U. K. PROBLEMS

President Describes Housing, Academic, Citizenship, Social Plights on Campus

HAMMERS STUDENTS ON IRREGULARITIES

Colleagues Are Designated As "Refugees from Information"

The will to learn and its effect upon the development of American schools, the University's housing problems, student class room difficulties, the immorality that characterizes some colleges, the open mind policy, and the campus as a citizenship practice field, were the features of Pres. Frank L. McVey's "Between Us" convocation held Tuesday morning in Memorial hall.

Doctor McVey told the history of American universities and pointed out that since the organization of William and Mary, colleges have multiplied and developed swiftly, showing that there is a great human purpose behind education. This purpose can be brought to its acme only when there is whole-hearted cooperation between the government and the people. Doctor McVey praised the work and assistance that the Kentucky legislature has rendered the University. He also declared that the alumni and the incumbent students must feel that common purpose for the improvement and progress of their alma mater.

Next, the president elaborated the housing problem that has afflicted the institution. Through state and federal loans and grants the University is building engineering, law, and heating plants. However, there are other accommodation ailments. A larger women's dormitory, a student union building, a new campus fieldhouse, a swimming pool, an infirmary, and several others are needed. He spoke loftily of the wonderful work carried on in the Art Center despite the minimum of faculty building provides. The academic sites on the campus, the science building and the Commerce College require immediate substitution. Doctor McVey pointed out the reason for the demand for new and larger quarters is an outgrowth of the facts that the University has not been enlarged since 1931 and that the student enrollment has increased 900 since that year.

In reference to school work and grades, President McVey remarked on the appalling "mortality rate of (Continued on Page Four)

Exams! The Day of Judgement is Upon Us!

The poor and lowly slaves cry with a great gnashing of teeth "Much learning doth make one mad." But the great days of judgement must be met nevertheless.

Finally as the beginning of the great week of the month of the first month of the year, commonly called January, draws near, students don sack cloth and ashes and walk with great fear and trembling to their classrooms. Others of a more joyous nature cry out in loud voices "Let us eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die."

Capacity Audience Hears Metropolitan Opera Soprano

By GEORGE FESKOE
Glamorous Helen Jepson, Metropolitan Opera soprano and one of the most popular radio artists, sang to a capacity audience in the second of the season's community concert series at the Henry Clay auditorium Tuesday night.

Presenting a diversified repertoire, Miss Jepson enchanted her audience not only with her vocal ability but also her poignant personality as well as her proficiency as an interpreter. In addition to the diverse variety, her program selections ranged from simple lullabies to impressive arias, all of which were enthusiastically received by the audience. Her gracious and poised encores did all but appease her listeners.

HERE SHALL THE KERNEL ALL STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAIN

EXAMS, RAIN—TROUBLE TWINS

A setting quite appropriate to the endurance of the examination period tomorrow is the veritable deluge of rain which has bathed this beautiful blue grass region of ours for the past week or so.

Formal examinations, perverted outgrowth of an obsolete educational system, seemingly are not bringing the student body enough of woe.

REGISTRATION, ONE BRIGHT SPOT

As students prepare themselves for a solid week of mid-year final examinations, they have one bright spot to look forward to: The new, highly efficient and workable system of registration.

Just before the University closed for the second semester of last year, Prof. Ezra Gillis, registrar, was approached by Kernel editors, and after a short conference, a new system was agreed upon.

That the new system was workable is attested by the fact that in September, of the 3,500 students who registered, but three got in the wrong section. The others went through quietly and quickly, some in fifteen minutes, none over an hour.

Students with the rank of sophomore or above can remember that to stand in the line for five hours was no rare occurrence.

The system, of course, does depend more upon the cooperation of the student body than it does on any other single factor.

Classification, however, is another matter. Officials are not looking for any trouble in mid-year classification, but several improvements should and could be made before September.

OLD SOC

Dean House loves to talk about Socrates. The old Greek question-asker, before he tried the hemlock poison, must have been a great sort of fellow.

Nobody'll challenge, with any amount of vigor, our faith in Socrates' ability as a teacher. Out of his "school" came Messrs. Plato and Aristotle, no mean products! But Socrates, poor master, probably wouldn't have gotten very far in modern educational ranks.

With the barest few exceptions, modern educators receiving the highest professorships and the accompanying high salaries—and the institutions employing them—are judged primarily upon the published scholarly attainments of these men and not upon their teaching abilities.

Though we have all agreed that good teachers make the good educational system, that modern educational changes to tutorial bases are prompted by the belief in personal stimulation, unhampered by classroom regimentation, as the best approach to education; though we have agreed on all this, we are immediately forcing prospective "tutors" to seek the seclusion of the cloister for research and writing.

Research and publication are definitely fine and necessary things for the advancement of learning; but it is unfortunately true that few earnest scholars can get far with their research and at the same time devote themselves to stimulating association with their pupils.

CUTTIN' UP THE CAMPUS

with THEO NADELSTEIN

SPEAKING IN SUPERLATIVES:

The most crowded building on the campus is the Library, this last week... The most annoying righteous appearing individuals are the profs. ... The most gripping question is "Have you started cramming yet?"

AND DO YOU REMEMBER—

- 1. When you saw the Floradora sextet, grand-pappy?
2. When you wrote your first story for the Kernel, and nearly died of excitement?
3. When you wrote your first story for the Kernel, and it wasn't printed?
4. When the sun used to shine in Lexington almost once a week?
5. When examinations used to cause you some nervousness? You do?

THEO-RIES:

The fact that human beings often revert to the savage beast is proven at EXAM time—especially. See the wild animal glint in the eyes of our blood-thirsty profs, fellow stoogents?

UNIVERSITYTYPES:

The Campus Grind—Two weeks before final exams he retires from the world and devotes his heart and mind to his studies. He eats breakfast with his sociology text-book, lunch with his literature notes, and dinner with his mathematics. He thinks black coffee will make him smart... but all it does is keep him awake.

This Campus and That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

Into the life of every man from time to time comes stealing little feelings of uneasiness known as suppressed desires, which stir him out of lethargy, fill him with ambitions to hitch onto a star.

Often into my inner mind these spring-like ephyras blow and my mind's eye pictures me well embarked on the career suggested by these wafled notions. How I gloried as I strode through each ephemeral triumph.

But of all the men I have ever been, I have enjoyed most of all being a doctor of medicine. I have smashed my way to brilliant victory over Joe Louis, stood before the bar and argued my case to a favorable decision.

Word has it that the Military Academy committee has been in touch with the "ole" left hander" Joe Sanders and will decide in three days whether to close a deal with him to play for the recruit jig.

Triangle Pete Zaharias has announced his intentions of moving out to the Ohio house for the rest of the year as the laundry is making a habit of sending his clothes over there.

Last Thursday night Fire Chief DTD John Gilmore answered a false alarm at the Triangle house. Having received an anonymous phone call stating that the Triangle house was in flames.

Now, mind you, I am not saying for sure that he is a high school type, but it is reported that Kappa Wilma Bush is sponsoring a boy by the name of David Lewis this semester.

Now is the time for all good people—no, not to come to the aid of their country, but themselves! You feel the need of a little cheering up about now, what with finals and such starting you in the face! Make a resolution to fit yourself out with a few new clothes, beginning with a suit that you can wear under your winter coat and then wear on through the spring months. Meyer and Hinkle's is the place for you, my girl! For immediate wear, you'll find the two-piece suits will "suit" you best. Skirts are once-pleated or fashioned with a slight flare. Coats are fitted this season rather than pleted, although some few are belted and tucked. Three-quarter length coats are still in for some types, usually of stripes or small checks. For early spring, you won't be able to resist the three-piece model of light slate-blue with its soft fur collar topping a swager coat. The jacket is exquisitely fitted with tiny lapels, double-breasted, brown buttons, and striking shoulder and sleeve lines. The cut of a coat or suit is always the style peg. If you would like something more conservative, but equally smart, see the regulation Chesterfield coat, double-breasted, with its narrow velvet collar, tailored in replica of the English man's coat.

Coats are all present in six different lengths, so you see you have ample selection. Colors are coral, blue, yellow, and green. Possibly you'll prefer the beige one with wide lapels, double-breasted, brown buttons, and striking shoulder and sleeve lines. The cut of a coat or suit is always the style peg. If you would like something more conservative, but equally smart, see the regulation Chesterfield coat, double-breasted, with its narrow velvet collar, tailored in replica of the English man's coat.

Leroy Edwards, former U. K. All-American center, scored the greatest number of points ever made in a major college basketball game when he tallied thirty-four markers in thirty-four minutes of action against Creighton in 1935.

Making good nineteen foul shots in as many tries, is the record held by Bill Harlow, former University of Chicago cager. He made ten of these in one game against Wisconsin.

George Ireland, Notre Dame guard, scored in 47 consecutive games in the 1935 season, but his record was broken as he did not play in the 48th contest.

Dresses of solid color are of high shades to help out that let-down feeling before spring comes. Then there are mid-winter prints with flowers sprinkled all over your frock. Spaced prints are quite the newest—palm trees sit on your shoulder and don't appear again till they touch the hem of your skirt.
You'll have a few days of leisure between semesters, so why not improve your looks by beginning at the top—with your hair? The Southern Girl Beauty Salon will take care of each and every new idea you have on that subject. Waves are becoming fewer than ever before, with accent on curls sweeping back from your face to show neat hairline. Some coiffures are arranged into rolls of curls on either side turning up into a single roll at the back. Others flow into waves over your ears with short rolls from front to back. You can't help liking that spic-n-span look and the clever white leather and chromium furnishings of the Southern Girl salon.

Basketball draws more people than any other sport, attracting approximately 80,000,000 persons last season.

The way it looks now the scheduled bout between Jim Braddock and Max Schemling will be a financial wash-out as there are several organizations in America trying to discourage it.

New Beauty Salon Will Open Monday

The opening of a new modern beauty salon on the fourth floor of the Wolfe-Wile Company Monday, January 25, will mark another step in the remodeling and modernizing program started by this Lexington establishment in 1936.
The new salon occupies the entire front of the fourth floor of the store, located at 139 East Main street, and consists of a hair cutting and drying room, special shampoo room, consultation room, large reception room, dispensing room, and fourteen fully-equipped booths.
The Salon is done in the Modern Classic theme of African hardwood—a very light wood, with accents of walnut. Features of the new salon include modern chromium leather furniture, new four-temperature dryers, and lower, more convenient manicure tables. The new salon will be in charge of Miss Rosemary Haffner, of Indianapolis.
Other departments of the modernization program now under construction consist of a complete rug department, curtain and drapery department, and an interior designing and decoration department.—Adv.

THE Southeastern conference championship will probably be decided tomorrow night when the University of Kentucky Wildcats, in their first conference tilt of the season, clash with the University of Tennessee Volunteers...

This past week the Big Blue have been in training for this meeting and at practice Wednesday afternoon Coach Rupp stated that all the boys were in pretty good shape, the first time that they have all been in good playing condition for some time as minor injuries have handicapped them in their last several games.

In regard to a starting line-up Coach Rupp said, "Right now I think that Carlisle and Haglan will be at forwards, Walker in the pivot position, and Hodge at one guard position. The other guard place is open with either Goforth or Captain Donohue. Thompson and Opper will appear in the game soon after the start."

One big advantage the Wildcats will sport will be the knowledge that they are playing on their own floor. They always perform better at home than they do on foreign grounds as shown by the fact that both games lost this year have been away-from-home affairs.

Even with advantage of being at home the Kentuckians will be pushed to the limit in order to beat this squad from Knoxville. They are fast and rangy and have an astonishing good eye for the basket. The Vols mean to show Kentucky fans that it was not mere luck that they took us two games last year.

Tennessee, coached by Blair Gullion, won the Southeastern conference tournament last year by defeating Alabama in the finals. The greatest loss suffered by that squad was the graduation of Harry Anderson, center, but in his place is Burt Logan, six-foot sophomore, or John Fisher. Captain Floyd "Biggy" Marshall, all-Southeastern forward, is the spark plug of the outfit. The other forward is Wilton Putnam who has a very effective overhead jump-shot. The Blue Jays caught the Wildcats who is playing his senior year, and Masterson. Some other men on the squad are Rice, Logan, Krisle, Duncan, Williams, Riggs, and Towsery.

The Vols play somewhat like the Cats in that they are fair the first half, but put on a championship caliber of ball and outclass their opponents in the second period. Thus far this season these two teams have met one common foe in Creighton. The Blue Jays caught the Wildcats when the Big Blue were hitting them from all parts of the court and as a consequence took a 59-36 beating. The following night the Jays travelled down to Knoxville and got trounced 34-28. By the score of these tilts Kentucky should have little trouble with Tennessee, but other scores mean little when these two old rivals get together.

In recent games the Vols have defeated Emory and Henry 35-27 and Chattanooga 35-15 in addition to the Creighton victory. Last Saturday night Alabama fell before them in two over time periods in a 36-31 tilt and Tuesday night Sewanee was swamped 47-13.

The Vols offense is good but their defense is better. They held Chattanooga and Sewanee each to three field goals throughout the entire combat. But it will be a bad night for Kentucky if Marshall and Putnam are in form and have their eyes on the basket. Kentucky's defense has been hot and cold—some nights it is very good and other nights it is just fair. If the defense does not show its best you can mark it up as a victory for the Volunteers. Averaging about a point a minute the Big Blue offense leaves little to be desired.

However, with all this talk about Tennessee, this corner still thinks that the Wildcats will come out on top in a close game. The reasons for his opinion is that they are playing at home, the players are in good condition, and they have met better opponents than the Vols.

Doctor McVey Talks On Student Problems

(Continued from Page One) students, mostly freshmen, reared in rusticity and unequipped with the fundamentals of learning especially in English, "the key to a college education." He reflected on the student shortcoming of not being able to read and to analyze one page of writing.

Continuing his talk, Doctor McVey outlined the examples of bad citizenship prevalent on the campus. Match scratched walls, cigarette scars seared into the floors, obscene comments in the rest rooms, wasting time, gambling, viewing the hard liquor dilemma with "a gloating eye, and Lothario pursuits are citations of current campus citizenship that train the collegians for becoming anything but exemplary citizens. He related the story of an old country doctor who believed that there was one incurable disease, that of being a "dumb fool." Doctor McVey expressed his fear that a few of the University's people were afflicted with this mental infirmity. The president advised "that it is the business of every student to be aware of things going on about him." He closed by wishing the students success in their examinations "on your own power."

Student Opinion

Editor, The Kernel: On reading the paragraph in "Kampus Kernels" that asks all men and women interested in piny-pong, badminton, and "duck tennis" to report to the Women's Gym on Tuesday or Thursday...

What is this "duck tennis"? Is it played with ducks, or by ducks? Do you maybe substitute the duck for the ball, or the racket? Perhaps the object of the game is to duck and avoid hitting the ball, or duck and try to keep the ball from hitting you. This solution appears to me to be the more plausible one. If this is the case, probably player "A" serves, attempting to hit player "B" with the ball. The server probably shouts "duck!" instead of "ready," and the receiver answers "quack!" And when "A" finally succeeds in hitting "B," "B" serves and so on. Still another solution occurs to me. Perhaps the game is played with the players surrounded by a whole herd (or pack, or whatever ducks travel in) of ducks, and the object is to keep from stepping on the ducks. Or to see how many ducks you can step on. Or, there are numerous possibilities. I suppose that the only way for me to find out is to report to the women's gym with the rest of the "interested" men and women. I am certainly interested. I am completely puzzled. I would be obliged if anyone who knows anything about "duck tennis" would get in touch with me, for I hate to present myself at the appointed time in complete ignorance of the game. —BEE.

For Digestion's Sake—Smoke Camels

Digestion often needs Camel's aid too! OFTEN during a hard, tiring day, smokers pause to get a "lift" in energy with a Camel. And at mealtimes, Camels offer a helping hand to good digestion. They help you to enjoy your food more. And Camels increase the flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—so vital to a sense of well-being. Make every meal more zestful—more pleasant—by smoking Camels. With their matchless mildness, Camels are better for steady smoking.

CLAD IN ASBESTOS SUIT (right), "Pat" Patton tackles a blazing oil-well—quickly gets the inferno under control. "Even after that I can tuck away a hearty meal—provided I have plenty of Camels handy," says "Pat," enjoying a hasty bite (above). "Smoking Camels helps keep my digestion in proper trim. I smoke mighty often. And Camels don't get on my nerves!"

ALL-AMERICAN HOCKEY STAR, Phil La Bette (below), says: "Good digestion and healthy nerves are 'musts' in this game. I smoke Camels—for digestion's sake—and because Camels never get on my nerves."

The Beautiful Gold Ballroom of the Hotel Lafayette is available for Fraternity formal, Founder's Day banquets or organization dinners. The Red Room and Colonial Room are delightful for sorority "rush" parties and luncheons. Personal supervision given all parties.

COSTLIER TOBACCOES! Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.
