Greeks learn to give talks about alcohol

chins make concater decisions con-cerning alcohol.

The groups hope to identify members who will talk to others in the greek community, as well as to campus organizations and area high schools, about refraining from be-havior that may lead to dangerous situations.

They attended a seminar Satur-day in which they were told to stress responsible behavior and making the right choices as the key to avoid senseless accidents.

At the heart of the seminar was a video detailing a drinking and driv-ing accident happened in 1988, killing one UK student and critical-ly injuring another.

Brad Shipunga section to drive

Brad Shipman's decision to drive drunk resulted in the death of pas-senger Lisa Whalen and gave back-seat rider Michael Swerczek severe head injuries.

Shipman and Whalen belonged to Pi Kappa Alpha and Delta Gam-

Julie Nichols, a biology and po-litical science sophomore, and Greg Streif, an undeclared sophomore, were student coordinators for the seminar.

They quickly stated that the purpose of the screening was not to point fingers or to show blame but to prove the disastrous results of making bad choices.

"We want to show that this happened because they all made wrong decisions, not just Brad," Nichols said.

Though he's not sure when the groups will be ready to give presentations. Streft said he hopes those who hear the presentation will become more aware of the consequences of driving drunk and will realize they are responsible for their actions.

Remake case hits high court

A dispute over the rap remake has reached the U.S. Supreme Court and turned into a test of copy-

Dolly Parton, Michael Jackson, comedian Mark Russell and the publishers of Mad Magazine are among those who have filed briefs with the court on both sides of the case, which will be argued Nov. 9.

"There's plenty of money involved," said lawyer Stephen Kaye, who represents the estates of songwriters Irving Berlin, George Gershwin, Cole Porter and others battling 2 Live Crew. The fight begain in 1989, when the raunchy rappers asked Acuff-Rose Music Inc.,

Speaker: Churches wrong about AIDS

Joe Hallett has struggled with AIDS for nearly seven years, and at the same time has been involved in a ministry for God. However, he said the church does not readily welcome him or his disease into the fold.

"The church has been really wrong in its dealings with AIDS," he said.
Hallett criticized the church for its dealings not only with AIDS but also homosexuality and the issue of sex altogether.

"Most people can't deal with the H-word, let alone the A-word," he said.
Hallett gave a lecture titled "Singing the Mighty Power of God in the Midst of AIDS" at the Catholic Newman Center Friday night. In the church's dealings with homosexuality, Hallett said, attempts have been wrong, even though they have come from different ends of the spectrum.

He said that many churches have made it "the worst sin, and it's not." He also said other churches are trying to be too understanding, not ealing it a sin at all. "It's terrible, both of them are sins," Hallett said.

He became involved in the homosexual community at 18 and continued in the lifestyle for the next seven and a half years. During that time, Hallett joined the Army and the decided to leave the homosexual tifestyle for However, on March 26, 1986, doctors asked him to come in because he had an abnormal blood test. They told him he was HIV-positive and they would have to run more tests.

The tests showed that he had full-blown AIDS, and the doc-tors only gave him two months to live.

or wins award for nutrition study

Bernhard Hennig, associate professor of nutrition and food science, has become the first UK professor to receive the Clintec Award for Excellence in the Science of Nutrition.

The national award recognizes Hennig's research and publications that dealt with nutrition in the prevention and treatment of disease.

Hennig was honored at the 34th annual meeting of the American College of Nutrition in Chicago earlier this month. Hennig was the co-chairman of a symposium and an invited speaker at the meeting.

Hennig, who joined UK faculty in 1987, is a fellow in the American College of Nutrition. He also holds an appointment in the UK Graduate Center for Toxicology, is a member of the graduate faculty of nutritional sciences and is an associate of the Center of Membrane Sciences.

Hennig's primary research interest involves the use of tissue culture model systems in the study of nutrition and a process of cardiovascular disease development.

The United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission provides funds for students interested in pursuing a career in nuclear power regulation.

Administered by the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, the NRC Fellowship Program provides funds for students who want to get master's degrees in areas such as health physics, nuclear engineering and specialty engineering disciplines with emphasis in instrumentation and courto systems, materials science, materials engineering, metallurgy and artificial intelligence and expert systems for use in human factors.

Fellows must work at the NRC for a minimum of nine months prior to beginning graduate school. The fellowship program provides full payment of futition, fees and books, as well as monthly stipends of $1,800 and a $5,000 year cost of education allowance paid to the academic program in which the fellow is enrolled.

Eligible students must be U.S. citizens, have received a bachelor's degree by May/lune 1994 and have completed the Graduate Records Examination.

At the time of application, applicants may not have completed more than one year of graduate education in a discipline that the fellowship program supports.

Selection is based on academic performance, academic and professional references, a statement of career goals, and as appropriate, interviews with the applicants.

The deadline for fellowship applications is Jan. 21. Awards will be announced in April.

The Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education was established by the U.S. Department of Energy to undertake national and international programs in science and engineering education, training and management systems, energy and environment systems, and medical sciences.

Research subjects to be topic of discussion

A workshop on the protection of human subjects in research will be held Nov. 18 at Patterson Office

Tower.

Scheduled to begin at 3 p.m., the two-hour workshop is designed to provide faculty, staff and student investigators with basic information on Nonmedical Institutional Review Board regulations and review processes. Sponsored by the Research Subjects Office, the workshop will be conducted for individuals whose research is reviewed by the Nonmedical IRB.

The primary goal will be to make the IRB review process an easier one for investigators and their staffs. Topics of discussion will include "Why IRB Review is Necessary," "Overview of Applicable Federal Regulations" and "UK Review Process," which will include a segment dealing with common errors. To register, call Lucinda Davis in the Research Subjects Office at 257-3138 or Norman Van Tubergen, chairman of the Nonmedical IRB.

No tears for dry Wildcat offense

Player hostilities after game a positive sign, Curry says

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - UK's 20oss to Vanderbilt last year could be been termed Big Blue Sad-s. Fans booed and players hung r heads. Pookie Jones even

But after Saturday's 12-7 debacle, there was more seething than sorrow in the locker room.

"There was a lot of hostility afterwards," linebacker Marty Moore said.

The anger arose because the Cats were so sure they would beat the Commodores (3-5), who hadn't won a game in the Southeastern Conference all year, so sure that they would snap their two-game losing streak to Vandy and wrap up a Peach Bowl invitation to boot. Maybe too sure. "Too much had been said all week about bowl games," Moore said. "We were looking forward to what was going to happen, making our plans for Christmas. I kind of saw it coming."

"If we don't start playing better, we'll be sitting on our asses at home on the toilet bowl," he said.
One thing that will not stop them though, the players said, is the sting from Yandy loss.
"It hurts, but we can't let this get us down," Jones said. "There are not going to be any tears coming from my eyes this year."

Steve Berry and Donte Key both went down Saturday, after Darryl Conn and David Snardon were injured against Georgia on Oct 23. Matt Neuss, who would have been used to back up in emergency, also went down against Georgia. "It's certe," Curry said. "I've never seen anything like it in my career."

Key sprained his ankle and is doubtful for Saturday's game. Berry bruised his knee and may play. Snardon, who sprained a knee ligament, also might return. Conn and Neuss are out for the year.

If none are ready to go on Satur-day, Curry said he'll move someone from the secondary to linebacker, probably 6-foot-2, 205 pound cornerback Steven Hall.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Before Saturday's 12-7 loss Vanderbilt, the UK football team had surpassed ost expectations for the season. Bowl talk was

Some excuses for the loss could be made, but players and coaches would take no part in placing blame. One part of UK's performance that left something to be desired was the kicking game. Juha Leonoff

Volleyball Cats finding apex near season's base

Belanger, Robinson, Dreisbach star during easy wins over Georgia, USC

The goal of any coach is to have his or her team peak heading into ostseason play.

UK head volleyball coach Fran Ralston-Flory appears to have her 12th-ranked Wildcats peaking just

The Cats soundly defeated both 16th-ranked Georgia 15-10, 15-5, 15-13 and South Carolina 15-4, 15-10, 15-5 this weekend at Memorial

"We finally came out and blocked well and played a solid match throughout," Ralston-Flory said af-ter the victory over Georgia. The Wildcats (25-2, 9-2 in the SEC) stepped onto the court Friday night determined to stop Georgia's powerful outside hitting combina-tion of Priscilla Pacheco and Nikki Nikolaros.

Both had found the holes in UK's blocking defense in Georgia's upset victory two weeks ago, combining for 62 kills.

But, instead of finding those same holes, Pacheco and Nicholson found a stone wall that held the Bulldogs' stars to just 13 kills and nine kills respectively.

Ralston-Flory decided against changing the defensive scheme she than the Bulldogs in their first meeting, feeling that if the Wildcats had executed in the first match, they would have kept the Bulldog duo in check.

Bullog duo in check.

It turned out to be the right move, allowing the team to hold the nation's leader in kills, Pacheco, to a hitting percentage of .051 and Nicholson to a .000 percentage.

"I said before the match that if we play our system that we would win. Georgia played into it again. This time we executed; the first time, and they played into it again. This time we executed; the first time we didn't," Ralston-Flory said.

Georgia (21-2, 8-2) opened to take the lead early in game one 8-1.

Pacheco started off hot in scoring three of Georgia first five points on hard kills.

Ralston-Flory called timeout to settle down the Wildcats. The Wildcats went on a 10-0 run after the timeout and came back to win the first game 15-10.

Senior setter Jane Belanger, playing perhaps her best all-around match of the year, contributed not only with her usual good passes, but with timely blocks and tips, and strong serves.

Curry said overconfidence wasn't a factor.

"It's been too evident that they whooped us to be overconfident," he said.

Moore wasn't happy with some of the things Vanderbilt players said and did during the game. After the game, Commodore players began chanting "Same old Kentucky" as they were leaving the field.

"There were a lot of things that happened out there that was bull," Moore said. "(Split end Kenny Simon) took a cheap shot at somebody who didn't have a helmet on. That's bulls...."

UK junior Krista Robinson, who finished with 10 kills, and Driesbach, who added 12 kills for the match, took control of the outside to bring the Wildcats even at 13-13.

UK sealed the third game and the natch win with a pair of blocks by Robinson on UGA's Cook.

Focus on football, not hoops

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — It's the last thought you wanted floating in your head. But you couldn't fight, it, could you?

You had beaten it so successfully for nine weeks. You thought you had it licked. But there it was, arising out of the ashes, burning your brain.

No, please, don't say it. Shouldn't say it. Wouldn't be right.

Just wait 'til basketball.

Damn. Well, there it is, out in the open. We might as well deal

How could you not think it, really? There you were Saturday, bundled up in the stands, but still not warm enough to counter the snowy climate. You couldn't feel your hands to clap.

Not that you would've clapped. Vanderbilt out-uglied to the your would've clapped. Vanderbilt out-uglied that. Especially when Mitch Williams pitched.

The only thing colder than your ears was both team's offensive attacks (a loose interpretation of the word attack, that is). You saw a Vanderbilt offense that scored three points and won. A UK offense that crossed midfield six times and scored once. You watched Juha Leonoff miss two field goals, one a 38-yarder that barely reached the end zone. Deep in your heart, you knew Travis Ford wouldn't miss such easy three pointers.

yauter that outery reached une ned zone. Deep in your heart, you knew Travis Ford wouldn't miss such easy three pointers. Just wait 'til basketball. Can you blame yourself? Yes. Sure, UK will be ranked in the top five in basketball. Sure, the hoop Cats will pound many of the Southeastern Conference teams that beat them in football. And sure, a great game by Billy McCaffrey not withstanding, the roundballers will beat Vanderbill, at least once. But it's still football season. Saturday's game did nothing to prove it, but the team is actually worth following in November this season. After next week, UK will be 64. (You don't really think East Carolina can hang, do you?). Then comes Tennessee for the final game of the season. Hey, they should be easy to beat. Allan Houston graduated, didn't he?

Stop it. The Volunteers are a David Palmer run and a few Danny Wuerrfel passes away wille? Ouch!) But a packed, runcous Commonwealth Stadium will make it at least a little tough for Heath Shuler and Co. Even if they do lose, a 6-5 Cats team has a good shot at go-bouline Maybe it won't he

Even if they do lose, a 6-5-Cats team has a good shot at going bowling. Maybe it won't be the Peach Bowl. Maybe it won't be the CarQuest Bowl. It might be something crappy, like the Mr. Goodwrench/Schitz Matt Liquor Bowl in Snellville, Ga. (tape delay on ESPN2).

At least it would be a bowl. And that's something to get excited about. Because it shows that Ball Curry is building a program, if only one brick at a time. What he needs is support. Even Rick Pitino, never one to by away from any type of expositions.

Even Rick Pittino, never one to shy away from any type of exposure, almost cancelled his media day press conference because he didn't want to take attention away from Curry. Course, Pittino still had the press conference will he did urge the media there to keep the focus on football. Heck, even basketball season can get old. DIVERSIONS Two nights of 'kick-butt country'

Clumsy Garth saddles up hoarse, gives crowds 'old and new stuff

By Lance Williams News Editor

Just call it kick-butt country.
Saturday night, the fans in Rupp Arena were treated to a high-energy show that was well worth the price of admission.
Garth Brooks was in town for the first time in two years, and the fans welcomed him back with open arms. One looking for evidence of the fan's support needed only look

On Friday, fans began arriving at

Thousands of cowboy hat-wearing Garth fans invaded Lexing-ton with the hopes of seeing one of his action-packed concerts.

Although Brooks' voice was not cably hoarse during the second concert, his onstage antics more than made up made up for any vo-cal shortcomings.

Brooks had a good combination of what he cailed "old stuff" and "new stuff," although he has only been recording for about five years.

He opened with "Standing Out-

The icons were used by Orthodox worshippers as sacred objects through which a believer could pray directly to the holy person represented.

Stephen Humble, a 1970 UK graduate, gave a brief lecture about the history and creative technique behind Orthodox religious icons.

Possibly the best song of the night was Brooks' version of Elton John's "Candle in the Wind." With only a piano to accompany him, Brooks delivered a powerful song that displayed another part of his repertoire.

that displayed another part of his repertoire.

For much of the nearly two-hour of the concert, it was a 24,000-plus voice sing-along as many in attendance knew the words and sang along with Brooks during almost every selection.

Brooks was up to his old tricks during the concert, as he kept on the move much of the time — although not always gracefully.

At one point, Brooks was running down the stage when he began to slip and stumble toward the front of the stage. Running into a band member's back was the only thing that saved him from ending up somewhere in the first three rows of fans.

"By observing icons, we leave behind the world we see and hear and enter a world supernatural reality."

Humble described the process by which the icons were made. Painters of the icons were pious men and women who spent days fasting and praying before beginning their work. Materials, paints, brushes and other tools were sanctified formally by relieious leaders.

blessedness.

Humble also discussed the use of inverse perspective by the icon artists. In inverse perspective, lines do not meet at a vanishing point behind the subject, but rather in front— an exact opposite of the Renaissance use of perspective.

Light was also rendered differ-ently than Western artists, by hav-ing the light radiating from behind the subject, giving an illuminated halo or aura effect to the holy sub-importance.

Humble gave a brief description of the symbolism of each icon in the show, and of the stories they represent. Biblical stories such as the birth and resurrection of Christ were popular subjects, but other favorite legends such as Saint George and the Dragon and Saint Nicholas were also made into beautiful pictorial allegories.

It's that time of year, when the colored leaves of fall begin their annual descent onto a barren ground (only to swept up in the chilling gust of the Physical Plant Division's leaf blowers, mind you), and winter begins its fast approach, zapping any motivation and twisting the surrounding elements into a world of grey and frost. It's that time of year when the only saviour in such a bleak environment is a beacon of warm, vibrant light that could only be emitted from that magnificent embodiment known as heaven.

given the instrumental rock album renewed life with his privately funded Joe Satriani EP in 1984, but brought back the grooveoriented rock fathered by Jimi Hendrix and Jeff Bock, and nearly destroyed by shred-heads such as Yngwie Malmsteen and Tony MacAlpine.

With the repeated spinning of such amazing albums as Not Of This Earth, Surfing With The Allen and Flying In A Blue Dream, Satriani paved the way for such guitarists as Steve Vai, Kirk Hammett and, recently, Gary Hoey.

gathered from Satriani's 1992 and

The first three tracks off the studio CD represent what Satriani has been working on lately. Recorded by the "classic Satch trio" of Stuart Hamm on bass and Jonatham Mover on drums, these songs reflect the sound Satriani is famous for — a loose framework welded around friendly melodies and flowing solo work.

Iriendly melodies and flowing solo work.

The next five tracks were left over from the Extremist and Blue Dream sessions and include some of the best work Sarriani has ever laid to vinyl (or disc).

"Banana Mango II" is a continuation on the jumpy arpeggiated concept begun on the original "Banana Mango" from the Joe Sarriani EP.

"Thinking of You" could be compared to the emotion level presented on such pieces as "Always With You, Always With Me" or "Cryin," and "Baroque" is a far superior extension of the classically flavored acoustic "Tears In The Rain," making it probably one the EP take a venture into the past visions of the guitarist, exploring ideas that definitely lean in less familiar directions.

"Dreaming #11" features a sur-real percussion section using Joe's guitar as a drum, overlayed with ex-otic meledites, only to end with a guitar's limitation of a steam loco-motive. "I Am Become Death" rep-resents a very uncharacteristic com-

Lastly, "Woodstock Jam" presents a 16 minute, unstructured musical experiment in a barn, Joe's guitar bouncing dissonant melodies of the keyboards of Phil Ashley.

Although Time Machine may not be considered a real album from Satriani, on the whole, it's just as good as most of his others.

It's very interesting to hear what else goes through this man's mind, and there isn't a bad song anywhere on the CD. In essence, Time Machine is 140 minutes of great music because it's 140 minutes of pure Joe.

It's quiet time at the Viper Room.

The trendy hangout for young Hollywood stars is mourning the death of River Phoenix, who collapsed outside.

Going home may be dangerous

Students offer tips for finding rides, traveling safely to visit Mom, Dad

By Julie Owens Staff Writer

Aimee Mink froze as she watched a nearby group of strangers plot to kill her.

At least that's what she thought strangers and the "sleazy" atm

phere of the bus stations.

Mink used to be one of the many students struggling to find a ride home for the holidays until she got a car this semester.

The hassle of finding a ride home

At least that's what she thought they were doing as she waited for the bus to pull up and take her bome to Illinois for the weekend.

"I was excited when my parents first decided to let me take a bus home," said Mink, an elementary education junior." Ithought it might be a fun and interesting experience."

Mink later changed her mind after the long bus ride, mysterious "At rip home costs around $50 to $60," said Bowen, who offers to pay gas money in return for a ride. Involvement in campus activities can also link students to others who may live in the same hometown area.

"Organizations are the best way of connecting with other people," said Wes Butler, Student Activities Board president.
Butler also said students looking for a ride home may post their names and desired destinations on the second floor of the Old Student Center near the snack machines.

the second floor of the Old Student Center near the snack machines. There, students can fill out cards with their names, destinations and phone numbers, and hang their cards on the board. Two sets of cards are available for students: the pink "Ride Needed" cards for stu-dents looking for a ride home and the blue "Rider Wanted" cards for student drivers looking for passen-

"It gives students a way to show that they are interested in finding or giving someone else a ride home," Butler said. "It's especially helpful for people who live quite a distance from their home."

Residence halls are another outlet for spreading the word when stu-dents are looking for rides home.

"Students in the dorms often get rides home by talking to friends who live on their floor and by word of mouth," said Matt Darling, a Kir-wan Tower resident adviser, "Signs also begin to kick in around Thanksgiving time."

When all else fails, students can look to the campus phone directory. The directory lists students' names, phone numbers and hometown ad-dresses.

Police arrest one in firebombings

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Police

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Police arrested one teen-ager and expected to detain more suspects in a string of firebombings aimed at minorities that Gov. Pete Wilson blamed on a "gudtess group."

"This may lead to the arrest of other individuals, from what I've been told," Mayor Joe Serna said.

The first of five bombings damaged a synagogue in July. The last caused minor damage on Oct. 14 at a state agency that investigates discrimination in housing and employment. Fires also were started at an NAACP office, the Japanese-American Citizens League and the home of Jimmie Yee, a city council member.

The youth in jail turned 18 yester-

"We're pleased someone is in custody," said Clyde Rainwater, vice president of the National Asso-ciation for the Advancement of Col-

"We just hope and pray that the justice system can be invoked and brought to some closure."

Police didn't identify the youth ronce didn't kachiry inc youn they arrested Saturday, citing his age and their continuing investiga-tion. Officers want to determine whether Sacramento-area skinhead groups are responsible, said police spokesman Michael F. Heenan.

After the latest fire, someone called a television station claiming responsibility on behalf of a white supremacist group called the Aryan Liberation Front.

"The ALF takes full responsibili-ty for the attack and promises to continue the armed struggles ... whether it be rocks, Molotov cock-tails, bombs, guns, to effect the change in lew capitalism and Amer-ica politically," the caller said.

Wilson said the firebombing at the state office was "evidently the of the same gutless group."

Statues of women tough to find in nation's capital, across U.S.

By Harry F. Rosenthal

WASHINGTON — A statue is being dedicated on Veterans Day to the women who served in the Vietnam War. Big deal?

You bet.

You bet.

It's tough to find statues of women in Washington, a city with enough statues to qualify as pigeon paradise. For instance, in the Capitol's Statuary Hall, only six of the 95 heroic figures are women.

women.

That's the way it is around the country, too. When it comes to being immortalized in bronze or marble, women get short shrift.

"It's really outrageous," said e.p Pat Schroeder, D-Colo.
"It's salways puzzled me, even in my own city of Denver. ... We had statues to buffaloes but didn't have one to women any-where."

In Washington, even horses do better than women. The largest equestrian statue in the United States, that of Ulysses S. Grant in the saddle, is in the capital city. And one of the six statues of women in Washington's pub-lic parks portrays Joan of Arc on a horse.

The new sculpture near the Vietnam memorial is the first honoring women who served in the military. It is controversial, like the war itself. It depicts three fatigue-clad women, one seated on a pile of sandbags cradling a wounded soldier.

dling a wounded soldier.
"The sculpture is a work of de-ception," said Ted Sampley, who publishes the U.S. Veteran Dis-patch in Kinston, N.C. "It gives the false impression that Ameri-can women were serving shoul-der-to-shoulder with men."

Nurses and doctors served in the rear, he said.

une rear, he said.
"It's quite difficult to know what's forward and rear when nurses were killed in Vietnam by shrapnel," said Karen Johnson, who served 20 years as an Air Force nurse.

"That song is responsible for most of my income," Dees said, al-lowing only that he makes well over $100,000 a year. He lives in Lampe, Mo., and still writes songs.

One example of the amount of money involved: Bristol-Myers Co. paid the estates of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II $232,500 to use "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair" in a TV ad. "Man" was replaced with "gray." Dees gets fees whenever the song is played and if anyone remakes it.

Van Halen's heavy metal version and the Julia Roberts movie, "Pretty Woman," were big moneymakers for Dees and Acuff-Rose. On the other hand, the copyright owners rejected a lucrative offer to license the song for use in a fast-food commercial, Dees said.

Gay activists call for Cincinnati boycott

CINCINNATI — Gay activists are calling for a boycott of Cincinnati to protest voters' rejection of a year-old law that prohibited discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

"The reality is to put some pressure on this city," said Todd Kamm, a boycott organizer. "I'm certainly willing to make my sacrifices over it, and a lot of other people are too," he said.

Republicans to introduce welfare bill

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Reforming welfare is now such a popular idea that Republicans are racing to beat President Clinton to the punch while moderate Democrats press the White House to overhaul the system in time for their 1994 campaigns.

House Republicans just finished their version of welfare reform legislation and plan to introduce the 154-page bill Wednesday.

It ends welfare to most non-citizens, requires mothers who ap-ply for assistance to identify their child's father, and limits lifetime benefits to two years.

Centrist Democrats, meanwhile, ave sent notice to a White House that needs their votes that they in-tend to help the president keep his campaign promises to impose time limits and work requirements.

"We want him to know that he does not have to back down and set-tle for window dressing around the edges and leave the dry rot to con-tinue to weaken the entire struc-ture," said Rep. Nathan Deal, D-Ga.

Rocky Raccoon had another side to this story however.

"Once, for laughs, I changed my name to 'Sarah,' and people hit on me like mad."

Kicker chimed in at that point.

"Yeah, weight stuff honeage, all."

"Yeah, weird stuff happens all the time. One guy was telling me all these things about myself. I had no clue as to who he was, and he knew a lot, as it turns out — where I was from, what (high school) I

Everyone seems to agree on one of Phone's qualities. "It's incredibly addictive," Munificent said.

"I have to agree with Muni," Kicker said. "It is incredibly addic-tive; you constantly check to see who is on. You establish certain people you want to talk to."

"Yeah, that's true," Munificent said. "I've met a lot of nice peo-
