Let The Shekels Fall

Musical Mutterings

By Charlie Gardner

RECORD RAMBLINGS JERRY WILD (Decca 4340) In his first effort, using the popular "The Weears a Pair of Silver Wings" Jerry Wild justifies all the enthusiasm about this new band. Wild's charmer might be likened a bit to Artie Shaw—but it is self-sufficient enough to stand on its own two feet. Tempo fast—or tempo slow, Jerry carries through in a very smooth manner, with Anita Boyer handling the lyrics in a pleasurable style. Jerry is here to stay. If that is what we are to expect from this aggression, from now on, JERRY WILD best our list for the newest and finest band of 1942.

VAUGHN MONROE (Victor 27945) A five tune with patriotic lyrics and we have a sparkling number in "Hip, Hip, Hurry." Using a lively tempo, Monroe and the band give us plenty of kick in the opening chorus. This is the music publisher's reply to the government complaint that the modern patriotic numbers are too wishy-washy. The Four's take over the vocal refrain and we know that your seat won't hold you down when you hear the fingerboard work of the pianist. A real rhythmic recording with plenty of brightness in both lyrics and music.

CHARLIE SPIVAK (Columbia) "People Like You and Me" and "At Last" Both these sides are sensationally impressive. "People" gets one rocking beat, thanks to Jimmy Mid-

Who, When, Where, And How?

TIME OUT—By Tommy Moore

Wondering just where they stand in relation to military service is now an old-recurring thought to the male portions of the student body. The new draft bill is held up while the House is at home for elections, and nobody knows just what is what. When will the younger group be called? Will the reserves be called with the army reserves? All these questions are coming up, yet none of those who is uncertain is giving up the idea of continuing education until the last possible moment. With military service imminent for all able-bodied men, it is highly commendable that impatience has not caused many to stop working along educational lines.

Another question which bears a little thought is the discussions, pro and con, of whether we are getting correct reports from foreign efforts. Can I help if I worry? Are our own communiques padded as we found German and Russian reports once were? How many even follow the events of the war in detail? It might be good to think on these things.

Now that the little question session is over we'll add a few items you may or may not be interested in, but this time closer to the campus.

Tuesday's Sweater Swing in the Bluegrass room of the Union has the spot in spite of the fact that a lot of people who could have been there were not. They missed something, because when put on right those jobs are more fun than anybody's formal. The Union committees are doing a good job of keeping things jumping around there.

We won't give her name, but one illustrious KD puffed and blowed on three cigars for the glory of the sorority which tied for first prize for Homecoming decorations. Serving as a press box prop this coed either took no chances on missing the judges or just liked the ole stogie that well.

Kernel news story reported that the SAE bar-room scene was enhanced by freshmen dressed as bar-fies. Ah, little did they, or the judges, know how realistic that bit of "acting" was.

During the game the ADP's red elephant disappeared from their decoration scheme. No doubt some old grad, or undergrad, mistook the shade and realized his desire to catch one of those things which have tantalized him so often.

Absence of Bill Goodloe's popular column, "Out of This World," is due to a serious case of pneumonia which has had the writer in the hospital for a week. We add our hopes for his quick recovery. Doctors have restricted visitors and his family has been with him most of the time.

Vincent Spagnuolo strikes something of a new note, or one at least strange to The Kernel, with his column done in the form of a pat on the back for the football team. That, my friend, is what we like to see. Credit where credit is due adds a lot to the feelings of all concerned.

A general plea for a sane and non-destructive Halloween is in order. We can ill afford to have anything destroyed by amateur vandalism during war time, especially with every effort being made to conserve all products.

The most complete metabolizer in the world is at the state narcotic farm near Lexington. It measures every fraction of metabolism to accuracy of five-twentieths of a gram and houses the patient in a sealed room which is itself balanced on the scales.

Weather is supposed to be a last resort of conversation and writing, and now that this column turns to the intricacies of the elements, it is just quitting time.

They Are Our Neighbors

To the students of the University of Kentucky: There are those of you who think that the far corners of the globe are still the far corners of the globe. That is no longer true. England is as close to us as the man across the street; Egypt lives around the corner; China is in the next block. These are our neighbors with whom we trade cups of flour across the back fence.

Japan and Germany are those horribly brought up families that live one street over and exist by grand larceny and bullying. We are publishing here parts of Wendell Wilkie's speech to the American people, parts that the students should perceive carefully and think about deeply.

"I say to you: There are no distant points in the world any longer. . . I cannot escape the conviction that in the future what concerns them must concern us, almost as much as the problems of the people of California concern the people of New York. . .

"Whether I was talking to a resident of Belen or Natal in Brazil, or one timing his burden on his head in Nigeria, or a Prime Minister or a King in Egypt, or a veiled woman in ancient Baghdad, or a Shah or a weaver of carpets in legendary Persia, no known as Iran, or a follower of Ataturk in those streets of Ankara, which look so like the streets of our Middle Western cities, or to a strong-limbed, resolute factory worker in Russia, or to Stalin himself, or the enchanting wife of the great Generalissimo of China, or a Chinese soldier at the front, or a fur-capped hunter on the edge of the trackless forests of Siberia—whether I was talking to any of these people, or to any others, I found that they all have one common bond, and that is their deep friendship for the United States. . .

"They, each and every one, turn to the United States with friendship which is often akin to genuine affection. I bring back to you this clear and significant fact: That there exists in the whole world today a gigantic reservoir of good will toward you, the American people. . .

"Many things have created this enormous reservoir. At the top of the list go the hospitals, schools and colleges which Americans—many of them missionaries—have founded in the far corners of the world. Many of the new leaders of old countries—men who are today running Iraq, or Turkey or China—have studied under American teachers whose only interest has been to spread knowledge. Now, in our time of crisis, we owe a great debt to those men and women who have made friends for us. . .

"I bring you the assurance that this reservoir exists. I also bring you the warning that it is leaking. It is leaking dangerously. It is leaking at a thousand points. It is leaking through steadily spreading cracks and holes. These holes have not been punched in the reservoir by Hitler. They have been punched by us. All the leaks in this priceless reservoir are of our own making. For the very existence of this reservoir is built on confidence in us, in our integrity of purpose, our honesty in dealing, our ability in performance. We have made big promises. How have these promises been fulfilled? . . .

"Take the vital matter of our production of war materials. Here we are, supposedly the biggest industrial nation on earth. But the flow of war materials out of this country to some of the nations I visited is not only small in itself, but as compared to the immensity of this global war we are engaged in, it is tragically small. . .

"From this infinitesimal supply, materials would have to branch out into ever-smaller streams and finally trickle into the hands of those who so desperately need them—people who sometimes die whether they laugh or weep when these crates and packages arrive. . .

"I followed some of those streams and other streams to their destinations—and I stopped talking about American production. If I were to tell you how few bombers China has received from us you simply would not believe me. If I were to tell you how few Russia feels we are from fulfilling our commitments, you would agree with me that we have little reason to boast about our performance. . .

"There are exceptions. I have seen American planes and tanks which have been in hand and grudging action, and which stood up magnificently. I have seen the beginning of shipping routes which will some time carry the kind of traffic the world is waiting for. I have seen something of the heroism and the skill with which Americans—pilots, sailors, engineers—are blasting the routes clear for our production when we get it ready. . .

"When will this be? That depends, I think, on how quickly we, and our leaders, can begin to mobilize, not for defense, but for attack. It is my reasoned judgment that we cannot win this war 40 per cent mobilized. There are a great many people listening to me tonight who would like to do more if they knew what more to do. It is up to us to make our leaders give us more to do. . .

"For I tell you that if we continue to fail to deliver to our allies what they are entitled to expect of us or what we have promised them, our reservoir of good will will turn into one of resentment. We cannot laugh this off or shrug it away or take it behind censorship. Five million Russians and five million Chinese have given their lives in this struggle. Each of these countries has lost as many men as we have in our entire army. We owe them more than boasts and broken promises. . .

"We are also punching holes in our reservoir of good will every day by failing to define clearly our war aims. Besides giving our allies in Asia and Eastern Europe something to fight with, we have got to give them assurance of what we are fighting for. . .

"The two hundred million people of Russia and the four hundred fifty million people of China—people like you and me—are bewildered and anxious. They know that they are fighting for. They are not so sure of us. . .

"Finally, when I say that this world demands the full participation of a self-confident America, I am only passing on an invitation which these peoples of the East have given us. They would like the United States to be one of their partners in this grand adventure. They want us to join them in creating a new society, global in scope, free alike of the economic injustices of the West and the political malpractices of the East. But as a partner in that great new combination they want us neither hesitant, incompetent, nor afraid. They want a partner who will not hesitate to speak out for the correction of injustices anywhere in the world. . .

"Our allies in the East know that we intend to pour out our resources in this war. But they expect us now—not after the war—to use the enormous power of our giving to promote liberty and justice. Other people, not yet fighting, are waiting no less eagerly for us to accept the most challenging opportunity of all history—the chance to help create a new society in which men and women the globe around can live and grow invigorated by freedom. . .

Cooperation with our allies—that is what we must foster among the American people. After all, they are fighting our battles for us just as surely as we are fighting their battle for them. We have supplies—food, medical equipment, those essential things to the life of a fighting nation. Those supplies must reach the Russians who are making such a gallant stand with their backs to the wall of the Black Sea. . .

If you are one of those people who are asking "what more can I do?" here is something for you to start backing right now right here on the campus. . .

The War Chest needs all that you can spare, it needs so much that each student should—each student must—give to the fullest extent of which he is able. He must deny himself a few pleasures in order that his ally may survive. He can take his girlfriend to the library one night instead of to a movie, and the money saved can go into the Chest. She will understand, and the studying might be good for both of you. . .

You girls during Sadie Hawkins week, take the fellow out enough, but don't make it excessive; save part of your allowance to go to Greece to save the life of a starving baby. . .

Among the beasts of the forests and jungles the law is the survival of the fittest, but among civilized nations it is that the strong shall look after the weak. . .

Ask yourself: "Am I my brother's keeper?" and the answer will come like the surge of the ocean against the chalk cliffs: "Yes, I am my brother's keeper."

diaton and Davey Toug, and features what has turned into the best vocal group in the business, the Stardusters. Catch their beat, blend, natural phrasing, and the way June Hutton leads them. And don't miss her and Garry Stevens on the other side, which has some gorgeous open trumpeting by Charlie. They, that man, plays that, there's just nobody approaching him. . .

TEDDY WILSON (Columbia) Long delayed, this collection of eight sides of the solo keyboard efforts of Teddy Wilson shows the distinguished pianist at his very best. Four sides with rhythm ("China Boy"; "Them There Eyes"; "I Know That You Know"; and "Rosetta") get a wonderful beat, both from Teddy Wilson and his backing (J. C. Heard, drums, and Al Hall, bass). "Kew" and "China" are a little too fast for top musical value, but otherwise they are beautifully put together. These sides are backed by typical Wilson performances of "These Foolish Things," "I Can't Get Started," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," and "Body and Soul," exciting to effective in that order. Only serious drawback in the collection is the recording; surfaces are rough throughout. . .

If you have any questions you would like to have answered, concerning musicians, records, etc., leave them at the Kernel office, and I will try to answer them as soon as possible. . .

Gentleman Of Texas

THE FINE LANCE—by Bob Warth

A pair of gentlemen from Texas, Wilbur Lee O'Daniel of the Senate and Martin Dies of the House remain on our list of "current American demagogues." . .

Neither has suffered defeat at the polls, as have Talmadge and Smith, which makes them doubly dangerous. But despite the proximity of their hunting grounds, they are widely divergent in temperament. . .

O'Daniel, today's candidate for some literary surgery, is a newswriter to the ranks and may be listed as merely "potentially dangerous." For he, as yet lacks that vitally important ingredient of the really successful mob-man—a "cause" or crusade; in other words, he lacks a dogma which is simple, easy to grasp, and emotionally striking enough for the average man to mentally visualize and with which he can identify himself so completely that it becomes an integral part of his faith, doubt then becoming blasphemy, and inquiry a crime. . .

The O'Daniel approach is a streamlined version of that old political standby, the "just folks" technique. Although unadorned, his hokum is dished out in every election. Wilbur hit a new high in the Texas primaries. . .

Several years ago he was just another time-waster on an obscure Texas radio station plugging his husband's four between hillbilly songs and profound sayings (cleaned, no doubt, from Dorothy Dix, Edgar A. Guest, and Lloyd C. Douglas) on such world-shaking topics as the sanctity of the home, the sacrifice of a mother's love, the benefits of 100 per cent Americanism, and the dollar and cents value of prayer. . .

When The Major Meets The Minor

TALKIE TALK —By Pat

Remember all those jokes about the people who try to ride buses and trains for charity, let and when the conductor says they look a lot older, they relate by saying, "Can I help if I worry?" . . .

A streamlined version of this old trick will open with a mid-nite premiere Saturday at the Ben All theater. When Ginger Rogers is to pass for a 12-year-old. Here she is the Minor and Ray Milland—he of the eagle eyes—is the Major of the Paramount production entitled "The Major and the Minor." . . .

It all starts when Ginger, disillusioned with New York wants to return to her home town in the States. Her masquerade boys, but train rates have increased so that she lacks five dollars of having the ticket money. . .

She conceives the brilliant—at least she thinks it is brilliant—idea of transforming herself into a half-fare minor. Her masquerade boys her ticket, but arouses the suspicions of the conductors on board the ticket money. . .

She eludes them by crashing the compartment of the young Major, who has the ticket, but keeps him at his teaching post in a military academy. Major Milland accepts her as the 12-year-old she pretends to be, swallowing her fantastic excuses for having to stay in his compartment, gives her his room, and the literary trade takes the upper himself. . .

It might have gone well with the precocious Gingerpat were it not for the surprise arrival at the station of Milland's jealous fiancée, Rita Johnson, and her father, the Major's superior at the academy. Major Milland takes one look at Ginger in Lieutenant Milland's compartment and storms into it rage. . .

There is nothing left for the poor Major to do but to take Ginger to the academy so he can prove to everyone she is just a harmless little minor. . .

The results are just what everyone expects—fireworks and loads of laughter. . .

Crossing Main street and walking east one finds oneself at the Kentucky theater. Here, beginning today, is the story of the heroic stand, but train rates have increased so that she lacks five dollars of having the ticket money. . .

It is thrilling, vital drama that the new picture promises an entertainment, plus the essential meaning of this war and what it entails. The subject should never be forgotten, and "Wake Island," telling as it does, the story in terms of human dramatic events will help see to it that it never shall happen again. . .

FASHIONS Stop, Look And Glisten!

"Beauty is only skin deep." We have heard that a great many times only to laugh at it. We have never given much thought to it nor realized the true value of those words. Even the most beautiful girl loses her beauty if she fails to take the proper care of herself. One cannot be neglectful of one's personal self and be attractive. By that, we mean to keep young and fresh one must have plenty of exercise, sleep, proper diet, good posture, and cleanliness.

With tire and gas rationing it looks as though we will have plenty of exercise whether we like it or not, and we will like it if the right clothing is worn. We will go in for comfort as well as beauty. Clothing will fit loosely and the heels of our shoes will be low in order that walking will be a pleasure. As we walk our posture will be good and we will walk as though we had a destination to reach and not just because it is a necessity.

Balanced Diet Required
Everyone knows that if one wishes to stay healthy, a well balanced diet is required, but how many have ever realized that it is also necessary for beauty. Therefore in our diet we will have plenty of fresh vegetables and fruit, and we will cut down on sweets and starchy foods. A point will be made to get the right amount of vitamins, proteins, calcium and minerals; thus our food will be sought for beauty's sake as well as for health and in this manner we will stay fresh looking and well nourished.

Soldiers Want To Read Kernel

The soldiers want to read The Kernel. The Kernel cannot afford to give papers to every one, or even a very big proportion of the soldiers.

We are requesting the students of the University to re-fold their Kernels after they have read them and place them in the box provided in the post office. If the student has already read a Kernel before he takes his out of the box, we would like for him to put it in the box for the soldiers rather than tossing it in the wastebasket.

Please cooperate in this matter, as it will help make the soldiers' stay here more enjoyable.

THE KERNEL

BETTY BAYNHAM

Getting up in the morning is awfully hard, nearly everyone agrees. However, it is made much simpler if we go to bed a little earlier in the evening. Not only will it be an easier task but it will also make us feel like a million and return to us that old pep and energy which we seemed to be without lately. The dark circles will disappear and we will again have color which adds much more to beauty than all the expensive artificial color we might buy.

Aids To Charm
There are ever so many things to be said about cleanliness, but as there is not time to say them all we will cover only a few of these ever so important aids to charm. Hair will be kept shiny and clean by our own hands as well as by a beauty parlor. We will brush it faithfully one hundred strokes every night, and we won't be afraid to brush that new wave for it will look even prettier. We will steer clear of heavy foundation creams so that our skin may breathe and we will keep beside our bed a jar of hand cream to rub on our hands and elbows, particularly in this wintry weather which plays such havoc with our skin, however we won't use too many creams on our complexions because we feel that we can rely more on soap and water than anything else for we know it will not fail us, nor will any of these other beauty remedies if we observe to follow them through.

Sigma Chis Give Halloween Party

'Cats Journey To Washington In Search Of Third Victory

By BAXTER MELTON
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

Outside the environs of the Southeastern Conference the Wildcats will make their fourth try for their third victory tonight in Washington, D. C., against George Washington university. The nocturnal contest, feature of GW's homecoming, will be played in Griffith stadium, home of the Washington American League baseball club.

Coach Ab Kirwan's men in blue will have one strike against them, since Phil Cutchin, star halfback and chief ground-gainer, will not see action because of a back injury received in the 'Bama game last week. Cutchin's injury is similar to the one received by Gene Meeks.

Latest word from the 'Cat mentor indicated that Meeks will return to the lineup this week. Only other doubtful starters are the first and second-string centers, Captain Charley Bill Walker and Jay Rhodemyre.

but Kentucky has met stronger opposition than the Capitol city lads. George Washington's latest start ended in a 21-0 rout at the hands of William and Mary, which can hardly be called a major football team. The other setbacks were by The Citadel, 14-0, and Furman, 6-0. Colonial wins have been scored over Western Maryland, 20-0, at the University of Richmond, 27-0.

Tonight's Kentucky foe is expected to throw a name-dance, tricky offensive at the Wildcats, if pregame hints by Johnny Baker, Colonial coach, are any indication of things to come. Baker, ex-GW star quarterback who succeeded Billy Reinhart this spring, has a "gangster" instinct, according to those who know him best, and promises a night full of surprises for the visitors.

Kentucky Is Favored
Kentucky rules as a heavy favorite in tonight's clash on the basis of a season performance. The 'Cats and Colonials have the same record of three losses and two wins.

Colorful Coach
The colorful, chunky coach has been fairly successful in his first year at the helm. Baker came to GW last year as backfield coach, took over the driver's seat when Reinhart was inducted into the Navy. Last year's Colonial eleven won only one game all season, so Baker's charges have already doubled that record.

Kentucky's last meeting with George Washington—and the only one between the two schools—resulted in a 24-0 victory for the 'Cats. The game was played here in 1940, so this trip is, the first to Washington for a 'Cat grid team.

Twelve lettermen are included on this year's GW roster—a list dominated by 25 sophomores. The Colonials use a T formation and run from that setup, or shift into a single wingback. Their style of attack is very similar to that of Xavier, except that the Colonials use an unbalanced line.

With the exception of the Virginia Tech game, Kentucky has fared well in non-conference battles this year. Washington and Iowa bowed, 53-0, and Xavier fell, 35-19; and tonight's fracas should see the Kentuckians even their win-loss ledger without too much trouble.

Kentucky Gridders Named For Honors

Four Kentucky gridders have been mentioned for All-Southeastern Conference freshman-sophomore honors. The players: Leo Yarusis, Jay Rhodemyre, Bill Griffin, and George Sengle.

Sengle, a 175 pound soph end from Louisville, and Rhodemyre, soph center from Ashland, were named to the first team. Griffin, burly tackle, and Yarusis, guard, were given honorable mention. Yarusis' recognition is especially significant, since he is a freshman.

Associated Press sports writers made the selections.

INJURED 'CAT IS LEFT BEHIND

When Kentucky's Wildcats departed via train for Washington Wednesday night, a considerable portion of the 'Cat offense was left at home nursing a back injury. The player: Phil Cutchin.

Coach Ab Kirwan offered to take Cutchin on the trip, but the Murray griddler decided to stay on the campus and avoid the long train ride. Thus, the Kentuckians will be minus the services of their chief ground-gainer and passer.

Top Ground Gainer
Cutchin has netted 262 yards in 66 tries this season to place in front of all 'Cat backs. Charlie Kuhn has picked up 243 in 48 attempts. Kuhn's average of 5.1 per effort is better than Cutchin's mark of 3.1 per try, however. Johnny Hurst, in third place with 171 yards in 31 runs, led both of them. With an average of 5.5. Best mark on the team is held by Ben Kensingler, sub back, who has munched 20

Fencers Asked To Report Monday

All students who are interested in fencing should report at 5 p.m. Monday to the locker room of the men's gymnasium, Dr. Charles M. Knapp, coach, has announced.

Returning lettermen are John Hubbard, Herbert Thompson, Bill Carroll, Seymour Pudding, and John S. Swift. Other prospects are

William Wharton, Ben Eubanks, Dee Akers, Bernard Berkowitz, and R. Thompson.

Last year's team, according to Coach Knapp, was "entirely green and failed to win a single meet, but the boys put up a good fight."

Practice sessions will be held daily after Monday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the locker room of the alumni gym.
