A QUARTERLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE ALUMNI AND STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

PLANS FOR 1945 GRADUATION CLASS

The 1945 graduation exercises at the University of Kentucky will begin with the Baccalaureate on May 27, and conclude with graduation on June 1.

Mr. Elwood Hamilton, Judge of the United States Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, has been chosen for the speaker at Commencement to be held at 7:30 p. m. on June 1. Dr. Leslie Smith, pastor of Central Christian Church will give the devotionals.

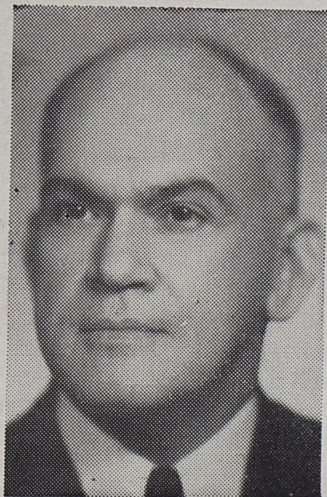

Arrangements for the Baccalaureate exercises will be similar to those of last year. Accordingly the services will be held on Sunday, May 27 at 4 p. m. in Memorial Hall. The Right Reverend William T. Watkins, Bishop of the Methodist Church, Louisville Area, will deliver the sermon.

Provided no more musicians are taken from the Campus before June 1, the University band will play and will be seated in the stands.

The arrangements made last year in regard to graduation exercises in case of rain will be carried out this year. A number of tickets will be printed and distributed to the graduating students in sufficient numbers to accommodate their immediate families, the faculty and others as far as Memorial Hall will accommodate them. The public will be notified through the papers that in case of rain the exercises will be held in Memorial Hall and that seats will be available.

JUDGE ELWOOD HAMILTON

Arrangements for the annual commencement day luncheon is in charge of the social committee and it is hoped that it can be enjoyed as usual. President Donovan and Mrs. Donovan will entertain with tea for seniors, friends and faculty, on May 31, at 4 p. m. at Maxwell Place.

Owing to food and travel restrictions no class re-unions were planned this year but any alumni who find it possible to return to the Campus for the graduation season will be welcome and any special requests that the Secretary or staff can take care of will be done gladly.

Life Membership

The Life Membership list now numbers 220, forty of whom joined since last August. The Life Memberships have been invested in War Bonds and the 80 memberships that were enrolled previous to this year have been replaced from other funds and invested in bonds also.

Do not put off joining the Association by July first. Every $1 member means that much more. Ten one dollar members are more important than one $10 member so don't let the membership dues stop you.

The Kentucky Alumnus

Official Organ of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky published quarterly on the campus of the University, at Lexington. Subscription to non-members, $1. Membership (Type A) in the Association includes subscription to the Alumnus.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the Post Office at Lexington, Ky., May 22, 1929, under the act of March 3, 1879.

Closing Up

We are approaching the end of another Wartime University year and the statistics are both glorious and appalling. More than 200 gold stars are on our service flag and from the rank of major and up about 500 former students and alumni are giving their services in the great struggle.

Two editions ago we recorded the list of casualties up-to-date and we know it is not complete. So it is with the list of Majors, Lieutenant Colonels, Colonels and higher ups. If you find any omissions please write them in to us. We are so desirous of receiving any information available so that when our records are closed they will be reasonably correct.

Owing to travel and food restrictions the Alumni Association has not planned any 1945 reunions. Better luck next year.

Lexington, Kentucky

My Dear Friends:

It is my wish that you should know how your efforts and thoughtfulness afford another of Kentucky's sons some brief moments of pleasure. I am referring to the overseas edition of the Kentucky Kernel which you mail to us in the service, at regular intervals. The opening and pursuing its familiar pages is like meeting an old friend, and as such, is gratefully received and very much appreciated. The value of even such brief contacts with the things we know and loved can in no way be estimated.

I am sure I speak for all of us, but as for myself, your efforts are doubly appreciated, as I expect to resume my interrupted law school education upon the cessation of this present world conflict, under the G. I. Bill of Rights. No doubt there are hundreds of other men and women who intend returning to the University, so you see, you are doing us a real service by maintaining this vital link during these difficult years. The gulf to be bridged between our present duties and occupations and those which we hope to pursue in the not too distant future, is vast and deep, and the period of readjustment will be difficult, but by your loyalty and perseverance these obstacles will be greatly lessened and in a large measure reduced.

My sincere regards,

DENNIE GOOCH, JR.,
Captain, Air Corps

With the XV AAF in Italy.

U. K. Grad Named To High Post

Leonard B. Allen, native of Lexington and graduate of the University of Kentucky, has been elected vice president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company. He and his family live at Shaker Heights, Ohio.

News, items of interest and features come to the Alumni office with a good degree of abundance but it could not be all that graduates of the University are doing. Not all by a big jump. Don't let us miss any news about you, your classmates or other friends.

Beloved Teacher On Visit To Campus

Dr. James Cotton Noe of Kentucky and Beverly Hill, Cal., is on one of his all too rare visits to his native State. He is accompanied by Mrs. Noe on his trip to Kentucky and they seem to have lessened none of their interests in old friends, the campus or the goings on or doings of former associates.

The picture accompanying this story is from a portrait which was painted last summer by Ferdinand Earl, an artist and poet of note, who lived in Europe 15 years before World War II and who was compelled to leave France, having lost his possessions and barely escaping with his family. On commission from Miss Rowena Noe, Mr. Earl painted both her father and mother. He has painted portraits of distinguished personages in Europe and the United States and while on a visit to California he painted the Noes.

Reminiscing, one recalls many happy times with this delightful couple while Professor was on duty as a teacher here. He wrote lovely poems and his books were published to the delight of his friends. There were: "The Loom of Life", "The Blood of Rachel", "Lincoln and Twenty Other Poems", "Tip Sams of Kentucky", "The Legend of the Silver Band", "The Valley of Per-nassus", an anthology of Kentucky poetry and many short arrangements besides the annual Christmas cards which were anticipated with such pleasure. It was great entertainment to hear "Professor" read his own compositions. Nothing more delightful could be desired. His intensive knowledge of the beautiful, the classical and the homey things of life gave such color and variety to his writings that one hears a quotation from them very frequently—with the introduction 'as Cotton Noe said,' etc. Lawyer, teacher, lecturer, author and dear friend were titles Professor Noe acquired in his career in Lexington from 1912 until his retirement from active duty in 1934 when he took up research of value to the University and education in general. By joint resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Kentucky he was named Poet laureate of Kentucky in 1926 and retains the title at the present time.

Since going to California, where his three sons had previously located, Professor Noe has met many celebrities and among them writers of fiction, poetry, plays and artists. He has been invited to join many gatherings of literati and has given programs of his own poems on many occasions. His style is unusual, his humor delightful and his ideology uplifting and entrancing. His personality on the Chatauqua platform brought him fame at home and abroad and his wide circle of acquaintance and the many who claim him as a friend welcome him to his Old Kentucky Home, most heartily.

Frank Mann, Trainer And Friend Of University Of Kentucky Athletes

By JOHNNY STOUGH—1947

Frank "Skipper" Mann, often time called simply "Trainer" Mann, needs no introduction to University of Kentucky alumni.

Practically everyone who ever attended U. K. or who ever saw a Wildcat athletic game knows the Skipper, or at least has seen him.

A native of West Chicago, Ill., the Skipper has been a trainer of athletic teams for 40 years, and with the exception of S. A. "Daddy" Boles, is the oldest head in the University athletic department, both in age and from the point of service.

Trainer Mann came to Kentucky in 1923, and in his 21 years of keeping shop in the little apothecary in Alumni gym has taped the "tootsies" of some of the greatest athletes ever turned out in the south. He has worked under five football coaches at Kentucky—Fred Murphy, Harry Gamage, Chet Wynne, Ab Kirwan and Bernie Shively—but fewer basketball mentors, since Adolph Rupp has held sway at the hardwood helm for fourteen seasons.

Mann trained the University of Chicago team to help earn his way through college, with a view toward becoming a trainer after graduation in 1905—an outstanding case of putting the cart before the horse. He remained for a while as trainer at his alma mater, moved on to Indiana University and the University of Iowa, and then returned to Chicago before going to Purdue University and finally to the University of Kentucky.

Skipper enjoys recounting the "good old days" and the stars of seasons past, and one of his favorite favorite subjects is "Shipwreck" Kelly, the Springfield Rifle who blurred the Stoll Field gridiron in the 1920's. He considers Kelly the best football player Kentucky has had during his saga and the 1929 Wildcat gridders the best team. Forrest "Aggie" Sale, three-time All-American center, is the all-time great of the U. K. court, he says. The outstanding cage team, in his opinion, was the 1933 quintet which won 24 games and lost only to Ohio State.

Skipper likes to compare the various standouts he trained himself, but one must think him modest so far as his influence upon their careers is concerned. This is further evidenced by the fact that the late Knute Rockne and other great coaches are known to have asked for the Skip's opinion on various matters pertaining to strategy, yet he never talks about ever having had a tete-a-tete with Rockne or any of the others unless someone asks him specifically if he did. Then he utters only an affirmative grunt, and if pressed further always praises such and such a coach for his headiness or fine character, never giving an indication that his advice ever helped anyone.

Skipper is a bit eccentric now and then, but that never interferes with his work. He carries out the instructions of the coaches implicitly, and from all appearances never questions a coach's decision.

Though an easy-going, peace-loving sort of person, Skip has been known to wield his tube-shaped tape can very threateningly at roudy fans, and any time the Wildcats get involved in a heated argument with opposing players he's standing by for action.

The Skipper likes all types of sports, but his favorite hobbies are fishing and swimming. He spends most of his spare time fishing or working in his garden, but he's always eager to get back to the gym or to take off on a trip with the Wildcats. Skip used to like the trips more in the "old days" than he does now, though, for he doesn't enjoy the hardships of wartime travel.

Although he has given fatherly advice to numerous boys, Trainer Mann has never had one of his own. But he and Mrs. Mann are very proud of their lovely daughter, who will be graduated from U. K. in June.

Ohio State U. Honors Univ. of Ky. Graduate

Prof. Adolph E. Waller of Ohio State University's department of biology, a graduate of the University of Kentucky and a native of Louisville, Ky., was honored recently at a dinner given by Ohio State's Board of Trustees in recognition of his 27 years service to the University.

Leland Howard President Of U. K. Club In Washington, D. C.

Leland Howard, a graduate of the University of Kentucky School of Commerce in 1929, has been elected president of the Kentucky Alumni Association of Washington, D. C. The society meets at luncheon at the famous O'Donnell's Restaurant the second Wednesday of each month.

Mr. Howard, who is the Assistant Director of the United States Mint, is a native of Hodgenville. After graduating from the University, he studied economics at the University of Virginia, where he received his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees, and subsequently joined the faculty of that institution. He entered Government service in 1934, and was appointed Assistant Director of the Mint in 1938. He and Mrs. Howard, the former Edith Sisk of Lexington, and their three daughters, live in Arlington, Va.

Mr. Howard assists in directing the activities of the seven Mint institutions throughout the United States, including the Gold Depository at Fort Knox, Ky. In the past year he has shared the responsibility of the record achievement of producing over 3,600,000,000 coins—more than one-tenth of the total coinage struck in the mints in the past 153 years. Of that amount, 800,000,000 were produced for friendly foreign nations that have no mints and for governments that had lost their minting facilities through enemy aggression. Domestic coinage for our own country in 1944 amounted to 2,844,000,000. In addition to striking these vast numbers of coins, and safeguarding the nation's gold and silver, the Mint service is producing all of the medals for the entire Navy, the Coast Guard and the Marines, and a large number for the Army.

Chandler Appointment A Hit

By TOM R. UNDERWOOD
Editor, The Herald

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25 (Special)—The appointment of Senator A. B. Chandler as the new high commissioner of baseball is one that will make a hit all over the country.

The major league club owners voted unanimously to make him the czar, and so did a hundred and thirty million other people.

You can't beat Happy.

The old Chandler luck that held when the red sweater was pretty thin and the tale about the five dollar bill was thinner has come through but it was the determination, the pluck, the smile, the unflagging courage of old Happy that put him where the late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis reigned supreme and where several scores of American statesmen would like to be.

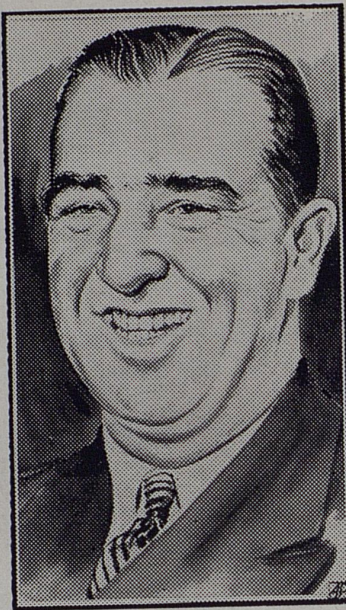

As a matter of fact congressmen are worried about the personnel of the Congress because taxes don't leave them much but gosh, whom do they leave with anything!

At any rate, the first thing I wished when I heard about it was that I could see Happy and see if he really did get any pleasure out of this appointment.

By the way, do you remember a column in The Lexington Herald-Leader by one Tom R. Underwood that said when others were not so sure about it, if Big Baseball didn't want Happy in that job, they had better not offer it to him?

Even that was like the remark that Dud Veal might be persuaded to run for jailer.

Nevertheless, pretty soon just back of the Willard I heard a noise and saw a dignified commotion—a good deal of talking, crowding and handshaking. The day before I stumbled into a crowd in front of the Blair House before I realized what was going on. That, of course, is where Mr. Truman lived up to now. Happy lives at the Mayflower.

Well, here was Happy and if you don't think he was grinning, well if you'd take a doughnut and cut it in half, you'd have about the angle. He said he really was pleased and honored. So should Kentucky feel in his appointment. Many have not liked Happy politically and many others questioned his policies, especially in that they felt he did not follow the late President Roosevelt closely enough. But I do not believe there is a real sure enough Kentuckian who amounts to very much, certainly not in my book, who won't be glad to see Happy as baseball's chief.

The first editorial I ever wrote about him was when he umpired a ball game and there was a fight over a decision but Happy didn't back up and he didn't stop umpiring either.

My prediction is that he will make the most popular man ever connected with baseball, not excepting Christy Mathewson and Babe Ruth.

Gen. Morgan's Service Sword Given to UDC Museum at U. K.

The service sword of Gen. John Hunt Morgan, famous Confederate leader in the War Between the States, has been presented to the United Daughters of the Confederacy museum the Lexington chapter has established in the University of Kentucky library. The historical sword was the gift of Henry James Cary-Curr of Winnetka, Ill., former resident of Lexington.

Mr. Cary-Curr was a close personal friend of General Morgan's brother, the late Col. Richard C. Morgan, who gave him the sword. It was the instrument General Morgan acquired and used while he was the commanding officer of the Lexington Rifles, prior to the War Between the States. After his escape from the Union forces in 1863, General Morgan carried the sword until his death in 1864, according to a notarized statement by the donor.

Through the courtesy of the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation at Cleveland, Ohio, the University of Kentucky's department of metallurgical engineering has acquired and expects to maintain a collection of books and current magazines dealing with the subject of welding. The collection consists of approximately 100 selected volumes of the latest and best works on all phases and types of welding.

Ruth Wehle On Leave After Thirty Months Service

By JOE JORDAN—'19

Many Americans in the European theater already are attempting to arrange early transfers to the Pacific, according to Miss Ruth Dowling Wehle, daughter of Mrs. Frank A. Wehle and the late Dr. Wehle, who is home on a brief leave after an absence of nearly three years. Virtually all of that time, except for a brief period of Red Cross training in the States before she was sent overseas, was spent in bomb-torn England.

Buzz-bombs fell in London the last day Miss Wehle was there, although she said she understood no more had fallen since then, Allied troops having over-run the last launching sites the Germans had in Holland. "Those last ones didn't carry so much explosive," she said, "because they were sent at such long range that they had to carry more fuel." She was in London during the worst of the buzz-bombing when the V-weapons were causing destruction and loss of life that exceeded the worst of the aerial blitz of the earlier part of the war. She saw, heard and felt the shock of plenty of bombing by aircraft, too, in the latter part of 1942 and in 1943.

Asked what was the closest to her a bomb ever fell, she said lightly, "Oh, about as far as from here to the front door." (That appeared to be about 25 to 30 feet.) She admitted that she had spent many sleepless nights, but said one eventually got to a point of such exhaustion and sleeplessness that not even bombs and the terrific noise of the anti-aircraft barrage could keep one awake. "I didn't go to a shelter during the night raids that is, unless I got caught away from home during a raid—because I lived in a steel-and-concrete building that was considered pretty safe," she said. "We were supposed to leave our rooms and go into the hall, to escape the blast effect that you sometimes get if you are near a window, but I rarely left my room. I just stayed in bed, and sometimes I was so tired I just slept right through raids."

Pressed for some more details of her experiences in bombings of which she spoke with considerable reserve and evident understatement, Miss Wehle said on one of the worst nights London experienced she and several other young women were on their way home when the raid started and they ducked from doorway to doorway, between blasts, until they reached her apartment. The others decided not to try to reach their homes, but stayed all night with her. "The thing kept up all night," she said, "and it was after 6 o'clock in the morning before any of us got to sleep." On such nights, she said, unless they had reached one of the times when sleep overpowered them, she and her friends "just sat around and talked all night."

Home A Wonderful Place

Lexington is a pretty wonderful place, Miss Wehle thinks. Some of the things she has been enjoying most since her return are sleep, oranges, milk, eggs and the chance to buy some new clothes. She was sipping a glass of orange juice when being interviewed. "I can't seem to get enough of it," she said.

What made the clothing problem particularly vexing to Miss Wehle was that she went to England with only her Red Cross uniforms and a few "leave clothes," and in June of last year was transferred to the British Division of the U. S. Office of War Information, which made it necessary for her to change to civilian attire. "Mother sent me some things, but she could send only packages of five pounds each," she said, "and some of the girls who were leaving let me have what clothes they could spare, although of course they didn't always fit too well. Since we were in the status of visitors, we were not entitled to even the few clothes coupons that British women have."

During the time Miss Wehle was with the Red Cross—the greater part of her time in England—she covered the country, first with a trailer equipped for serving G. I.'s with doughnuts and coffee and later with an entertainment unit, working out of London and getting back there frequently, but visiting American Army camps, air stations and Naval stations in all sections of England. During her time with the Red Cross she was associated a great deal with a friend from Lexington, Miss Peggy Caskey, who returned to the States last November. After she transferred to O. W. I., she worked in the same offices—in the American Embassy—with Miss Katharine Best of Lexington, who was at home on leave in February.

The chief of the British Division of the O. W. I., under whose supervision Miss Wehle and Miss Best work, is Comdr. Herbert Agar, former editor of the Courier-Journal, whom the Navy placed in an inactive-duty status to take over the O. W. I. work.

Met Kentuckians

Asked about Kentuckians whom she had met in England, Miss Wehle said she couldn't begin to name them off-hand. In the course of the conversation, as various things reminded her of them, she mentioned Lt. Col. Carl H. Fortune, Lexington physician; Lt. Col. Ralph Cherry, who was stationed in London for a time but is now on the Continent; Lt. Col. Ralph Edwards, former Henry Clay high school teacher, who was stationed in London the last time she saw him; Miss Patricia Park, a niece of Dr. Frank L. McVey, whom Miss Wehle saw off to Southampton last Christmas Eve when she left for France as a Red Cross worker; Miss Mary Koppius, also of the Red Cross, whom she visited at an air station in England; Capt. Niel Deitrich, U. S. N., formerly of Lexington, and Lt. Comdr. Barry Bingham of Louisville.

"There were lots of others," she said, "but it's hard to recall them all at once when you're suddenly asked to name them. I wish I could remember the name of one soldier who told me, one day in Northern England, 'You ought to remember me; you used to ride on the bus I drove in Lexington.'"

Was Guignol Star

Miss Wehle, who won May Queen and various other beauty honors at the University of Kentucky, starred in a number of Guignol plays. She was with the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York when she joined the Red Cross in 1942, and at odd times had been sitting for magazine covers painted by such artists as Neysa McMein and for New York photographic studios.

Miss Wehle came home by air, flying to Ireland, from there to Lisbon in a British plane, and by Clipper the rest of the way, via Lisbon, Dakar, Brazil, Trinidad and San Juan to New York. Biggest thrill of the trip, she said, was experienced when her plane flew at night over neutral, brightly lighted Lisbon on its way to a landing near the city. It was the first fully illuminated city she had seen since 1942. Aboard the Clipper were four British girls who had married Americans and were on their way to join their husbands in this country, and one English girl coming to the States to marry an American to whom she had become engaged when he was stationed in England.

Roy Farmer Succeeds Reeves at Frankfort

Roy Farmer of Lexington has been appointed executive assistant to Revenue Commissioner Orville M. Howard, replacing J. E. Reeves, resigned, it was announced today.

Farmer, who had headed the department's services division, will remain acting head of that branch for the time being, the department reported. Reeves resigned last month to return to the University of Kentucky political science department from which he was on leave of absence.

Mrs. Bess Donaldson

Godman Field, Kentucky, February 10, 1945.—Mrs. Bess Gravit Donaldson of Route 3, Dixiana Farm, Lexington, Kentucky, is shown here receiving the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters in behalf of her husband, First Lieutenant Claude D. Donaldson, Air Corps, who is missing in action. Mrs. Donaldson was graduated from the University in 1943 and Lieutenant Donaldson attended the University before enlisting. When reported missing he was a navigator on a liberator bomber with the Eighth Army Air Force in England and was reported missing after his 23 mission.

Alumni In Far East Form Organization

KUMMING, CHINA—A University Club was formed at a meeting of more than 150 alumni of a score of American universities at the Bank of China Villa early this year.

About a third of those present were Army personnel from nearby bases and headquarters.

Dr. Y. C. Mei, president of Southwestern Associated Universities, said that "China owes a lot to American universities for educating her young men and women." He said they would be a force in the democratization of the nation after the war. He expressed the hope that war would be ended in two years.

Cornell was represented by 22 alumni, Massachusetts Institute of Technology by 20, Harvard 18, and Michigan 14 with other groups representing Columbia, Yale, Princeton, Illinois, Duke, Iowa, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Ohio Wesleyan, New York University, Lehigh, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, California, Oberlin and Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Shu Ching-chi, a Michigan alumnus, was chairman. Even though it was mid-January the gathering held forth with college songs on the lawn at the villa.

U. K. Publishes Bulletin for Returning World War Veterans

A handbook for World War II veterans, indicating the opportunities afforded returning veterans to continue their education, has been published by the University of Kentucky.

The University has made careful plans to insure that every veteran who enrolls will receive personal attention and adequate advice and counsel, and the handbook indicates this fact.

Information contained in the handbook includes facts as to where the veteran should report on the campus; what he should bring with him; opportunities afforded; credit for training while in military service; the education and training program of the Veterans Administration, and many other facts.

New Chemistry Prof. Named
At University of Kentucky

Dr. Jacob R. Meadow, head of the department of chemistry at Southwestern University for several years, and also associated with DuPont for the Socony Vacuum Oil Co., has been named associate professor of chemistry at the University of Kentucky by the Board of Trustees.

Doctor Meadow will be director of the courses in freshman chemistry at the University.

The new faculty member holds an A.B. degree from Arkansas College, a Master of Science degree from the University of Arkansas, and a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University.

Colonel Johnson Reviews Military Unit

Colonel William G. Johnson, a native of Anderson, Indiana, who has taken up his duties as Commandant at the University of Kentucky, reviewed the military unit Friday afternoon, April 27, and presented the company colors to the participating groups on the drill grounds on the Campus. Colonel Johnson succeeds Colonel Guy W. Chipman.

Colonel Johnson awarded good conduct medals to 13 members of Provisional Company A, 1548yj Unit of the R. O. T. C.-A. S. T. program.

The review marked the final appearance locally of 34 A. S. T. P.

reservists who entered active duty completion of term work for 35 others who received transfer orders for other posts. The 35 were presented with certificates of graduation.

The University band and University K-Dets, women's drill team, also took part in the review.

Prior to his appointment to the University post this month, Colonel Johnson served as director of R. O. T. C.-A. S. T. work of the Fifth Service Command at Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio. He is a native of Anderson, Ind., served on the faculty of Culver Military Academy for 25 years and saw service overseas in World War I.

Important Research Done in the U. of K. College of Engineering

An important program of engineering research in the fields of mechanical, civil, aeronautical and metallurgical engineering is going forward in the University of Kentucky College of Engineering, as a function of the college's Bureau of Engineering Research and Development established in January, 1943, by the school's board of trustees.

In a report just sent in to the Engineering College Research Association, of which the University's engineering research bureau is an affiliate, fourteen active research projects have been outlined.

Five units have been established for research in the College of Engineering at the University of Kentucky. They are the coal research laboratory, the highway materials testing laboratory, the aeronautical laboratory, metallurgical laboratory and the ore dressing laboratory.

Miss Betty Brewer Joins Lexington Police Force

By JOE REISTER—1934

Saturday night is definitely not the loneliest night of the week for comely Betty Brewer — Lexington's new policewoman.

The work of the vice squad of the Lexington Police Department, to which Miss Brewer has been attached since she joined the city law enforcement agency three months ago, is heaviest on that allegedly "lonely" night.

"Miss Betty," the title bestowed on the attractive blonde policewoman by fellow officers, usually concludes her tour of duty with the "V" squad about 1 a. m. each day, but the trick that starts on Saturday night keeps her busy "much later."

Her work, she said today, consists in the main of aiding male members of the "V" squad in "checking upon" persons who frequent bars, hotels, dance halls, and other "night spots" late in the dark hours.

The work, she added, has to do principally with juveniles, with the idea being to get these "teen-age youngsters home at a reasonable hour of the night. The midnight curfew affecting "night spots" has alleviated many of these problems for the time being, Miss Brewer believes.

A large portion of the young officer's work concerns itself with keeping tab on "ladies of the evening," many of whom still ply their trade in spite of concerted clean-up campaigns conducted before and since the outbreak of the war.

Heart-to-heart talks with juveniles who have strayed from the "straight and narrow" take up what little is left of Miss Brewer's time after she completes her "V" squad duty. "This counseling with youngsters works wonders and I love it," she said today, with obvious sincerity.

"Miss Betty's" work to date has met with the enthusiastic approval of Chief of Police Austin Price. The police official today described Miss Brewer's work as "highly satisfactory" and added that she had "taken to this rather difficult job like an 'old head.'" "I am convinced that Miss Brewer will be a great asset to our department."

Miss Brewer, daughter of Col. B. E. Brewer, former commandant of the R.O.T.C. unit at the University of Kentucky and now a retired Army officer, and Mrs.

Brewer, received her elementary and high school education in Lexington and later attended Butler University, Indianapolis, for one year.

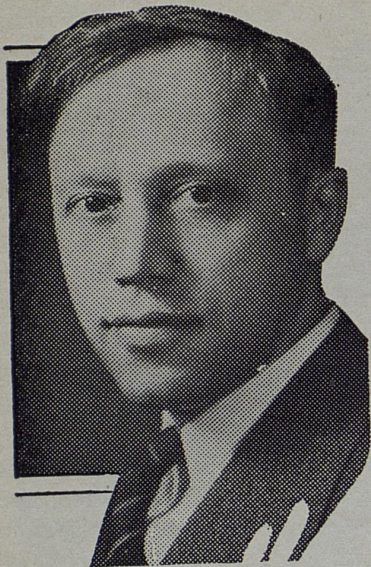

She then entered Ohio State University at Columbus, from which institution she was graduated with a bachelor of arts degree.

Returning to Lexington to live, Miss Brewer entered the University of Kentucky, from which she received a master of arts degree, having majored in experimental psychology, in 1944. She returned to Ohio State on a fellowship to work on her doctorate, but became ill, returned to Lexington and accepted the police post four weeks ago.

U. K. Business Research Bureau Receives Grants for Projects

A grant of $14,000 from the General Education Board of New York City, for the support of the general program of research and service in the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Kentucky; and a contract with the Kentucky Municipal League in the sum of $3,000 whereby the bureau will carry out a research project concerned with Kentucky municipal finances, have just been announced by the University.

The General Education Board grant will permit the bureau to enlarge its activities and carry to a successful conclusion many valuable research projects now under way, and the Municipal League contract will make it possible for the bureau to find and analyze the possibilities of greater fiscal freedom of action for Kentucky cities of all classes. In addition to the municipal finance investigation the bureau has several additional projects under way.

"—and I can hardly wait for the time when we will all be home and can go on the mountains and spend the night like we used to."—Letter from a soldier in the South Pacific.

Last night I thought I heard our boys on the mountain.

Their voices and laughter echoed in the hills and came down into the sleeping valley. Then at daylight I thought I heard them coming home, shouting and laughing, their dirty skillets and bundled blankets dragging after them.

But I know now that I must have been mistaken. I remember now hearing their mothers discussing the proposed over-night stay on Pine Mountain and promptly vetoing the plan. They were much too young to spend the night alone so far from home. That was just a few short months ago. Or could it have been more than a year ago?

Yet tonight I know that these selfsame youngsters are scattered throughout the world, fighting and dying that we might remain safe at home and that other children might go on the mountain and spend the night when they wish. There's Tommy, John, Bill, Bob, Jack, Harry, Sammy, Dick and Bud, and dozens of others. Tonight as I listen in vain for their voices, one is prowling beneath the seas searching out Jap ships which sneaked into Pearl Harbor on that infamous early morning attack; another is dropping his bombs on Berlin and other German strongholds; another sits in a foxhole, lonely and afraid, while shells burst around him and machine gun bullets whine overhead; another lies wounded in an evacuation hospital, dreaming of home and the night on the mountain; another lies in Italy, another in France, never to climb the mountain again or hear the voices and laughter of friends; over another hovers that heart-tearing message from the War Department—"missing in action."

Only yesterday our boys were too young to spend the night on the mountain. But tonight they guard the four corners of the world and give their all that the principles for which their comrades died may survive.

As world leaders gather in San Francisco to map plans for an enduring peace we "lift up our eyes to the mountain" and pray that out of this conference may come that which forever shall prevent our boys from dying on foreign soil and that which forever shall give to thousands of boys yet unborn the right to "spend the night on the mountain" without fear.

Mrs. Katherine Elder Given Husband's Medal

Mrs. Katherine T. Elder, 1626 Nicholasville road, Lexington, received the Silver Star decoration posthumously awarded her husband Capt. William B. Elder Jr., Infantry, in a special ceremony held at Fort Knox, April 14.

Colonel R. C. Throckmorton, post commander, presented the award to Mrs. Elder after the following citations for the award was made:

"For gallantry in action. On three separate days during the period July 25, 1944 to Aug. 4, 1944, Company xxx, xxxxxx Infantry, led the advance of the battalion while in contact with the enemy. On the afternoon of Aug. 2, 1944, the battalion was attempting to negotiate a steep hill prior to fording the xxxxx river, the opposite of which was held by enemy forces. As the leading elements of the company came under fire, Captain Elder, commanding, went forward and directed the platoon over the hill, thereby preventing the battalion from having to remain in an area where artillery fire was expected at any time. The company met continued resistance from enemy groups during the course of the afternoon and two officers became casualties. Captain Elder, by his personal supervision and leadership, coordinated the leading platoons and attached tanks in such a manner that the tactfully important hill was successfully taken and the regiment permitted to continue the advance. Captain Elder was subsequently killed in action. The bravery, loyalty to command and inspiring leadership under fire displayed by this officer reflect the highest credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Colonel J. J. Bethurum Williams, Chief of Staff of the 11th Armored Division, has been awarded the Bronze Star medal for heroic conduct in connection with military operations against an armed enemy near Vaux, Belgium, north of Bastogne.

Cited

The citation reads: "On January 15, 1945, in order to personally insure the success of the attack, Colonel Williams voluntarily accompanied the leading wave of halftracks of the 21st Armored Infantry Battalion in a quarter-ton vehicle under heavy shell fire which destroyed three of the halftracks. He then joined the command tank of Combat Command B under heavy artillery fire and, with his wide experience, offered valuable advice and suggestions on the employment of artillery.

Artillery Expert

"On January 15, 1945, in the attack on the woods east of Noville, Colonel Williams, in order to better observe the action, rode standing on top of a tank into the attack. Again on Jan. 16, Col. Williams joined the command tank of Colonel Yale where he was under intense artillery concentrations on five separate occasions. He continued to advise the Combat Commander in the employment of artillery, which materially assisted in the final capture of the objective.

"Credit To Armed Services"

"To comply with an order of the Division Commander to rejoin him, and in order not to interfere with the operations of the command tank which he occupied, Col. Williams voluntarily dismounted and walked through heavy artillery fire to accomplish his mission. His total disregard of personal safety and complete devotion are a credit to himself and the armed services of the United States." Charles S. Kilburn, Brig. Gen. U. S. A., Commanding.

U. K.'S New FM Station on Air

WBKY, the University of Kentucky's new Frequency Modulation 500 watt educational station, is now on the air after several months of construction. While the programs, to be broadcast entirely during the evening hours for the present, will be largely of a cultural and informative nature, an attractive program structure is being developed that will include a number of student and other programs that would be classed as entertainment. Five commercial radio stations, WHAS, Louisville; WLAP, Lexington; WLW, Cincinnati; WCKY, Cincinnati and WSM, Nashville, have given the University permission to rebroadcast their non-commercial programs of local origination.

U. K. Students Write to Alumni in Armed Forces

More than 1,000 University of Kentucky former students in service are receiving letters from present-day University students, as a result of an enterprise sponsored by the war activities committee of Student Union.

A list of men and women who attended school from 1935 to the present, and who are now in service, was obtained from the Alumni Association, and the names were distributed to the student body. A mimeographed letter, outlining current campus news, to which was attached a personal note, was then sent out to the entire list by individual students.

Salary Recovery Suit Won By Dean Graham

By ALLEN M. TROUT
The Courier-Journal Frankfort Bureau

The $14,374 salary recovery suit against Col. James H. Graham, dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Kentucky, was won by Graham late today on a directed verdict when Judge William B. Ardery instructed his jury that two taxpayer-plaintiffs failed to prove Colonel Graham has not earned his State salary while working for the War Department at Washington.

The jury also was directed to find in favor of 14 members of the board of trustees and Frank D. Peterson, business manager, defendants with Colonel Graham in the recovery suit filed by Henry A. Harper, Midway, and James M. Molloy, Lexington.

Judge Says Case Disproved

Judge Ardery directed the verdict within a few minutes after J. W. Jones, Lexington, attorney for Harper and Molloy, completed his case with two days of testimony. Leslie W. Morris, Frankfort, attorney for the trustees, and Percy N. Booth, Louisville, attorney for Colonel Graham, moved for peremptory instructions. Entertaining the motion in chambers, Judge Ardery told Jones he not only had failed to prove his case, but had disproved it.

"You do not have a syllable of evidence," Judge Ardery told Jones.

Judge "Does His Duty"

"And," he added, "instead of the board of trustees firing or docking Colonel Graham, they ought to hire half a dozen more like him."

Returning to the bench, Judge Ardery addressed the jury as follows:

"No testimony has been introduced upon which I can submit this case to you for your free consideration. The testimony showed Colonel Graham rendered substantial services for the salary paid him out of the funds of the University of Kentucky. There was no evidence introduced that he was paid without rendering commensurate services.

"It is now my duty to find for each and every one of the defendants, and it is my duty so to direct you."

Jones to Seek New Trial

Jones announced he will file a motion for a new trial in a few days.

Colonel Graham immediately was surrounded by dozens of friends, offering congratulations. The circle included Senator A. B. Chandler and Mrs. Chandler; former Governor Keen Johnson and Mrs. Johnson; Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of the university; Dean Leo M. Chamberlain and half a dozen other high administrative officers of the university, as well as several trustees.

Asked to comment, Colonel Graham said: "I want to thank the people for standing by me. I now can go back to my job as consultant to the undersecretary of war and do my best to get the boys back home in a few months."

Graham Testifies 3 Hours

Jones completed his case today with three hours of testimony by Colonel Graham and one hour of testimony from Peterson. He was allowed to call them as his own witnesses, a seldom-used practice in Kentucky courts.

The line of questions by Jones was intended to show Colonel Graham performed no services for the College of Engineering that entitled him to $14,374 of State salary between April, 1941, and February, 1944; to show that Colonel Graham was a civilian consultant in the War Department at $1 a year for the first 23 months, and at $8,000 a year beginning March 16, 1943.

Multiple Duties Recounted

Colonel Graham admitted his wartime services with the War Department, but insisted he also maintained complete supervision of the College of Engineering. He said he spent about 85 per cent of his time in Lexington before Pearl Harbor, but that after the war effort started in earnest his time in Lexington gradually diminished to the low point of some 15 per cent.

Colonel Graham testified he rendered valuable services to the university while at Washington in such matters as obtaining laboratory test projects and soldier training programs for the College of Engineering, and attending to miscellaneous business that, in each instance, obviated the necessity of Dr. Donovan or another staff member making a special trip to Washington.

Peterson Admits Benefits

Peterson, who certifies university pays rolls, testified Colonel Graham never told him he was working part-time at Washington, but that he knew it; never told him he was drawing $8,000 a year after March 16, 1943, but that he learned it from a radio broadcast a few months later. Peterson said he never asked Colonel Graham if he was performing full services for the $416.66 a month he drew as engineering dean.

But, Peterson added, he knew Colonel Graham was performing services for the university at Washington, for it was through the dean's efforts enough soldier training programs were secured to keep the university open through the war, without reduction in either staff or salaries.

52-Cent Check Shown

Colonel Graham—a 66-year-old giant of a man with solid gray hair, a cropped mustache and trim goatee—was touched with deep emotion twice during the three hours he was on the stand. On the first occasion, his voice choked as he showed the jury an original War Department check for 52 cents, representing part of his salary for 23 months at $1 a year. He received another check for 27 cents, but lost it. A third check for $1.07 was issued to him but got lost in transit.

On the second occasion, Colonel Graham flared in anger as Jones asked a question involving the aeronautical laboratory given to the university by Axel L. Wenner-Gren before the Swedish munitions manufacturer was black-listed by the State Department shortly after Pearl Harbor.

Talk On Gift Ruled Out

"A lot of stuff has been spread in this state about that laboratory," Colonel Graham snapped. "I would like to tell all I know about it here in this court, before this jury. It would take an hour and a half, but I'll do it if you want me to."

Judge Ardery, however, quickly ruled out questions upon Wenner-Gren's $156,000 gift, which had been transmitted to the university through Colonel Graham.

Besides Colonel Graham and

Peterson, other absolved defendants—all trustees in the period covered by the suit—are:

John W. Brooker, Louisville; William H. May, Frankfort; Louis Hillenmeyer, Lexington; Robert C. Tway, Louisville; H. S. Cleveland, Franklinton; Harry F. Walters, Simpsonville; Richard C. Stoll, Lexington; Richard P. Hobson, Louisville; Lee Kirkpatrick, Paris; Mrs. Paul G. Blazer, Ashland; Harper Gatton, Madisonville; Marshall Barnes, Beaver Dam; James Park, Lexington, and H. D. Palmore, Frankfort.

Dear Friends—

I am thankful for the opportunity to become a member of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky and want to receive the Kernel and the Alumnus regularly. You can rest assured they will be thoroughly read and appreciated not only by me but also by three other ex-students in my outfit.

Private Wendell McCallum of Lexington, Arts and Sciences; Private William Dalton of Jackson, Agriculture; Corporal William Gayle, Lexington, Agriculture, and I left Lexington and the University in March, 1943, and have been together ever since. Sixteen months of that time has been spent in the Southwest Pacific area and in combat. We all expect to return to U. K. after the war and finish our work. I certainly miss the dear old Alma Mater and friends who are still there. Regards to friends and professor of the College of Agriculture.

Tribute Is Paid To Dr. Hume Bedford

The Lexington Section of the American Chemical Society met for its February meeting at Kastle Hall on the Campus, February 8, with Dr. S. H. Wender presiding.

Homer Bell of the Philadelphia Quartz Company, a former student of the University who received his degree in Industrial Chemistry in 1919, was the principal speaker. Mr. Bell's address was on the subject "Silicate of Soda."

A feature of the meeting was the tributes paid to the memory of Dr. M. Hume Bedford, whose death occurred February 3. Mr. Bell said "Dr. Bedford contributed greatly toward the Chemical Department of the University of Kentucky but I think perhaps the noblest work was that of taking deserving boys into his home while they were in school and giving them food, shelter and inspiration. Many of these men continued their studies and made their doctorates. Three, that I can recall, named their sons after Dr. Bedford. Several former students came from a distance to attend their former teacher's funeral and letters to Mrs. Bedford paid devoted tribute to her husband and appreciation to her also for the kindness and help they had given." Mr. Bell named the following students as proteges of the Bedfords:

Dr. L. B. Turner, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Bayonne,

N. J. Son, Wm. Bedford Turner, was named for M. H. B.
