

one slighted - It is true I should not have been at the wedding even if I had been invited but there is a great satisfaction in feeling that when every heart is joyous and flourishing that we too are remembered - Now I have quarrelled my spite of I would pardon -

I think you need not be told that am not the faintest in my wishes for your happiness - Truly if ever an older Sister ever loved two children not her own I loved you and Sis and even now I find Henry's children coming in for an almost equal share of my heart with my own - - I am sure a day never passed that I do not think of you all and not many that you do not make a subject of conversation - I think you Sisters at home never think for a moment how hard it is for us who are away - you
