ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

Hunter Adams twice honored:

Hunter Adams, who will be honored by the Libraries at Friday's reception (see below), recently was honored by the University in two singular ways. First, the President approved the faculty's motion to give her name to the Architecture Library she headed until this year. Second, Mrs. Adams was awarded the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Medallion at last Saturday's commencement exercises. The Sullivan Medallion has been awarded since 1927 to the outstanding male and female of the graduating class and to an outstanding citizen of the Commonwealth. The award is sponsored by the New York Southern Society in honor of its first president and is presented annually at 15 leading colleges and universities in the South. Previous recipients at UK have included Genevieve Murray, Alberta Coleman, Smith Broadbent, Betty Kirwin, Sarah B. Holmes and others noted for their civic-mindedness.

Reception Slated for MIK Retirees:

THE MARGARET I. KING LIBRARY STAFF ORGANIZATION cordially invites you to a reception in honor of retiring members:

Hunter Adams	Kate T. Irvine
Jacqueline Bull	Lucille Keating
Carolyn Hammer	Mary Ada Sullivan

3 to 5 P.M., Friday, May 21, 1976

King Library North, Department of Special Collections

The following remarks only outline briefly the years of service to the University of Kentucky Libraries by the six retirees. Contrary to what was reported in an article in the Kentucky Kernel (April 30, 1976), a total of more than 150 years of service is represented. The officers of the Library Staff Organization hope that you will join us and other university personnel and friends in honoring the six retirees.

Before becoming Architecture Librarian in 1965, Hunter Adams served in both the Acquisitions Department of MIK and as Pharmacy Librarian. While Architecture Librarian, Ms. Adams became a member of the Special Libraries Association of KLA and served as resource utilization liaison to both the architecture and photography faculties. Involved in many activities associated with her work and the community, Ms. Adams served on a committee to assist with a meeting of architectural historians in 1976 and a committee to arrange a National Trust for Preservation meeting in Lexington in 1976, as well as being a member of the Northside Neighborhood Association Planning and Zoning Committee.

Two very special honors were recently awarded to Ms. Adams. The first was the naming of the Architecture Library in Pence Hall which will now be known as the Hunter M. Adams College of Architecture Library. A second honor was just awarded at commencement exercises held May 8. Hunter Adams received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Medallion for recognition of her service to the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Jacqueline Bull has served the University of Kentucky Libraries as Secretary to the Librarian, Assistant Reference Librarian, Archivist, and, from 1955 to the present, as Head of the Special Collections Department. Prior to receiving her doctoral degree in history from the University of Kentucky in 1948, Dr. Bull received a Rockefeller Foundation Grant in the Social Sciences. Among her publications are included an article entitled "Writing on Kentucky History," which appeared in the Kentucky Historical Society Register, volumes 56-57, and in successive issues of the Margaret I. King Library Bulletin. Dr. Bull has co-edited two books; Bluegrass Craftsmen, published in 1959 by the University of Kentucky Press, and Travels in the Old South, published in 1973 by the University of Kentucky Press. She was principal contributor to Winston Coleman's Kentucky, A Pictorial History, 1971.

Dr. Bull is a member of KLA, the Manuscript Society, the Society of American Archivists, and the Phi Alpha Theta History Honorary. Contributing to both the fields of History and Librarianship, she has also taught a course in Special Collections in the University of Kentucky's Graduate School of Library Science.

Carolyn Hammer, a native of Kentucky, has received national distinction in the field of typography, as well as contributing to Librarianship. Before coming to serve as Head of Acquisitions at M.I. King Library, Ms. Hammer was a cataloger and special researcher at the Library of Congress, was Librarian and teacher at the Stewart Robinson School in eastern Kentucky, and was Reference Librarian at the Kentucky State Library Extension Division. Ms. Hammer became M.I. King Library's first bibliographer in 1966 and has held the title of Curator of Rare Books from 1968 until the present.

Ms. Hammer was awarded the National Endowment for the Arts Award for her work in typography. She is the author of articles, reviews, and two books, one entitled Notes on the Two-Color Initials of Victor Hammer, and one entitled Ravens Creek which was illustrated by Harriett Holladay. She has also designed, printed and edited fifteen books. The work of Ms. Hammer's late husband and internationally known printer, Victor Hammer, was exhibited at the Grolier Club in New York City in March, 1975, along with the work of Ms. Hammer and of their students. Just this past week, Ms. Hammer presented a paper entitled "The Private Press" at the Symposium on the Book Arts at the University of Alabama.

A lasting contribution to the University of Kentucky has been the private press which Ms. Hammer began in 1956 with two fellow librarians, Mary Voorhees and Nancy Chambers. It was originally named High Noon Press (because activity was at first limited to lunch hours!) and later evolved into the King Library Press. Ms. Hammer has also taught courses in Development of Book Collection, History of Books and Printing, and Workshop in Printing and Bookmaking in the University of Kentucky's Graduate School of Library Science.

Kate T. Irvine, also a native of Kentucky, was an instructor in French and English at Georgetown College, Assistant Professor in French and English at Campbellsville College, and Librarian at Picadome and Lafayette High Schools before coming to the M.I. King Library. Serving first as Assistant Reference Librarian, then as Head of Circulation, Ms. Irvine became Head of Reference in 1964.

Ms. Irvine has served on numerous library committees and has been an active member of KLA, the Southeastern Library Association, ALA, AAUP, AAUW, and is a member of Beta Phi Mu, National Library Science Honorary Fraternity. In 1971, Kate Irvine was voted Outstanding Academic Librarian of the Year by the College and Research Section of KLA.

Lucille Keating began her work in the University of Kentucky Libraries in the Acquisitions Department, M.I. King Library, but served as Serials Librarian in the Law Library for the majority of her years at U.K. Ms. Keating was Librarian at Chapman College, University of the Seven Seas Cruise in 1967 and was a cataloger at Calgary, Alberta, Library Service Center in 1969 and 1970, then returned as Serials Librarian, Law Library, from 1970 until this year.

Ms. Keating, a member of ALA and KSA, served as Treasurer of the Ohio Regional Association of Law Libraries until her retirement.

Mary Ada Sullivan, another native of Kentucky, was first distinguished at the University of Kentucky by receiving the Chi Omega Award as Outstanding Woman Student in Economics as an undergraduate in the School of Commerce. She is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, Commerce Honorary.

Ms. Sullivan has served in a variety of positions at the University of Kentucky Libraries, including Secretary to the Librarian, Assistant in the Order Department, Archives and the Henry Clay Project, in Special Collections and the Law Library. From 1967 to the present time, Ms. Sullivan has been Head of the Newspaper/Microtext Department.

Librarians elected to University Senate

Ellen Baxter, Sandy Gilchrist and Ed O'Hara have been elected to represent the Libraries in the University Senate, according to letters received recently from Elbert Ockerman, Senate secretary. Their terms expire 31 August 1979.

Travellers:

Larry Greenwood and Toni Powell are in Ann Arbor for the 6th Annual Conference on Library Orientation for Academic Libraries 13-14 May.

Hungarian librarian to visit:

Dr. Katalin Balazs, Deputy Director of the Hungarian Parliamentary Library at Budapest, is scheduled to visit the UK libraries on Tuesday 18 May. Dr. Balazs is on a month-long tour of American public and university libraries from coast to coast. Her tour is sponsored by the Institute of International Education in Washington, DC, and her host while in Lexington will be Susan Csaky.
