the journals, almost all directed toward the role of art in education, the place of perception in teaching, and in the broader aspects of the theory of art. In spite of weakening sight in his later years, he continued to attend major conferences and exhibitions throughout the nation, and he published as recently as this Spring an article in a special issue of one of the art education journals.

Professor Rannells is survived by his wife Doris, an artist in her own right, and by three daughters, Martha and Susan who now reside in California, and Molly now in New York. The daughters in their turn have been active in art, in museums and galleries as far distant as Boston and Berkeley. A host of former students of Professor Rannells, of course, have made distinguished contributions to art.

Professor Rannells was known for his courtly manners, as enormously perceptive and active as a teacher and artist, and he was interested in literature, the stage, and music, as well as active in the visual arts.

Those who worked closely with him remember him with affection. The ^{members of the} Department of Art ~~are~~ sure that many of the older members of the University Community will share their sense of personal loss at his passing.

Mr. Chairman, it is requested that these notes be made a part of the procedures of the University Senate, and that copies be sent to members of his family.

HELEN MILDRED WILMORE

Helen Mildred Wilmore, Assistant Professor of Management and Family Economics, emerita, served as a member of the University faculty for 27 years. She was a native of Halstead, Kansas and earned B.S. and M.S. degrees in Home Economics from Kansas State University. She taught in the Manhattan Kansas high school, at Kansas State University and in 1942-43 was Assistant Professor of Home Economics at Louisiana State University. Miss Wilmore joined the Home Economics faculty at the University of Kentucky in September 1943 to serve as director of home management houses and to teach courses in home management and housing. She also developed the survey course "Introduction to Home Economics", and participated for several years in the team-taught course "Home Economics for Men." Over the years she guided more than 500 Home Economics majors through their home management house experience at 630 Maxwellton Court, and maintained her friendly contacts with many of them in their years following graduation. Several international students who lived with the home management groups from time to time also enriched these experiences, and appreciated her ability to make this their home-away-from home.

Miss Wilmore was deeply concerned with students and their interests and problems. She gave generously of her time and energy to student organizations. She served as advisor for the Home Economics Club and for the University of Kentucky Chapter of the National Society of Interior Designers. She was also a sponsor for Iota Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, to which she was elected as a local honorary member. She was an enthusiastic member of the American Home Economics Association and served the Kentucky Home Economics Association both as treasurer and as college club advisor.

For several years Miss Wilmore was the able chairman of the College of Home Economics public relations committee and at her retirement in 1970 was Acting Chairman of the Department of Management and Family Economics.

Although retired, she continued to be actively involved in AAUW, Delta Kappa Gamma, Wesleyan Service Guild, Iota Alumnae Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron and the University of Kentucky Donovan Scholars. She died on August 28, 1972, at Topeka, Kansas.

Her host of friends will continue to miss her warmth and enthusiasm and her readiness to become involved with people - as individuals and in professional and community projects.

Dear Dr. Flickinger:

The faculty of the College of Education has unanimously endorsed a memorial resolution for Martha Shipman who passed away on May 7, 1972.

Because Miss Shipman was a popular and respected member of the College and University, we respectfully request the University Senate to adopt this resolution and incorporate it into the Senate minutes.

A copy of the resolution is enclosed. We appreciate your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

George W. Denmark

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Martha V. Shipman

8-2813

Professor Martha V. Shipman died on May 7, 1972, less than three years after retirement, following thirty-nine years of service to the University of Kentucky. Coming to the University in 1930, Professor Shipman assumed the joint role of University High English and social studies instructor and critic teacher for the College of Education. In 1959 Professor Shipman joined the Division of Curriculum in the College of Education as an Assistant Professor with instructional responsibilities in secondary school methods and materials. She continued to serve actively in this area both during and after her tenure as Chairman of the Division of Curriculum, which began in 1961 and spanned more than six years.

While at the University, Professor Shipman served a term as President of the Southeastern Region of the Association for Student Teaching, an organization which she also provided leadership for at the state level as both Secretary-Treasurer and President. She was counselor to Kappa Delta Pi, an education honorary society, and President of Beta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, another honor society.

Professor Shipman began her teaching career in Arkansas, where she completed most of her formal education. She attended Arkansas State Teachers College before receiving both the B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Arkansas. Teaching in Arkansas at the elementary and secondary levels, Professor Shipman's experiences included serving as the instructor in a one-room school.

To all who knew her, Professor Shipman was a person with unusual determination, professional integrity, and dedication to the students she taught and advised. It is appropriate that the College of Education and the University Senate should by this resolution pay tribute to the memory of a colleague who has given so much to the University of Kentucky and enriched the lives of hundreds of students and faculty.
