

Our Moral Code Lags Behind The Realities Of Athletics

Isn't it about time we stopped playing see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil with college athletics and started facing facts?

Back in the days when a sentimental warbling of the Alma Mater brought tears to the eyes of graduates and undergraduates alike, the major college sports—football and basketball—may have been played purely for the glory of Old Siwash. That's hardly the situation today.

An Idle Query: Who Gets Loot?

One of the more interesting subjects for idle speculation is the question of what becomes of all the money that's forked over by students and faculty members each year in traffic fines. Judging from personal experience and the sad tales of others, the sum must be immense.

The secretary who graciously accepts the fines doesn't get any of it. She's paid out of an annual appropriation from the Student Government Association budget. Likewise the campus policemen who give out tickets with such laudable abandon don't reap any ill-gotten gains. They draw their salaries from the Maintenance and Operations department. The SGA budget doesn't show any indications of swelling from such lucrative operation.

Of course the University wouldn't be so lax as to allow the money to just lie around doing nothing. On the off chance that it is lying around, however, we have a suggestion.

Why not turn the traffic fine proceeds over to SGA, so the organization could have a budget that might be able to stretch over some of its student obligations. After all, SGA gets stuck with the bill for the secretary.

UK Library Discourages Students From Studying

Undoubtedly the UK library is one of the finest libraries in the South to store books. It certainly isn't much good for studying, however.

The clever policy of the powers-that-be must be designed solely for the benefit of those students who need sleep after week-end excesses. Every morning before the doors are opened to the public, someone religiously sees to it that a full head of steam is up and all the windows are fastened down.

Sleep is a good thing, but it's not much help when you're trying to study the small, rather dim print of some thick volume in preparation for a nasty mid-semester. Would it be sacrilege to suggest that more students might exclaim an interest in books and learning if once and awhile a few cool, stimulating breezes were allowed to sweep gently through the library's majestic rooms?

Our Readers Speak: Sorrowing Fan Reports Meilinger Is Ineligible

Dear Editor: As a loyal alumnus of the University, my heart is heavy as I find myself compelled to reveal the facts about an incident that occurred between myself and Steve Meilinger.

The case is simple but the mistake is there. Last spring, I had a chance meeting with Steve which I enjoyed very much. As we were about to part I offered to buy him a pack of cigarettes. Dutifully he declined, but in the end I prevailed upon him to accept them. And so, without forethought I scarred this young man's reputation and his standing as an amateur.

It is not easy for me to disclose these facts, but I feel it is better for Steve, the University and myself to admit them now than to have them ferreted out later by that able and fair minded person, Mr. Bernie Moore.

Of course this will suspend Steve from playing football at the University but I intend to stand behind him. Should there be any mention of a penitentiary offense I intend to appeal to Judge Sam Street who, despite all the dope selling, sex offenses, gambling, etc. that is prevalent in his district of New York, would be glad to hear our case.

Fan Wants Record Broken

Custom decrees that I use mild and moderate language in expressing my thoughts, particularly by mail. Consequently, the intensity of my sentiment is partially lost. The subject in mind is Saturday's football game. I am a displaced Kentuckian who has for years read the strictly biased accounts of Southeastern Conference ball games as reported by local sportswriters. If one limits his views by what he sees in the Chattanooga papers, he finds that Tennessee and Georgia Tech are the only teams worthy of note in the entire organization.

The record does show, I believe, that Kentucky has never defeated a team coached by Neyland. While not a Kentucky alumnus, I am a Murray graduate, it has been a bitter disappointment to read year after year the same story. Last year was especially bad after Vanderbilt played the "Vol Supermen" off their feet and almost beat them the week after UK was defeated.

Rumor has it that "The General" will retire after this season. Would it be possible to spoil his beautiful record?

I do not believe in a jinx, nor do I believe that UK is awed by the name of Neyland—in spite of the record! Could it be that the boys defeat themselves by trying too hard?

On this assumption that they had other reasons, I would like to take issue with their request for a rebate on their I-D cards. True, they paid for an I-D card which would have admitted them to all of the home games. Now there are to be no home games. I can see how it would come to their minds that a request for a rebate would not be an unreasonable demand. However, my purpose in disagreeing is based on the assumption that even if basketball is out for the year, the expenses of maintaining the Memorial Coliseum were not eliminated by the NCAA.

These expenses are such mundane things as heat, for the team will continue to practice, light, janitorial service, et al. M&O takes care of these and it is a separate arm of the University, but an arm that must be supported.

The University will have a team next year which will be well worth supporting, and I consider that the money spent by each of us may be conserved more wisely invested, if it does anything toward improving the University's athletic program, or any other part of it.

One other point—each student paid around $16.40 for the I-D card. This covers football, basketball, baseball, the swimming pool, intramural sports, community concerts, and other things. Dividing by only the things here mentioned, the rebate would be only about $2.53. Tell me now, is it worth it?

I don't want the writers of the other letter to think I am taking them to task, or shouting as a real rah rah boy that we should give everything to the school. I am just as good a sport as anyone on the campus, and I keep just as quiet as the next fan at ball games, so you see I am really just one of the boys. I just happen to disagree with their viewpoint.

Lucian Answers A Letter

Dear Editor: In last week's Kernel there appeared a letter signed by Six Disillusioned Sports Fans. They admitted that they came to UK to see a great team in action. However they did not say that they came here for that reason only, therefore I assume that they had other reasons.

On this assumption that they had other reasons, I would like to take issue with their request for a rebate on their I-D cards. Dorm Food Is Attacked

Dear Editor: An eternal complaint around the girls' dormitory has to do with the food served in the dorm cafeteria, and in my estimation, it's a reasonable gripe.

Lack of variety, poor preparation, and tasteless meat is just a few of the many reasons the girls don't enjoy eating in the dormitory. If the meat served is of high grade, it's difficult to discover . . . most of it is hidden under "sauces" or disguised in some other fashion. If best grade meat can not be obtained, due to the limited budget which I am sure the dietitian has to maintain, at least it could be prepared and served in a more appetizing manner.

Not only is it expensive, but a waste of time to

Pioneer Is Honored This Week, Genius Has Job Frustrations

By PAUL KNAPP

This week has been set aside to commemorate the 200th birthday of that indomitable frontiersman, George Rogers Clark. While paying tribute to the famed Clark, we shouldn't forget that group of fine old Southern aristocrats who proudly claim lineal descent from him.

It is indeed a distinction to be related to one of history's more colorful characters. Those who claim this heritage should have the distinct privilege of installing white colonial columns in front of their modern colonial mansions.

By the way, it's a pretty well established historical fact that Clark never married.

The epitome in frustration was reached recently at one of our leading educational institutions. Of course, it couldn't happen here.

The situation concerned a certain intellectual who keeps his billfold well padded by writing term papers, English themes, and other research papers for those not so well endowed as he is with brains and patience.

In order to keep his business from being discovered by the teachers, he writes these papers in accordance with the grades that the student hiring him has received all along in the class. In other words he writes a C paper for a C student, etc. Of course for a D or E student, he writes a C paper, hoping that the instructor will think it a stroke of genius.

The pay for the services of this brain runs from an E paper—guaranteed—for only 35 cents to enormous undisclosed amounts for doctoral dissertations.

The frustration that was mentioned comes from the occasional quirk of fate that causes one of the instructors to place a lower grade on a paper than the professional writer thought it was worth.

In these few instances the student comes back to him demanding that he refund the difference in the rate of the grade that he wanted and the grade that he got on the paper. This causes no end of professional embarrassment.

How frustrated can you get? He can't go over to see the instructor of the course and say "I was writing English themes around here when you were in knee pants, and I know a C paper when I write one."

About the only consolation he has is that he can make a nice memorial plaque in remembrance of the numerous Phi Beta Kappa's he has gotten through school.

You only go to college 14 days a year, according to some fancy figuring done by the student newspaper at Southeastern State College in Oklahoma.

A third of each 365 days is spent sleeping—eight hours a day. That leaves 243 days. Count off 52 Sundays, three months of summer vacation and half an hour a day for lunch. That leaves 91 days.

Now subtract 52 Saturdays because only freshmen have Saturday classes, two weeks for Christmas vacation and the odd days for Thanksgiving, Easter, and between semesters. That brings it down to two weeks a year of actual class time.

Why wouldn't it be possible for students to have a choice of either paying board at the dormitory or taking their meals elsewhere?

Typical of the food available is the soup which is served on the average of five days a week. Fortunately, some choice is offered as to the flavor . . . potato, vegetable, and bean soup are usually alternated, with chili sometimes substituted for "variety's" sake. The attempt fails.

The only good I can see in eating at the dorm is that it affords a greater appreciation for "Mother's cooking." If steps aren't taken to improve the food situation there, the number of girls who will get sick, food poisoning is a better term, will surely increase.

A Hungry Student

Petty Thievery Denounced

Dear Editor: I have several times felt almost strongly enough on certain matters to write to you, and there occurred recently an experience which has moved me to reflect on student integrity.

A few days ago Eta Kappa Nu, Electrical Engineering honorary, held its fall initiation in the "Y" lounge of the Student Union. Being recording secretary of the organization, I had with me that night the minute book of the organization. In the excitement of the occasion and the banquet which followed I forgot the notebook in which the minutes are entered and left it in the lounge. I did not miss the book until a few days later, upon which I went back to the "Y" lounge to look for it. I did not find the notebook, but instead the sheets which contained the minutes, the binder and a few clean sheets of paper.

Who is this student who ostensibly is a Christian, participating in the activities of the "Y," and possibly known to his fellows as a "good," clean living person? Did he not even as Judas sell his character

Victory Holiday Is Legally Out, President Rules

By KATHY FRYEE

What would happen if the Wildcats beat Tennessee Saturday? Besides making history and thrilling every best hokewarm sports fan, would it not automatically make a holiday on Monday?

It wouldn't, said President Donovan when I asked him last week.

"The faculty committee makes up the calendar, and I don't have the power to change it," he explained during our meeting.

There are certain powers the president does not have, contrary to popular student opinion, and calling a holiday seems to be one of them.

Dr. Donovan laughingly called my idea "a little optimistic," but thought that if such a thing did happen, we would probably have a spontaneous celebration in the Coliseum Sunday afternoon.

However, as a friend of mine shrewdly commented the other day, if he beat the Vols and nobody shows up for Monday classes . . . Well?

A small boy ran up to a cop yelling, "Please, officer, come quick. My daddy and another man are fighting."

Rushing to the scene, the cop asked, "Which one is your dad, sonny?"

"I don't know. That's what they're fighting about."

Sidelights of the Clemson game: Sharing cheerleaders with the friendly, loud-voiced drill squad from Clemson . . . watching the flurry of coke cup lids spinning through the air like miniature flying saucers . . . watching the Wildcats not only preparing themselves for a single wing attack next week but also getting used to the glare of orange shirts . . . hearing some characters sing the Tennessee school song after the final whistle.

No campus is complete without extracurricular activities and no student has a wide, inclusive education without getting in on all of them. The only trouble is that they leave no time for those ordinary things like classes and homework.

Next To Impossible Department:

Getting hold of the reserve room book assigned to your class the afternoon before the report on it is due.

Finding a girl who doesn't wear her scarf tucked inside the neckline of her sweater.

Getting back to the campus after the Thanksgiving holidays in time for Monday's 8 o'clock class.

Professor: To put it simply, if you sat on a hot stove for a minute, it would seem like an hour. If a beautiful girl sat on your lap for an hour, it would seem like a minute. That, in brief, is relativity.

Student: From stuff like that Einstein makes a living?

A little cheaply? For what do people go to college? Are they better for their education if they are still petty thieves?

A Disillusioned Recording Secretary

Our Grammar Criticized

Dear Editor: Away back yonder in the early days of this century when Alexander St. Clair (Sandy) MacKenzie was responsible for the English used by UK freshmen, we were taught that we should say "botanic," not "botanical" gardens. In those days, the only thing that adverbs could modify was the verb.

Your use of "botanical" in a recent story about the gardens is, I believe, although quite common, still incorrect. The English always says "botanic." If I am wrong, please let me know.

A. M. Kirby, '07

Editor's Note—Webster's Second International Dictionary, second edition, unabridged, gives "botanical" as the preferred usage, although it does give a usage of "botanic gardens." It also says that "botanic" and "botanical" are adjectives, not adverbs, when they're used to modify a noun. It looks like we're both right, Mr. Kirby.

COLONEL Of The Week

Colonel in the studio, please! Frazier's And now, the Strupp Cup is proud to present Robert Lowell Marshall as Colonel of the Week.

Both will graduate in January, a seven-semester course, with an overall standing of 2. A radio arts major, he has been on the editorial staff of WKYK for the last two years, being simultaneously editor of WKYK last year and co-editor of the UK Newsleader this year.

He's done just about every job there is of WKYK-producing, acting, directing, engineering, and writing. He's had two original drama productions, and was engineer and announcer for several programs in the "Community Kentucky" series, now being broadcast on 15 stations in the state. He was a staff announcer at WKYK last year, and is now announcing at WKYK.

Both, a native of Hazard, is a veteran-he spent a year and a half in the MP's of Ft. Monmouth, N. J. But he says, "didn't get to where anything was going on." His wife, Barbara, is a College of Commerce senior. They got together, Black Rock the Eighth, is called Bob for short.

Somehow Bob found time in these crowded seven semesters for other activities-he's a Sigma Phi Epsilon devotee, was chosen a Distinguished Military Student in 1951. He's a member of Southland and Beta, in the Patterson Library Society, and has been in the Beta Club, a weight-lifting group. He was the Grandest one-act plays last year, in a Transpo master of ceremonies, and for the last two years has handled the Marching 195's public address system at games.

For those outstanding achievements, the Strupp Cup invites Bob Marshall to enjoy one of its many delicious meals.

Civil Air Patrol Forms Squadron On Campus

The Kentucky Wing of the Civil Air Patrol has organized the new squadron on the UK campus with Andrew Wallace acting as commanding officer. Ronnie Butler, public information officer of the Lexington squadron, announced this week.

This squadron is the first unit of its kind to be set up on a college or university campus. Although not affiliated with the University the organization will draw upon UK students for members.

The CAP, which was formed shortly before the Second World War, has the primary function of flying air-rescue missions. Other duties include money flights, working with the United States' radar network for the spotting of enemy craft, and, in case of war, flying reconnaissance missions along coast-line areas.

The second important function of the Lexington squadron will be the training of members for aviation cadets. Between 200 and 400 high school students will be trained by the Lexington Squadron next semester.

Training will consist of such aspects of aviation and civil defense as communications, navigation, meteorology, supply, engineering, and first aid. UK members will also receive this training.

When the Lexington Squadron completes its program, it will participate in state and national-wide flight missions. A communications system has already been established, giving the squadron radio contact with other groups throughout the country.

Law-Journal To Feature Articles On Legislation

The November issue of the Kentucky Law Journal which will be out this month will feature commentaries on selected acts of the 1952 Kentucky Legislature. It is made up of articles submitted by the student editorial board of the Journal, UK faculty, and outside experts in the field of law.

This issue of the Journal, which is the 10th oldest legal periodical published by United States law schools, is the 41st volume published since its beginning in 1910.

Members of the University faculty who have written articles for the November Journal are Dr. Gladys Kammerer, associate professor of political science; Ruth McQueen, research associate, Bureau of Government Research, Political Science Department; John E. Reeves, associate professor of political science; H. E. Wetzel, head of the Department of Social Work; James W. Hughes, instructor in sociology; Ashley Dee Akers, graduate of the Law School and now with the State Revision Committee, Frankfort; and W. Lewis Roberts, professor emeritus of law.

Student contributors are Robert C. Moffitt, editor-in-chief of the Journal, and Dianne McKaig, second year law student and member of the Journal staff.

Amos H. Ehlen, a member of the law firm of Smith and Leary, Frankfort, and H. Bemis Lawrence, Jefferson College of Law, have also contributed articles to this issue.

The Journal features a Notes and Comments section which is written by student members of the staff. Prof. Fred W. Whitehead is the faculty advisor.

The Law Journal, published four times each year, is used for reference both by attorneys and judges throughout the United States.

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER!

They're made better to taste cleaner, fresher, smoother! Ask yourself this question: Why do I smoke? You know, yourself, you smoke for enjoyment. And you get enjoyment only from the taste of a cigarette.

Luckies taste better—cleaner, fresher, smoother! Why? Because Luckies are made better to taste better. And, what's more, Luckies are made of fine tobacco. L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco.

So, for the thing you want most in a cigarette... for better taste—cleaner, fresher, smoother taste... Be Happy—Go Lucky!

Dr. Hopkins To Gather Material For Collection Of Clay Papers

Dr. James F. Hopkins, associate professor of history at UK, has accepted the job of gathering and evaluating the letters and papers of Henry Clay. If this project, recently started by the University, proves successful, Lexington, the home and burial ground of Henry Clay, will become the seat of the world's largest collection of Clay's material.

The material will be prepared for publication as "The Clay Collection." Although the actual collecting of documents has just begun, it has been estimated that such a work will fill several volumes. As compiler of the collection, Dr. Hopkins will be the author of editorial comments appearing throughout the work.

In Author Of Two Books

The choice of Dr. Hopkins for the undertaking was based partly on the merit of two of his earlier books which were published by the University of Kentucky Press. "A History of the Hemp Industry in Kentucky" was his first work. Last year his "University of Kentucky" was published.

The later book told the history of the University to 1910. Dr. Hopkins was beginning the second volume of the school's history when he decided to take the Clay assignment. Since the tremendous cost involved would not allow any collector to secure all the priceless letters and papers of Henry Clay, Dr. Hopkins is attempting to obtain either microfilm or photostatic copies of those available.

Has Contacted Libraries

He already has contacted almost every library in the nation and many private individuals in the attempt to purchase facsimile material. More than 2,000 Clay documents and 27 reels of microfilm already have been gathered by Dr. Hopkins.

"We haven't even begun to scratch Kentucky sources for material," the professor said. "Most of that which we have now come from libraries in Virginia and New England."

Dr. Hopkins has visited many libraries himself in the search. At present the Library of Congress at Washington, D. C., has the largest single collection of Clay and he hopes to bring copies of all those papers to Lexington.

"We've discovered letters and papers of Henry Clay all the way from Switzerland to Hawaii," Dr. Hopkins asserted when questioned about the scope of the findings.

Editorial Comment To Be Brief

"All editorial comment must necessarily be brief. Although our aim isn't to bring forward an entirely new conception of Clay, it is quite possible that this study will reveal the man in a new light," Dr. Hopkins explained.

Contributions have been received from the Filson Club, the Kentucky Historical Society, and the Clay family in this state. Dr. Hopkins issued an appeal yesterday to Kentuckians with letters to or from Clay, speeches and accounts of trials, and other events to allow the University to make copies of their possessions.

"If you won't allow some institution to place your originals in a fireproof library please have a copy made to be preserved," the professor urged.

"Flames, rats in attics, and water in barns have destroyed too much of Kentucky's rich history," he pointed out.

Publisher Not Yet Chosen

A publisher has not been selected for the collection, and outside help may be necessary before the project is completed. However, a grant has been obtained from the University's Research Fund Committee for early work.

The idea for the collection originated in the history department shortly after the National Historical Publications Commission was created. This commission was formed as an indirect result of the success of the Jefferson Papers, a 50-volume project financed by the New York Times.

"The national commission recommended that the study be undertaken. Although the commission is unable to give financial aid for the Clay project, it is offering encouragement and advice."

Mrs. Mary Wilma Hargreaves, local historical scholar and graduate of Radcliffe College, is assisting Dr. Hopkins in the collecting and compilation of material for the work.

Clay collection in progress — Dr. James F. Hopkins, associate professor of history, is shown at work in the Margaret I. King Library on material to be used in the forthcoming "Clay Collection."

4-H Students Return After Trip Abroad

Four UK students, who have visited foreign countries for the past five months, returned to the campus last Friday. The project was sponsored by the State 4-H Department.

Jewell Deane Ellis, '51, graduate, visited Israel. Joe Peden, Charles Shiple, and Herbert Brown, all whom are enrolled in the Agriculture College, visited Serbia, England, and Turkey, respectively.

The purpose of the project was to create a better relationship between the United States and foreign countries. James W. Whitehouse, state leader in 4-H Club work, said this week. Whitehouse added that the obligation of the students now was to tour their home county and explain what they had done.

A television photographer from the Edward R. Murrow news show, "See It Now," has been taking pictures of the students this week. These pictures will be shown on his CBS television program at 5:30 Sunday.

A reception was given for the students and their families Sunday by Phi U, home economics honorary.

At this reception, Miss Ellis, one of the students, said, "We went out to live on farms with families. When they dug potatoes or washed dishes, so did we."

She also said the people in foreign countries think of Americans as being very wealthy and not having to work. They were surprised that we were willing to come over there and work with them.

Field Survey Made By Sutton's Class

Students enrolled in Prof. Willis A. Sutton's class, "The Community," are making a field survey in community studies in Harrodsburg. The class left yesterday and will return Saturday.

A regular schedule has been planned for the group. The survey will consist mostly of interviews with the local citizens to discuss community attitudes.

This work is part of a larger study being conducted by various agencies on the campus. Purpose of such surveys is to give students field experience in making community studies.

Iranian Student Notes Difference In Customs

By Reba Adams

Miss Taghous Ohanian, an exchange student from the University of Teheran, Iran, finds a marked difference with the social habits of her very college friends and customs of her own country.

The average American fourteen-year-old girl has already been launched into the sea of boys, movies, dances, and parties. An Iranian girl does not begin dating until she enters college and is at least 18. She dates only one boy at a time and with the motive to find a suitable husband, Miss Ohanian said.

The average age of people getting married is higher in Teheran than in the United States. Between 22 and 28 is the average age of marriage for college students. Girls usually attend parties, dances, picnics, movies, or visit in the girls' home, Miss Ohanian said.

Modern Iranian dress does not differ much from college students' dress, except they are more soberly dressed. They do not like bright shirts and ties.

A proper young Iranian girl does not smoke, chew gum, or drink. She wears makeup only on special occasions. Most boys do not smoke until they are 20, the exchange student said.

Miss Ohanian said one of the first things she noticed about U. S. college girls was how tastefully they all seem to be. She expressed amazement to find that girls she saw on the campus each day dressed in lobby socks and "sloppy" sweaters were the same girls she saw on week ends dressed in their best values and high heels.

She commented on the American college girls' daily shining appearance and how careful they are concerning health, appearance, and femininity.

College Board Consultant Gives Tips On Grooming

Suzanne Potter, representative of the Revlon College Board, spoke at 4:00 Monday at the Student Union Building. Tuesday she held private consultations by appointment.

A native Californian, Miss Potter has been traveling throughout the country as a Revlon consultant for about fifteen months. She has spoken at many of the outstanding colleges in the country and made several talks in Kentucky.

Good grooming was the general theme of her talk here Monday. She gave tips on the proper care of complexion, hair, and nails and discussed the problems of good posture. She also gave several hints on how to apply for a job.

Included in the program was a demonstration by Miss Potter on the correct application of make-up. She brought in the kind and amount of make-up best suited to each individual type.

Miss Potter commented on the vast differences in clothing she had observed while visiting in this section of the country. Dress on the coast is much more casual and less rigidly ruled by the seasonal changes, she remarked.

The visit of Miss Potter to the University of Kentucky campus was sponsored by the Student Union Board.

Shapiro To Lecture In Writing Course

Karl Shapiro, author and critic, will lecture today in Room 111 McVey Hall at 3 p.m. Mr. Shapiro, who spoke last night in the Guignol Theater on "The Poet in Spite of Himself," will read and comment on his poetry. He will speak before a creative writing class.

Wiley And Price Lead Harriers To Victory

The University of Kentucky Cross Country squad routed teams from Berea and Morehead in a triangular meet last Saturday morning on the Picocone golf course. The Wildcats of Coach Don Seaton scored 17 points to 29 and 64 for Berea and Morehead respectively.

The team, in this case Kentucky, running up the lowest total wins the meet. The Wildcats hauled down five of the first six places as only Frank Wade of Berea spoiled a Kentucky clean sweep of the first five spots.

First man, or men as it turned out, to finish were Al Wiley and Captain Speedie Price who came in in a dead heat over the four mile course. The winning time was 21:18.3 and could have been lowered if the competition had been tighter for first place.

Frank Scott, in his first year as a UK runner after transferring here from a fall, turned on a beautiful sprint in the last fifty yards to pass Wade and take third place.

Jay Wallace and Charlie Well were the next two finishers in that order to complete the scoring for the Kentucky squad.

Berea finished second with 39 points, thereby missing their chance to beat Kentucky after beating them in the Kentucky quad.

Morehead, in its first year of cross country, finished last with 64 points. The Thoroughbreds had lost a dual meet to the same Berea team a few weeks previously, thus beating them for the second time this year.

Earlier Saturday morning, The Spiked Shoe Society of Kentucky sponsored a successful High School Championship Cross Country meet in which six schools were entered with 39 boys representing these teams.

Louisville Male won the meet with an aggregate point scoring of 18 points. Louisville Flaget was second with 29 points. Then came four different teams representing Valley High. Valley finished third as a team and their big man, Dave Collett, turned in a nifty 10:19.8 to garner the blue ribbon.

The Kentucky squad will round out this season before the next issue of the Kernel appears with a representation in the Southeastern Conference meet and also part in the Annual Shamrock Run in Louisville on Thanksgiving morning.

The Kentucky squad will probably be favored to cop the SEC meet by virtue of their win over Tennessee two weeks ago, 29-24 here in Lexington. Tennessee had previously beaten three other teams from this conference, Auburn, Alabama and Georgia Tech.

The Shamrock Run will find two or three of Kentucky's opponents of this year, Tennessee, Berea and possibly Morehead providing the opposition.

From these surmises, Kentucky's chances in these two meets should be pretty good to give the Wildcats their second successful year in many years of competition in this field.

You can watch for the boys who comprise the squad to be in the headlines come the spring with the track season, due to the training they are receiving this fall.

Wildcats Down Clemson 27-14

LARRY JONES

Kentucky's improving Wildcats snatched their fourth straight win of the season Saturday afternoon by dropping the Clemson Tigers 27-14 before an estimated crowd of 25,000. Kentucky was minus the services of sturdy Steve Mellinger while Clemson's All-America candidate, Billy Hair was left at home.

With a backfield of predominantly second-stringers, the Wildcats rolled up 284 yards on the ground against a Clemson line that had allowed previous opponents an average of 147 yards rushing per contest. Kentucky started off by directing to run Clemson off Stoll Field. The Wildcats scored the first two times they had their hands on the ball. Sparked by the running of Larry Jones and Allen Felch, Kentucky marched 60 yards in ten plays with Jones capping the drive by going over from the six. Bassitt's kick was wide and Kentucky led 6-0 with 6:55 to go in the first period.

Larry Jones Sparks Cats To Fifth Win

By STAN POETMANN

He's second only to Mellinger on the receiving end of Kentucky's abbreviated passing attack which has completed only 38 all season.

Carlisle is a sophomore from Chicago, Ill., and stands 6'1" and weighs 178. He was an All-City fullback at Prenger High in Chicago.

Necktie Responsible For College Colors

The blue and white of UK are known to sports fans everywhere. Officially the colors are Yale blue and white, but in the beginning, when the Lexington institution was still known as the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Kentucky, the colors were "Stoll blue" and white.

One day back in the 1890's a group of Kentucky football stalwarts met to choose their school colors. Some suggested blue and white—"blue like Dick Stoll's necktie"—and those colors were immediately adopted.

Wildcats Down Clemson 27-14

Kentucky got a break a few minutes later when, after falling to pick up a first down, Wildcat back Jim Mayo punted from his own 33. Clemson's Pete Cook muffed the kick and Leo Strunge recovered for Kentucky on the Clemson 27.

The Wildcats marched to the 15 but a 15-yard penalty halted the thrust, Mayo punting out on the Clemson 10. Kentucky came calling again a few minutes later but again the Clemson forward wall held for downs.

Ham's TD Clinches Game
Kentucky picked up the clinching TD with 4:37 remaining in game. Starting on their own 41, the Cats marched the distance in ten plays. Felch and Fillion gained most of the yardage on power plays although a 14-yard pass from Herbie Hunt to Fillion set up the score. With the ball on the 14, Fillion smashed to the free. Felch carried to the one from which point Hunt sneaked over. Bassitt's kick was good and the score stood at 27-14.

Cat Grouse Attack Rolls
Kentucky's crushing ground game had manufactured 161 yards by halftime against a highly rated Clemson line. Clemson enjoyed its biggest success in the air, picking up 62 yards by that route.

Clayton scored again a few minutes later when Dick Mitchell, Cat halfback, returned a Tiger punt to the Clemson 31. In five plays the Kentucky crew had another TD with Tom Fillion sprinting nine yards to score on fourth down. A 14-yard run by Larry Jones set up the score. Bassitt's kick was good this time and Kentucky led 13-0.

Passes Set Up Clemson TD
Clemson came roaring back on the passing of Don King and the running of Red Whitten. A King to Clemson had narrowed the Wildcat lead to 20-14.

Cats, Vols Will Meet For Football Classic

Neyland Wednesday stating that UK captain and tackle Jimmy Haslam was ineligible for further competition this season.

Haslam Played In 1949

Neyland said that films of the 1949 Vol-Mississippi game played in Memphis were examined and it was discovered that Haslam had played in the game. Haslam was a regular offensive tackle for three seasons.

The Vols in their opening game moved out Mississippi State 14-7 and the following week they suffered their only loss of the season, a 7-0 win by Duke. The Vols struggled by Chattanooga 26-6 in a breathers week before their annual clash with Alabama.

Tennessee began to click in the "Bama game and rolled over the Crimson Tide 29-0, then wacked Wolford 40-0, ran through a weak North Carolina 41-14, breezed by LSU 22-3, and last week in their greatest show of strength scored a decisive 26-12 triumph over Florida.

U.S. Has 3-1 Record

Injuries played havoc with Kentucky's early season efforts. The Cats lost to Villanova in their opener 6-25, and gained an upset 13-1 tie with Mississippi before they re-istered their first victory by 10-7 over Texas A & M. LSU slaughtered the Cats 34-7 and then Mississippi State outran them by 77-4.

The Bryant-men scored three upsets in a row by knocking Cincinnati from the ranks of the unbeaten by a 14-6 count, romping through Miami 29-0, and surprising Tulane 27-6. Saturday's Clemson victory was their fourth straight and the rivals have met only two complete foes, LSU and Mississippi State. Tennessee beat them by scores of 22-3 and 14-7 respectively. Kentucky lost to them by 7-34 and 14-27.

Vols Are Best On Paper

A comparison of scores would give the Vols the nod by a decisive margin, but through the years it has been found that the best team has been thrown out when these two rivals met.

Adding spice to an already "fully-tuned-up rivalry" will be the angle that in Kentucky the Vols will be meeting the team that captured the Cotton Bowl championship last year in a sharp rebound from the 28-0 defeat administered by UT in the final game of the regular season.

Tennessee and Kentucky have long been notorious spouters of each other's good records and low aspirations, and this year's contest is gaining a lot of attention for the very reason that the Wildcats would like nothing better than to embarrass the bowl-bound Volunteers.

Rivalry Began In 1885

One of the oldest rivalries in the nation, the Kentucky-Tennessee grid history goes back to the 1885 season. Significantly, the series got off to an auspicious start as old Kentucky U. walloped the Vols 56-0 a margin of victory that has never been equaled in the 46 games played in 67 years.

Kentucky has won 11 games - Tennessee 29 - in the series. The last victory came in 1933 by 27-0 while General Neyland was Army district commander. Prior to that year, Kentucky was successful in 1926, the car before the veteran mentor began coaching at Tennessee.

Rivalries of the game which begins at 1 p.m. Central Standard Time will be carried by WLAF, WLEX, and WIAS.

Moot Court Team Loses In Regionals

UK law students, defending champions, lost to Vanderbilt University at the Regional Moot Court Competition in St. Louis last Thursday and Friday.

Lee W. Hardesty and Leland B. Parris earned the right to represent the University at St. Louis by winning the most court trials on the campus and before the Kentucky Court of Appeals in Frankfort.

Competition at St. Louis, in which Vanderbilt placed first and Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas, was runner-up, was sponsored by the Bar Association of St. Louis in collaboration with the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. Sixty law schools participated in this competition.

Membership Doubled In University Faculty

The University Faculty has doubled its membership from 39 to 78, Dr. R. L. Tutthill, UK registrar, said this week. Members were reappointed according to the number of faculty members of professional rank by divisions of colleges as of March, 1952, he said.

The plan was on the recommendation of the Rules Committee, Dr. Tutthill said. The number of ex-officio members were increased by 10. These members are Col. Edward G. Davis, professor of Air Science and Tactics, and Levi Horvath, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The registrar said the number of elected members was increased because the rules call for periodic reappointment, and the faculty has increased since the last addition in the number of University faculty members. They are eligible for reelection until after one year.

HOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."
