Mills steps up during Bue-White game

By Shannon Hart
Staff Writer

When the Blue team built a fairly comfortable double-digit lead over the White team on Saturday's UK basketball scrimmage, who do you think the Whites relied on to help them come back?

Walter McCarty, a future NBA lottery pick? Jeff Sheppard, last year's starting point guard and a probable starter this season?

Jared Prickett, a senior with loads of experience? The answer is none of the above. It was actually Cameron Mills, a walk-on and member of the junior varsity squad, who helped the White team stay close.

Down by 14 early and trailing 41-30 at the half, the White team opened the second half with a 9-4 run. Four minutes later, Mills scored three straight baskets for his team, two of them three-pointers, to pull the Whites within 59-55. He finished with 14 points, shooting 8-of-7 from the field and two steals.

"He came off the bench, hit some big threes and got some big steals," Sheppard said. "His improvement over the last year has been great."

A big reason for that improvement has been the practice Mills has gotten with the JV team. "He plays the whole JV practice," head coach Rick Pitino said. "He's the star."

Last year, Mills played only 32 minutes in eight games. By playing on the JV team, he will get much more experience than he would otherwise. "When you sit out as much as I did last year, your rhythm and your jump shot leave you," Mills said. "Playing JV helped me get them back."

In addition, Mills said the JV practices have "given me a lot of confidence when I come into the varsity practices."

Sheppard said if Mills continues to play and improve on the JV squad, he should contribute on the varsity level as well.

"He's the best shooter on our team," Sheppard said. "He should really have some good games for the JV. If he improves on his defense, he'll be right in there playing with us."

JV coach Delray Brooks said Mills would play a major role.

"Cameron is a very smart player and he shoots extremely well," Brooks said. "When you have those two things going for you, you can always play. I thought he did a fine job tonight."

Despite Mills' performance, the Blue team won 102-88. Led by Tony Dell's 29 points and Ron Mercer's 20, they forced the Whites into 23 turnovers while only committing 14 of their own.

"The turnovers were the difference in the game," Pitino said. "The Blue team had only 10 in the first half and 4 in the second, and the White team did much better in going from 17 to 23 in the second."

Pitino also said he was pleased with both teams' defense, and said the Blue team's defense the first eight minutes of the game was "outstanding."

The White team met Pitino's deflections goal with 35, while the Blues had 33.

"We're making gradual improvement," Pitino said. "We were 20 percent better tonight than we were on Monday, and hopefully we'll be another 20 percent better on Tuesday. We're getting better day by day."

The Blue team was also led by Mark Pope's 16 points, Antoine Walker's 15 points and 8 rebounds and Wayne Epps' 11 points.

Anthony Turner led the White team with 19 points, and Sheppard and Prickett each had 18.

As for Mills, he is familiar with the goals and expectations Pitino has for the team, and said that's the reason why he'll be such an important part of the JV team.

"I'm the captain and leader of the team because I know what the coaching staff expects, since I've been here a year," Mills said.

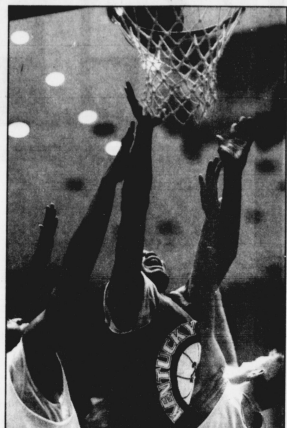

Brooks agreed. "Without question he'll be the team leader," he said. "We'll go to him often. We expect a lot from him."

Volleyball team loses on Senior Day

By Stephen Trimble
Senior Staff Writer

UK's volleyball team lost its match and the battle of emotions to the visiting South Carolina Gamecocks yesterday afternoon on the Wildcats' Senior Day.

"Senior Day had a positive effect on us at first," said UK coach Fran Ralston-Flory, whose squad won its first two games 15-5, 15-11.

The 2-0 lead was attributed in part to the play of senior outside hitter Molly Dreisbach, who had already piled up 12 kills in 18 attempts and no errors.

"Then, it just kind of fizzled on us," Ralston-Flory said.

UK (8-14 overall, 5-7 in the Southeastern Conference) dropped the next three games to the Gamecocks, 9-15, 11-15, 9-15.

The spirited Gamecocks held Dreisbach to seven kills in 25 attempts with eight errors during the last three games. They stifled UK's other offensive threats —sophomore Cynthia Dozier and senior Mara Eglitis—in their gutsy rally.

"This is the way our matches always are with Kentucky," said South Carolina coach Kim Hudson.

But this was the first time her team (17-9, 7-6) has rallied successfully this season when they were trailing after two games.

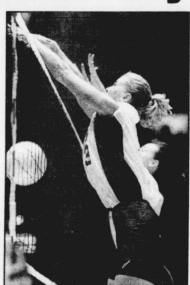

The Gamecocks stepped up their passing and blocking, while UK's players became tentative, Ralston-Flory said—especially her seniors.

"I thought that they played OK," she said. "But I don't think they came through in the clutch for us."

Ralston-Flory, whose team lost to Florida on Friday in three sets, found a positive side to the team's late-season SEC loss.

This means UK will finish fourth in the SEC's East Division, putting them in Georgia's—not undefeated Florida's—bracket in the SEC tournament.

UK lost two matches with Georgia this season, and Ralston-Flory thinks her squad is better.

TRIVIA TEST

WHO WAS the last team UK beat in football during the month of November?

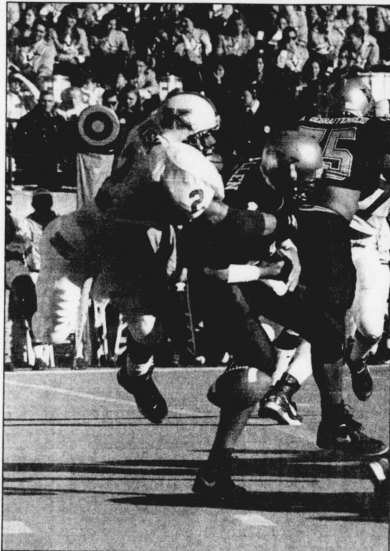

Answers: East Carolina on November 13, 1995

"WE WANTED this game more than the others, to keep the tradition of beating Kentucky going"

PEP TALK

Damien Allen, Vanderbilt quarterback.

Cats continue tailspin at Vanderbilt

By Chris Easterling
Assistant Sports Editor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Here we go again. It's time for the UK football team's annual November collapse.

The lack of offense and the inability to stop the big plays both played huge roles as the Cats (3-5 overall, 2-5 in the Southeastern Conference) dropped its third-straight game Saturday, this one a 14-10 loss to previously winless Vanderbilt (1-7, 1-5) in Nashville.

It also was UK's fifth straight loss to Vandy.

"It's easy to pinpoint the difference in the game," UK coach Bill Curry said. "We could not stop them. When we got opportunities on offense, we could not convert."

UK never got the offense on track the entire afternoon, gaining only 146 yards in total offense.

"Woody (Widenhofer) and the defensive coaches did a superb job preparing our defense," Vandy coach Rod Dowhower said.

Vandy's defense held the SEC's fifth-leading rusher, UK's Moe Williams, to just 54 yards on 18 carries. As a team, UK gained only 51 yards on the ground.

"Vanderbilt has a good run defense," Curry said. "They have proven that all year."

But Curry said one of the reasons Williams did not gain the yards he is accustomed to was because of the blocking he got from the offensive line.

"We obviously didn't block them," Curry said. "I don't understand it. There's no reason for it."

Twice the Cats started drives in Vanderbilt territory, only to see them end without any points.

The first took place late in the first quarter with Vandy leading 7-0 following a 14-yard run by tailback Jermaine Johnson.

UK got the football at the Vandy 20-yard line after the Cats' Mike Schlegel recovered a Johnson fumble. Two plays later, quarterback Billy Jack Haskins fumbled the ball as he was hit on an option play. Vandy's Eric Vance recovered the loose ball at the 18-yard line.

Haskins suffered a separated shoulder on the play, and was replaced by Jeff Speedy for the remainder of the half. Haskins would come back in the game, but Speedy was inserted for the final drive of the game.

The Cats started the second half in a 7-7 tie, thanks to a Speedy-to-Craig Yeast 14-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter, and got the ball to start the half.

UK's Kio Sanford brought the crowd of 26,053, many of them dressed in blue, to its feet as he returned the opening kickoff 57 yards to the Vandy 41.

But they would come away with nothing. After penetrating to the Vandy 33, the Cats lost 18 yards on a fourth-and-two play, giving the ball to the Commodores in UK territory at the 49-yard line.

"You gotta keep sustaining drives," UK center John Schlarman said, "and we didn't do that."

Speedy said the offense failed to capitalize on what the defense gave it.

"We didn't move the ball when we had to," Speedy said. "The defense gave us some opportunities."

The Cats' defense struggled to stop Vandy in key situations.

The play of the game happened with Vanderbilt in a third-and-18 at midfield trailing 10-7. Quarterback Damien Allen, who came into the game in the third quarter after starter Ronnie Gordon suffered a separated shoulder, scrambled 23 yards for the first down at the UK 27-yard line.

Two plays later, wide receiver Kenny Simon beat UK's Leman Boyd for the game-winning 27-yard touchdown pass with 1:10 remaining.

"I lost the ball at first," Simon said of the game-winning catch, "but then it was just over my shoulder, so I reached up and caught it."

UK hit with major injury to Haskins

By Chris Easterling
Assistant Sports Editor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The UK football team had another major injury in Saturday's 14-10 loss to Vanderbilt as quarterback Billy Jack Haskins suffered a separated left shoulder in the second quarter.

Jeff Speedy came in and eventually led the Cats to their lone touchdown of the game, hitting Craig Yeast on a 14-yard pass with 3:03 left in the second quarter.

Haskins, who came back and played the third and most of the fourth quarter on Saturday, is listed as questionable for this week's home game against Cincinnati.

Speedy completed 5-of-10 passes for 26 yards against Vandy, while Haskins was 6-of-7 for 69 yards.

Speedy started the season as the first-string quarterback, before being replaced by Haskins in the fourth quarter of the Florida game.

Should the Cats have to go with Speedy, Curry said the coaching staff will have to wait and see whether they go with either Jeff Snedegar or Greg Hergott as the backup to Speedy.

Both Snedegar and Hergott are true freshmen.

Wait until 1996

The loss on Saturday at Vanderbilt extended the losing streak to five games against the Commodores. The last victory for the Cats was in 1990 when they handed Vandy a 28-21 defeat at Commonwealth Stadium.

Not since they defeated Auburn for five-straight years from 1946-50 has Vanderbilt dominated one Southeastern Conference opponent like they have against UK.

The UK players have differing opinions as to how Vanderbilt is able to dominate them from one year to the next.

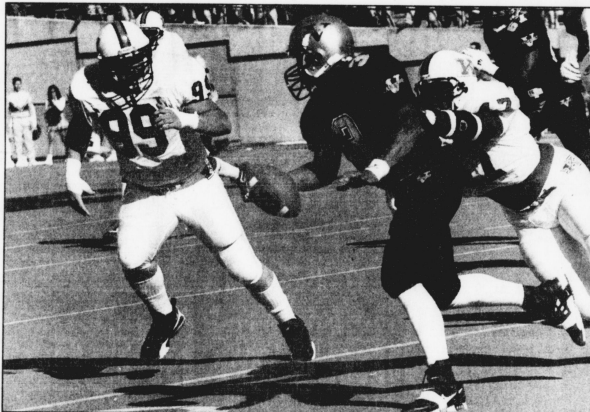

"They just always come to play us every year," defensive end Chris Ward said.

Center John Schlarman said it's because the Cats don't play hard the whole game.

"We gotta go out and play hard for four quarters," Schlarman said. "It doesn't matter who the opponent is."

The Vanderbilt players have started to believe they are meant to beat UK every year.

"We wanted this game more than the others," Vandy quarterback Damien Allen said, "to keep the tradition of beating Kentucky going."

Job security?

Coming into this year, UK athletics director C. M. Newton said the UK football team would have to make "significant improvements" for coach Bill Curry to keep his job.

After winning three out of their first six games, many people speculated Curry was going to be back next year as head coach. But after dropping their last three games, including one to previously winless Vanderbilt, people have begun to call again for Curry's job.

But Curry said he intends to remain at UK for as long as Newton will allow him to.

"I've enjoyed coaching here," Curry said yesterday during his teleconference. "I came here to do a job, and I intend to complete the job."

Curry has said he will not resign as head coach at UK, and will pay attention to the football team first and foremost and worry about the other things later.

"This football team, any football team, but especially this one, deserves our undivided attention," Curry said, "and that's what they'll get."

Professor mixes actions, words

By Heather Perry
Contributing Writer

"Lavate la cara," Luisa Perez tells her students as she acts like she's washing her face.

Perez, a UK professor for two years, teaches her students Spanish by demonstrating the words and urging her students to speak the language outside of class.

She holds workshops for teachers to show them techniques that will encourage students to speak Spanish.

Perez, who is originally from Peru, teaches instructors the same way she teaches her students: she gets them involved.

During her workshops, she pairs them up. Perez thinks that working in small groups is important. It gives more students the opportunity to speak and helps those who are shy about speaking in front of an entire class, she said.

"Most of them are reluctant to speak because of peer pressure. They are afraid of embarrassing themselves," Perez said.

"It's much easier for the extroverts than for the introverts. But it also matters whether or not they really want to learn the language."

Perez helps UK teaching assistants with her techniques as well as the secondary school teachers in her classes and workshops.

She has taught workshops in Lexington and Lawrence, Kan., where she received her doctoral degree. She also has taught her workshop in Memphis, Tenn.

But the techniques are not enough, Perez said. To really emphasize oral communication, teachers must use textbooks that emphasize speaking, and they must make the oral exercises an important part of the final course grade.

Perez's concern about the lack of oral exercises came after studying first- and second-semester Spanish classes at both UK and Kansas University.

Perez took a stop watch into the classrooms of 30 teachers and recorded the amount of time their students spent speaking Spanish.

Perez found that on average, students spoke Spanish only 10 to 14 minutes per 50-minute class period. In some classrooms, the amount of time spent speaking Spanish could be much less, perhaps just a couple of minutes.

"If you divide those two minutes by 25 or 26 students, how much are those individual students producing? Maybe not even two or three seconds," Perez said.

With her findings, Perez believes that unless they increase the amount of time practicing the language, students aren't likely to learn to really use it.

Students who do learn Spanish might find it an advantage when they begin to look for jobs.

Greeks help stock pantry

CAN DO Scott Medley, the Lambda Chi philanthropy chairman, collects cans for God's Pantry. The fraternity and others gathered 6,921 pounds of food.

For members of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity throughout the United States and Canada the first Saturday of November marks the conclusion of their North American Food Drive and their attempt to collect 500,000 pounds of food for charitable organizations.

UK's Lambda Chi members completed their local food collection for God's Pantry food bank by returning to 5,000 Lexington homes where they had left grocery bags a week earlier. The Lambda Chi spent Saturday spreading out over the area, picking up the bags of food left by the residents.

"We tried to get a broad spectrum of people," said Scott Medley, Lambda Chi philanthropy chairman. "We let Lexington participate because that's who they are going to be helping."

Members met at a central location to transfer the food to a God's Pantry truck.

Lambda Chi and their event co-sponsors Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority also lead up food collected at Lambda Chi from parts of the drive.

Eight-hundred dollars worth of food was purchased with money donated from local businesses, and greek organizations gave large amounts of canned goods.

The drive netted 6,921 pounds of food as the fraternity and sorority members surpassed their goal by more than 900 pounds. They put 3,200 hours of labor into gathering food that will be used to give to Lexington families especially during the upcoming holiday season.

Flag football tradition continues

By Gary Wulf
Staff Writer

Most students probably stayed inside this weekend in the warm and cozy confines of their rooms, fearing the first blistering cold signs of winter-like conditions. But not everyone gave in to the cold, for there was football to be played.

Flag football to be precise. This weekend, the 10th annual King of the Bluegrass Statewide Flag Football tournament was played at Seaton Field.

"It's a 10-year tradition at Haggin Hall that raises money for Big Brothers and Big Sisters," said Eric D. Blom, chairman of the event.

This year the double-elimination tournament consisted of 32 teams, who came from around the region (Louisville, Tennessee and Ohio).

The amount raised this year was $2,000, which is an improvement from previous years.

Last year $1,400 was raised with the same number of teams playing. Two years ago only $600 was raised with 23 teams, Blom said.

Blom is not shocked by the tournament's success.

"I'm not surprised," Blom said. "Last year people said that our tournament was very competitive and very professional."

When compared with other flag football tournaments, the King of the Bluegrass tournament is one of the biggest. The National Flag Football Tournament in New Orleans has only 13 teams, Blom said.

To enter the tournament, a team of 15 people had to pay an entry fee of $100, which covered the cost of running the tournament as well as the free T-shirts, food and the five-foot trophy that goes to the winner.

"It's really a good bargain and it's a lot of fun," Blom said.

Donations came from businesses all over Kentucky, such as Sports Unlimited, Papa John's and Cellular One.

"It gave the business an opportunity to be recognized by the players through advertising," Blom said.

The tournament is good enough to keep competitors interested in playing year after year. "We've been here six times."

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

RECENTLY, MORNINGSTAR CALLED US CHEAP. IT'S NOT EVERY DAY YOU GET A COMPLIMENT LIKE THAT.

All financial companies charge operating fees and expenses—some more than others. Of course, the lower the expenses you pay, the better. That way more of your money goes where it should—towards building a comfortable future.

We make low expenses a high priority.

Because of our size and our exclusive focus on serving the needs of educational and research communities, TIAA-CREF's costs are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries.

In fact, Morningstar, Inc.—one of the nation's leading sources of variable annuity and mutual fund information—says "Size isn't a constraint—it enables CREF to realize a remarkable economy of scale." According to Morningstar's data, CREF's "minus-ule" 0.31% average fund expense charge was less than half that charged by comparable funds.¹

TIAA's traditional annuity also charges no fees aside from a very modest operating expense of 1/4 of 1% of annuity assets. Interest and dividends are reported after all operating costs have been deducted. Standard & Poor's calls TIAA's costs "exceptionally low."²

Of course, expenses are only one factor to consider when you make an investment decision. While we're committed to keeping our expenses down, we spare nothing in striving to provide top-quality investment choices, financial expertise, and personal service. Because that can make a difference in the long run, too.

TIAA-CREF seeks performance, not profit.

At TIAA-CREF, we believe people would like to spend more on retirement, not on their retirement company. If you'd like to see how our approach can help keep more of your money working for you, call us at 1-800-842-2776 (8 a.m. to 11 p.m. ET, weekdays). We'd consider it a compliment.

'Pink Angels' a heavenly delight

By Jim Stoll
Senior Staff Critic

"Pink Angels" is not my kind of show.
On a bad day, I might grumble that this is a cleverly constructed series of theatrical moments. I could even stoop to calling it "drama for its own sake."
But "Pink Angels" is much more than that.

Student playwright Bo List has written a compelling story. Once you get inside it, you can't get out. The play addresses issues of sexual identity and society's attitudes toward those who step outside the boundaries of gender.
The production is extremely well-tuned. Most striking is Karen Hornberger's lighting design. Some of the scenes take the form of flashbacks, and the shifts from present to past are often very subtle.

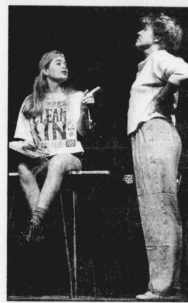

Coupled with intriguing choices by sound designer Charlie Calvert, Hornberger's lighting keeps the production flowing from scene to scene, from reality to memory.

Whether it is Prof. Russell Henderson's direction or merely a gifted cast, the performances in "Pink Angels" are polished across the board. These actors know where they are and why.
The anchor on stage is Becky Smith's Veronica Little. Smith's work is remarkable, the foundation on which this production is built. She has an understanding of vocal levels that few college actors can aspire to.
Mark Smith draws a clearly defined picture of Bill, her husband. Tracy Blackburn is equally well-rounded as Suzannah, the younger daughter. But the most challenging roles in "Pink Angels" are yet to come.
Candace Weber plays Clarice, her older daughter. It is her relationship with Jimmy, played by Joe Verciglio, on which this play turns.

Clarice, more than any other character in the play, is affected profoundly by the events that occur. Weber is able to effectively convey two differing Clarices, the one in the present and the one in the recent past.

Verciglio's work, like his fellow cast members', shows commitment and polish. But he is miscast in this role. His physical appearance does not work for Jimmy, and by the second act it works against the character.
List has chosen to include a series of scenes with Veronica talking on the telephone. Only Smith's fine performance keeps these overlong moments from slowing down the play. Certain other first-act scenes between Clarice and Jimmy also seem a bit long.
In the final analysis, these are not tremendous flaws.
"Pink Angels" is a strong play, excellently staged. The fast-moving action of the second act more than offsets the slower parts of the first act.
It's not my kind of show, but I liked it anyway.

Mercury Rev continues to tear into music

By Tom Owens
WRFL General Manager

What can you say about a band that was unplugged by the sound crew at Lollapalooza for sounding like an idling bus?
You could probably surmise that they stepped out of bounds for the advertisers.
Mercury Rev innocently defecates on any sort of rock 'n' roll attitude. The music it makes is full of unique imagery that feels like a hot toddy on a lonely Christmas.
The album title, See You On The Other Side (a direct reference to life after death), gives an accurate conception of the ethereal, otherworldly quality of the recording.
Every song seems to giddily dance somewhere between glorious worship and a profound sadness, communicated by trumpets, guitars, flutes, pianos, saws and a million other sounds.

Despite the diverse, somewhat unfamiliar instrumentation, Mercury Rev still rocks, ably blowing open the amps for a sonic assault without breaching an unvoiced commitment to subtlety and tact.
The final triumph of Mercury Rev is that it has managed to transcend the bounds of MTV rock and make pure music, every bit as legit as Beethoven with the same prime emotions of Blind Willie McTell.

Various Artists, Adventures in Afropea 3: Telling Stories to the Sea

When you think of dance, pop or balladry, do you imagine 120 beats-per-minute thuds, cheesy soulless kitsch and introspective moaning and groaning?
Living in America, you probably said yes to the above questions.
In other, less "civilized" parts of the world, all of the above terms derive from a lusty angel living in the hips, subject to no particular tempo, but a slave to a slinky

UK choirs to perform free concert tonight

By Danielle Dove
Staff Writer

For more than a month, two of UK's top choirs have worked diligently in preparation for their upcoming performances. Tonight at 8 in the Concert Hall of the Otis A. Singletary Center for the Arts, their work will be presented to students, faculty and the general public for free.

The UK Choristers and the UK Chorale will be performing choral music from across a spectrum of styles and a variety of time periods. These diverse sounds will include pieces that range from the Baroque period to modern 20th century. The evening also will be filled with a variety of soloist and instrumental compositions.
The choirs will display their unique shows separately until the final, in which both choirs will be joined by UK's African Percussion Ensemble. This energetic piece is called "Betelehemu" and is a Nigerian carol that means Bethlehem.

"The finale will be a rip-roaring production with drums pounding and plenty of energy," said Jefferson Johnson, director of Choral Activities.
The UK Choristers are a 90-voice mixed group and contains the top freshmen and sophomore choir members. The UK Chorale is an elite 40-member, mixed choir made up of juniors and seniors. Both groups are membership choirs and auditions are taking place for the second semester.

Students interested in being a part of the choirs may call Johnson at 257-5897 to schedule an audition.

KENTUCKY KERNEL endorsement ▼ Forgy only path to change

Like the droves of conservative southern Democrats who contributed significantly to the 1994 Republican revolution in Congress, a lot of people in Kentucky, including members of this editorial board, are jumping party lines to give their support to Republican Larry Forgy.

Whether it be frustration and disillusionment at the corruption and general aimlessness of their own party or recognition that Forgy is simply the only man who can steer the state back in the right direction, average Kentuckians have been simmering to the point of boiling over and have finally decided to attempt an overthrow of the current regime.

Republican and Democrat alike, we've quite simply had enough. We're fed up with the 19th century politics that has been holding this state down for decades.

We're sick of the crooked Frankfort oligarchy that has robbed this state of any chance at education and economic development.

And we're tired of politicians telling us how to run our schools and families while at the same time draining our financial resources to the point where a decent standard of living is nearly impossible to maintain.

IN OUR OPINION

Paul Patton and all the other Frankfort stooges have improved the Kentucky economy the way a wolf licking a blade satisfies his hunger.

How are we supposed to grow if we're nursing ourselves on our own blood? Our state government is programmed into a self-perpetuating formula that says if a government program doesn't stimulate the economy, tax the people a little more and make another government program. If that one doesn't work, keep trying 'cause eventually one's gotta work!

As a result, Kentuckians bear a higher income tax burden than taxpayers in any other state. Larry Forgy wants to put an end to that vicious cycle.

We need a leader not only bold enough to storm through Frankfort with the budget axe a-swingin', but skilled and experienced enough to restructure administrative policy so that when the sleeping giant of the Commonwealth finally stirs and never goes back to sleep.

In terms of geographic location, resources and educational expansion and improvement, Kentucky is poised to become one of the most active economies this side of the Mississippi with massive interstate trade centered right here in the Bluegrass.

Unfortunately our government isn't as hospitable as the people.

Currently Kentucky has the fourth highest corporate tax rate in the nation, making us an unattractive prospect to businesses looking to expand or relocate.

Patton's solution as lieutenant governor was to dole out costly tax cuts, actually costing Kentuckians valuable revenue, with only a few low-wage jobs in return.

Forgy proposes that the process be more competitive and that the regulatory environment be made more friendly to home-grown entrepreneurs as well as incoming corporations.

His changes would be more long-term and permanent, not a quick-fix plan.

This brand of leadership and professional fiscal management helped keep UK nationally-recognized and competitive during his tenure as vice president. He can do the same for the entire state.

But all the experience and good ideas in the world are nothing if your heart isn't in the right place.

Ask the students who were around when Forgy lost his position on the Board of Trustees defending this University against the most power-hungry governor in Kentucky history, Wallace Wilkinson.

The Student Government Association gave its annual Zumwinkle Student Rights Award to Forgy during his tenure at UK. SGA wouldn't give that award to just anyone.

Forgy is a man of proven expertise as well as impeccable moral courage and integrity. We can think of no one better fit to lead the Commonwealth into a future of promise and prosperity.

Why bother to care? It makes no difference anyway

These days it seems as if everyone has a cause. Most people affiliate with at least one particular political party, high school pseudo-sports status, popular bandwagon social status or whatever.

So I thought maybe, instead of just sitting around when I'm not in class, I should find a club with members whose interests are similar to my own.

Unfortunately most of these entail, at the bare minimum, attending meetings, paying dues, sweating or otherwise putting out some sort of effort. Not good.

The only other option was to form my own club, my own little clique, that would allow my fellow members and I to do something without, well, actually doing anything.

After putting a lot more thought into this than I wanted to, I decided on the perfect theme to distinguish my club from all the others. It's based on the way I've been feeling for quite some time now.

I just don't care anymore.

That's all. For instance, I don't care about the Student Government Association. Chances are, no matter who's in office this year, I'm still going to have to pay handsomely to park 10 minutes away from my dorm, still going to shell out upwards of $250 for books and still going to battle ever-increasing tuition. Nothing SGA controls benefits me directly. The Senate would never grant this club thousands of dollars to take a field trip Chicago.

Actually all that is just the crust on the soufflé anyway. Truth is, I don't like the way SGA is run.

Last year's campaign for the executive office featured two candidates with a clear, concise platform and a written plan for getting it accomplished. Unfortunately they still lost in what turned out to be a popularity contest.

But I don't care enough to try and change it. I may be coming off as selfish and self-centered, even though my concern is not just for myself, but for my fellow compatriots as well. That's okay. It's in our bylaws.

My new club does not have a name. That too is OK. I'm sure someone else will think of one some day.

I don't care if UK Food Service installs a McDonald's in the Student Center and promises to give me a refund for any unused money on my meal card at the end of the semester.

I don't care about national issues either. I'm honestly unaffected by a massive train wreck in India that claimed hundreds of lives. So how then can the trials of O.J. Simpson and Susan Smith make a dent in my armored shell?

Thousands and thousands of Americans are shot and killed by handguns every year. I'll

Akbar provides fresh perspective on racial troubles

In the diverse melting pot in which we live, the Civil Rights Movement of 1995 has, among other things, two very broad classes of critics.

First there are those who talk with the mouth located on the side of their neck. They are quick to complain about anything that differs from the status quo, and spend much of their lives on the American bandwagon.

Then there is the second group. Members of this group base their criticism on sound reason and research. They look at all points of view and develop their opinions without regard to the mainstream or social acceptability. It gives me great hope and pleasure to see that there are many Americans in the latter group. It is these people, and those who wish to join them, that I would like to summon for a special event on this campus.

You've seen the spiritual and emotional leadership of the contemporary Civil Rights Movement, now I would like to introduce you to one of the intellectual leaders. His name Dr. Na'im Akbar.

Akbar will speak on Thursday at 7 p.m. in Memorial Coliseum. He is one of the world's leading African-American psychologists, and one of the founding fathers of the African-centered approach to modern psychology. He teaches at Florida State University, and is the director of "Mind Productions and Associates, Inc.," his private consulting firm.

Akbar has written six books and 25 scholarly articles, served on the editorial boards of numerous scholarly journals, and appeared on several television talk shows. "Na'im Akbar Day" has been proclaimed in Atlantic City, N.J.; Cleveland; Cincinnati; and Jackson, Miss.

This man is truly a hero of the contemporary Civil Rights Movement.

His awesome oratory skills are matched with an argument based on careful research and air-tight logic. He is one of the first to study the mass psychological effects that slavery and oppression have had on the African-American population.

Like an oft-battered wife suffers problems with self-esteem, anger and mental anguish, persecuted black America suffers problems of self-hatred and intra-racial division that plague us and cripple our progress to this day.

Akbar is exactly what the doctor ordered. He is helping black people learn to heal the externally-imposed sickness from the past and move to a more positive, productive future.

Boyce Watkins
Kernel Columnist

Much of his research has involved diagnosing the problems, and prescribing solutions. What he and many other black leaders are saying is that African-Americans should no longer spend their time asking for compassion from a country that seems to lack compassion. Instead of relying on American schools to teach our history, we should teach ourselves. Instead of hoping that America will hand out, we should love and trust one another to offer ourselves a hand.

Akbar deserves the support of all Americans because he is doing what it takes to truly heal racial tension in America. The wounds of the past require extensive surgery, but America has offered nothing more than a cheap Band-Aid.

He also deserves support because he can help white Americans overcome their fear of black organization and empowerment. America has shown time and again that too possess remnants of a slave mentality. The same fear that caused the nation to outlaw mass slave gatherings is the one that caused people to chastise Louis Farrakhan for gathering a million black men.

People should understand that uplifting minorities uplifts America. An increase in minority wealth does not necessarily imply a decline in the wealth of White America. Education and opportunity for everyone will make the wealth pie larger, and everyone will get a larger piece than before.

Akbar can help everyone understand his perspective. Most African-Americans have spent their lives learning everything there is to know about Caucasian culture, maybe it's time America took the time to learn about ours.

Staff Columnist Boyce Watkins is a mathematics graduate student.

bie who complacently accepts every television commercial and governmental reassurance as law. I wouldn't say I'm quite that bad, but I'm pretty close.

Of course if all the young people in America got together and voted as a collective self-interest group, then some pretty drastic changes would likely follow. I'd suggest lowering the minimum age required for Congress and the presidency, then voting ourselves into office just for starters.

The organization, leadership and drive it would take to get that accomplished is way beyond my limits as an individual.

And if my adopted hometown Cincinnati Reds win the World Series next season, you won't see me at Fountain Square cheering with thousands of other fans during the victory parade. It doesn't matter to me one iota.

Well, maybe just a little. It sounds like a killer party, dude.

CHE focuses on minority recruiting

By Chris Padgett
Staff Writer

Roy Peterson of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education wants to see a larger number of minority students in Kentucky colleges and universities.

Peterson and the directors of the Governor's Minority Student College Preparation Programs met Friday at their first conference. UK hosted the meeting and Chancellor for the Lexington Campus Elisabeth Zinser addressed the group and discussed the possibility of applying the ideas of the group for all students.

The objective of the Kentucky Plan for Equal Opportunities in Higher Education is to recruit and retain to graduation larger numbers of black students.

The program was initiated in 1986 to make young black students aware of the benefits and values of college and thus more likely to consider college as an achievable option, and to prepare these students to be successful in college-level work to persist toward college graduation.

UK Minority College Awareness Program Director Mildred Bailey was UK's representative at the meeting.

"The purpose of the meeting was to afford the various minority affairs project directors at Kentucky's places of higher education an opportunity to meet one another, share ideas and brainstorm on different ways that we can strengthen the outreach of our programs," Bailey said.

The program serves as one of the council's major efforts to support the preparation for college matriculation of 7th-9th grade students.

During 1994-95 about 1,750 black students were served by the program. Grants were made available for minorities at Henderson and Hopkinsville community colleges and at the following universities: UK, Kentucky State, Morehead, Murray, University of Louisville and Western Kentucky University.

The program received $228,800 in state appropriations for each year of the 1994-96 biennium. The money appropriated goes to support the education preparation programs of the group. Different schools use the funding appropriated for different purposes.

At Morehead State University the funding goes into a summer program that brings between 35 and 40 minority students on campus who are seeking to pursue a career in education. Students take part in programs and workshops that will prepare them for the collegiate culture. Those students who do matriculate at Morehead are then given a yearly stipend for educational purposes. This stipend is renewed if the student maintains a specified grade-point average and continues to pursue a teaching degree.

"Eventually we would like to see an element of this program at every college and university in Kentucky," Bailey said. "More money will have to be appropriated to the Governor's Minority Student College Preparation Programs before this can happen."

Peterson estimated there are fewer minority students at Kentucky's colleges and universities than the minority population in Kentucky.

Ky. Kernel captures online title

Staff report

The on-line version of the Kentucky Kernel was chosen as the top Internet student publication in the country this weekend at the 1995 National College Media Convention in Washington, D.C.

The Kernel beat online student newspapers, magazines and radio stations for the "Best of the Net" General Excellence award. The on-line Kernel also picked up a third-place award for design.

This was the first year of the "Best of the Net" competition and it featured entries from more than 30 schools around the country.

The Kernel also won several other awards during the four-day convention as well.

Editorial Editor Matt Felice and "Sherman's Alley" creators Jerry Voigt and Toby Gibbs each picked up first-place award for cartooning.

Felice's award was based on an editorial cartoon about the Oklahoma City bombing last spring, and Gibbs and Voigt's cartoon strip was chosen for general excellence. The awards were given by College Media Advisers, Inc.

The Kernel advertising department picked up a second place award for advertising in the same ceremony.

UK's student daily was also given several awards in the College Media Review, which gives annual award for newspaper, magazine and yearbook design.

The Kernel finished with a fifth-place finished for front page design, and a fourth-place finish for best nameplate. The Kernel was given a first-place award for best opinion page design as well.

Former Kernel staff member Byl Hensley picked up a fifth-place award in the competition for best advertisement.

All the awards were announced at the annual Associated Collegiate Press/College Media Advisers fall meeting this weekend.

CMA serves over 750 member schools from all across the country.

Man says police left friend behind

By Brian Bertstein
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Cecil McCool blames police for the death of his friend, who was beaten unconscious by a group of teen-agers in one of Chicago's poorest suburbs and then set afire.

Richard Will, who was white, pleaded with black officers in Ford Heights to give him a ride to a police station after they had his car impounded, McCool said.

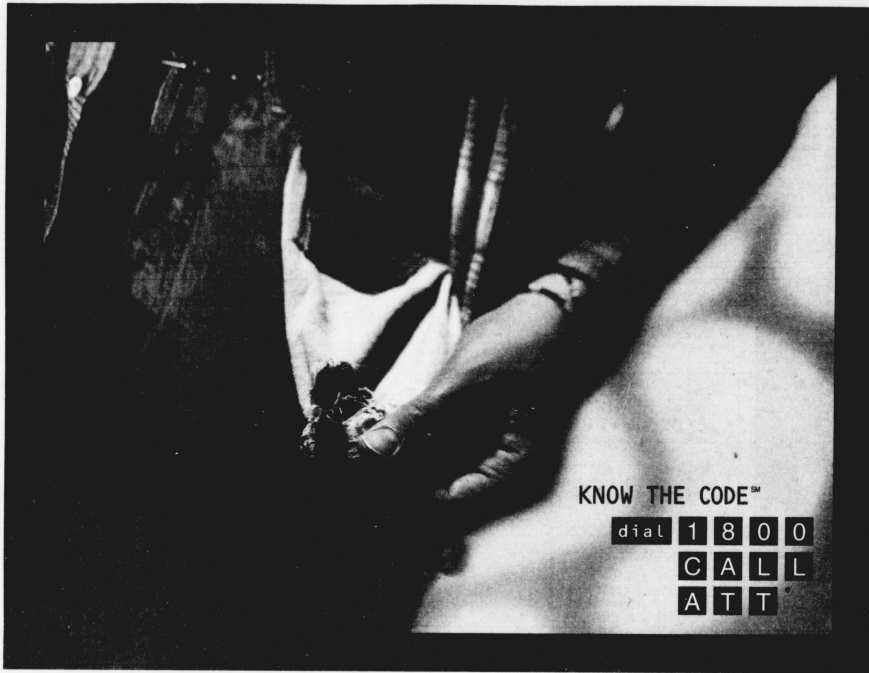

Instead, they left Will on his own in a gang-dominated black neighborhood after midnight, he said. Police say they directed Will toward a phone and insist he was killed after trying to buy drugs.

Will, 32, a laborer at a horse racing track, had been alone for 15 minutes and was three blocks from the Ford Heights police station when he was attacked on Oct. 18.

Will's family and many whites in Chicago's southern suburbs blame the police for his death. Federal and state authorities are investigating.

Critics say it parallels a 1989 incident in which Chicago police dropped off two black teen-agers in a rough white neighborhood. One of the teen-agers was beaten.

McCool and Will were stopped by police as they drove through Ford Heights after drinking at a bar in Hammond, Ind.
