PROTEST ATHLETIC TAX

Washington, D. C.—The ten per cent admission tax on college athletic events was protested here Friday by representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic association. They claim that the tax is driving away spectators and crippling self-sustaining college sports.

Conducting the fight are Frank McCormick, director of athletics of the University of Minnesota; D. H. Harrison, University of Pittsburgh athletic director; and C. P. Miles, athletic director at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. They state that the athletic associations at Notre Dame, Southern California, Army and Navy are the only ones in the nation now making money.

The 10 per cent tax was collected first in 1930 and brought in $900,000 instead of the anticipated $3,000,000, the N.C.A.A. men claim. The Government will take in only $132,000 this year.

A silver vase was presented by the student body to Pres. Robert G. Sprout of the University of California upon the completion of his fourth year as head of the University.

DESIRE IN SPRING
I love the cradle songs the mothers sing in lonely places when the twilight drops. The slow rocking melodies that bring sleep to the weary lids; and, when she stops,
I love the roadside birds upon the tops of dusty hedges in a world of Spring.
And when the sunny rain drips from the eaves Of misty way, and meadows lean one way,
And long whisp'ers pass thro' the hedge, Beside the broken water let me stay,
While these old airs upon my memory play, And silent changes color up the hedge.
—FRANCIS LEDWIDGE.

generates into license, there are always appropriate remedies at hand. The third point on which I should like to express myself, is the tendency among some of our college newspapers and humorous publications to ape some of the features of current journalism. The best advice that anyone can give the college journalist is: "Be yourself, and let Mencken, Winchell, and others be themselves. By all odds the worst threat to the good repute of college journalism, it seems to me, is offered by so-called "razz sheets" and some of the so-called "comics." The former, partly because of Pi Delta Epsilon's strong stand against them, are "on the way out." However, one of our state universities was reported only last month to be dealing with an affair of this sort, in which the cowardly, anonymous authors of such a sheet were reported to have made charges of immorality against a number of prominent girl students. Criminal libel suits against the perpetrators were being prepared, according to news reports. I hope they are successful.

Some of our "comics" are really humorous. Their jokes are original, their satire clever. Others, unfortunately, are devoted largely to cheap and vulgar substitutes for humor. They seem to be run in the interests of the kind of boys who spend their early years in writing dirty words and phrases on fences and sidewalks—and other places—and who find in these so-called humorous magazines an opportunity for further exhibitionistic activities of the same sort before a wider audience and sometimes in more subtle ways. Though nasty-minded little boys may grow up physically, some of them still remain nasty-minded little boys. Some of them, no doubt, are psychopathic. There is no excuse for a college publication giving these fellows an opportunity for the display of their particular form of degeneracy under the guise of "college humor."

The idea that such "humor" is in any sense representative of American college men and women is unqualifiedly false. Most college students deplore it, and it still subsists in a few places only because student bodies are reluctant to deal with it effectively because they do not wish to be accused of prudishness or poor sportsmanship.

College journalism in general, however, is sound and wholesome. Student papers are interesting, accurate, and managed with a sense of responsibility to their respective communities. To my mind, college papers, magazines and year-books offer an unexcelled opportunity for varied, instructive, and often profitable extra-curricular activities. They should be supported and encouraged by students, faculty, and alumni alike.

"It's toasted"
Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat

These are the Center Leaves—the Mildest Leaves—the heart of Lucky Strike

As you can see from this picture—Luckies' fine, smooth quality doesn't just happen—for we use only the center leaves! Not the top leaves because those are under-developed—not ripe. Not the bottom leaves because those are inferior in quality—they grow close to the ground and are dirt-covered, coarse, sandy. We select only the center leaves—for which farmers are paid higher prices—for the center leaves are the mildest leaves—they taste better—then—"It's toasted"—for throat protection. And every Lucky is fully packed with these choice tobaccos—made round and firm—free from loose ends—that's why Luckies do not dry out. Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat.

NOT the top leaves—they're under-developed—they are harsh!

Only the Center Leaves—these are the Mildest Leaves

They taste better

NOT the bottom leaves—they're inferior in quality—coarse and sandy!

What Other States Do To Save Their School Systems

With Kentucky's school system facing collapse under a decision of the General Assembly comes to the rescue, it is interesting to note what other states are doing to save their schools.

New Jersey has lent $7,000,000 to its municipalities for school purposes, including payment of delinquent salaries.

The Pennsylvania legislature appropriated $5,000,000 from the liquor fund for distressed school districts.

Indiana pays $200 of each teacher's annual salary under a recent law, getting it from a gross income tax.

North Dakota created an equalization fund from which schools unable to raise minimum operating costs may receive aid.

California schools expect to realize nearly $40,000,000 from a two and one-half per cent general sales tax intended to relieve real estate tax burdens.

Missouri's sales tax was designed to raise $3,000,000 annually for schools.

Montana acted in behalf of its smaller school districts, opening new avenues of income and legalizing new ways to pay their debts.

West Virginia with approximately 200,000 fewer children of school age than Kentucky has recently enacted a revenue measure which will provide $10,000,000 for schools.

In order to put our schools on a sound basis for the coming year the General Assembly should provide a per capita appropriation of $12. Because of the decline in revenue from local taxation, a larger proportion of money from the state is needed for operation of the schools. The amount of money available for the common schools during the present year is $10,000,000 less than was spent in 1930-31. Even with a $12 per capita the total amount available for the common schools would be about $5,500,000 less than it was in 1930-31, during which year Kentucky stood fortieth among the states in educational ranking, forty-first in average teachers salary and forty-seventh in value of school property.

Tremendously Tall Tales Told Trying To Tell The Truth

By JAY LUCIAN

Those of you who have been following Will Rogers' custom of reading the newspapers are acquainted with the publicity that the various Tall Tales clubs received recently when the winners were announced. The great height to which some people's imagination can ascend is always mildly interesting to those looking for the bizarre.

The winner of them all said he had a grandfather's clock at home that was so old that the shadow of the pendulum swinging back and forth had worn a hole through the face of the clock. Another contributor who was well up with the finalists said that he was shingling his house one day and a fog came up so thick that he had to shingle by the sense of touch. Finally, after the fog cleared, he found that he had shingled out into the fog 12 feet from the roof's edge.

A disciple of Isaac Walton wrote in that he was fishing one day when a fog came up so thick that he couldn't see. Feeling something whirring by his ear he struck out with an oar and knocked down a 40-pound cat fish that was swimming in the fog.

That last fog story reminds one of various Kentucky imaginations. A gentleman was fishing out on Herington lake one day when a fog came up (also so thick that he couldn't see). He kept rowing and trolling and finally stopped for a while to catch quite a few. When the fog cleared he found himself some feet up the bank of the lake, still catching fish that had swum there in the fog.

Another son of the soil proudly stated that he had shot a snake in his county that one day during spring planting he was unwittingly caught up in the back of a tractor and whirled up to dangerous heights. The stalk grew faster than he could climb down or the men could stop so they had to shoot him dog biscuit to keep him alive until they could kill the stalk by cutting through the root.

A story that reminds one of "Casey at the Bat" has to do with a stone-throwing contest. Two of the entrants threw completely into the next county but the winner was determined some time later when a rock was found in Australia bearing on it the imprints of his fingers.

One of the University instructors told one last year that could be used as a fitting climax. It seems that an Alaskan trapper fell over a precipice an don't the way down his head struck a sharp rock which completely scalped him. The trapper was otherwise unhurt but felt very uncomfortable without any hair so his friends killed a rabbit and grafted its brown fur to the head of the trapper. The operation was successful and the trapper was satisfied with his short crop of brown hair. However, a curious thing about it was that the rabbit they used was a typical northern hare and each winter, according to the trapper's former custom, the trapper's hair turns a pure white and only assumes its brown color again when summer comes.

Strollers' Revue Rehearsals Begun

Rehearsals for the Stroller spring production, "Hit the Deck," which will be presented May 1 and 5, are now in progress. Frank Fowler, of the Gignol theater, is directing the production.

Music for the revue will be furnished by a 20-piece orchestra under the direction of Elmer G. Sulzer.

The girls' chorus is being directed by Marjorie Powell and Frederick de Wilde.

New appointments to the production staff are Lorine Faulkner as property manager, and Mary Temple Faulkner, costumes.

Lingerie makers have awoken to the fact that sometimes one wants a half-skirt but that one objects to fullness at the waist. Then there is the Half-Way brassiere made by Maiden Form, which comes in day and in evening styles. Vanity Fair has made lightweight Play-abouts, summer girdles which fit quite smoothly.

DOWNTOWN: Narrow sport belts of woven cord at Mitchell, Baker & Smith have a plaited through which goes through a round buckle and double back to fasten on a button. They come in solid colors or in a combination which goes with everything. Wechter has a "perpetual" calendar of oxidized brass (that means it is non-tarnishable). A movable disc changes the names of
