

UK Professor Studying Communist Workers

A Czechoslovakia-born sociologist at the University left this week for Yugoslavia to study the extent of worker participation in factory management under communism.

It will be the second such study for Dr. Jiri T. Koloja, specialist in industrial sociology, who is testing the Marxist theory that conflicts between labor and management are eliminated under communist state ownership.

Dr. Koloja, now an American citizen, spent two months during the summer of 1957 doing research in the Polish textile center of Lodz and concluded that in some cases conflicts between the two forces are even greater in Poland than at some places in the United States.

In Yugoslavia, the situation is reported to be somewhat different and there is presumably more worker participation, Dr. Koloja said. He hopes to visit factories, attend meetings or workers councils, and have workers complete questionnaires which he will prepare.

The University professor left Wednesday from New York. His work is being sponsored by the Social Sciences Research Council, an American association composed of organizations representing the various areas of social sciences, which has provided a $1,200 grant.

Dr. Koloja will study not only the extent workers may participate but also the extent they actually do take part in factory management. His data will later be used as the basis for preparing tables and calculating the significance of the workers' councils.

The Social Sciences Research Council grant for the new study was awarded chiefly on the basis of Koloja's previous work in Poland. A manuscript based on his work there, entitled "A Polish Factory," is being considered for publication in book form.

Dr. Koloja said that the matter of ownership—whether by the state or by private stockholders—doesn't appear to be important as far as the difference of interests between workers and management are concerned.

In conducting the Polish study, he was probably the first American sociologist since World War II to undertake such research in a Communist dominated country.

Dr. Koloja has noted that no such analysis has been carried out by Poland's own sociologists.

Dr. Koloja joined the University faculty last September. He was awarded a Ph. D. degree from the University of Brno, Czechoslovakia, in 1947 and will receive a second Ph. D. degree from Cornell University this summer. He is the author of a number of articles appearing in professional journals.

Bored of Education?

A large group of class seekers surround the College of Education table on the floor of the Memorial Coliseum during Tuesday's hectic registration. The rush on education classes is due to the large number of teachers who are working toward graduate degrees during the summer period. Tables at other colleges were almost as crowded, as registration neared a record mark for a summer session.

Three University Students Win Fellowship Awards

Michael W. Brown, junior modern foreign languages major, has been awarded a Heidelberg Fellowship for study in Germany next fall.

He was a member of the varsity debate team and received a Chicago Tribune gold medal awarded to outstanding ROTC cadets.

Brown has attended German schools before during a stay in that country from 1954-56. He attended an American high school in Munich and Realgymnasium Berchtesgaden, a German classical high school. Brown graduated from Lexington Lafayette High School after his return to the United States.

At Heidelberg, Brown will study literature and philosophy. After completing his study in Germany, he plans to return to UK to finish his undergraduate work in modern foreign languages and work toward a master's degree in diplomacy.

The fellowship was awarded under a reciprocal agreement between UK and the University of Heidelberg by which students are exchanged for a year of study.

Rebecca Carliss, home economics junior, has been awarded a William H. Danforth Summer Fellowship to study problems of manufacturing, research and leadership.

She will learn through actual experience at the Ralston Purina Co. in St. Louis. The program also includes a two week leadership training camp.

Myra Tobin, a freshman in home economics, will also attend the leadership camp phase of the Danforth program.

Gifts Accepted By University

Gifts totaling $18,235 were accepted for the University recently by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees.

Donations were presented to the College of Engineering, College of Education, Department of Entomology and Botany, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the Department of Mining and Metallurgy.

The gifts will be used for grants-in-aid, research and renewal of scholarships.

Air Force Renews Grants To Chemistry And Physics

Renewal of contracts by the Air Force Office of Scientific Research will enable the University to carry on research projects in fields of chemistry and physics.

Lee W. Gildart, associate professor of physics, will conduct a study of special materials closely related to elements used in transistors. Gildart said the research deals with the electrical behavior of the materials.

Research on a series of unusual chemical compounds will be continued under the supervision of Dr. Walter T. Smith Jr., professor of chemistry. The study deals with the chemical composition and the reactions of synthetically produced compounds called n-sulfinylamines.

The latest extension of the physics contract will bring to more than $78,000 the amount which the Air Force has provided for the study.

A total of $69,536 has been given for the chemical study since its beginning in 1956.

44 Faculty Promotions Approved By Trustees

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees recently approved several major appointments and promotions in rank for 44 University faculty and staff members.

Dr. Ernest E. Trimble, acting head of the Department of Political Science, was named head of that department. He succeeds Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, who last year became director of the new Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce.

Appointed head of the Department of Radio Arts was O. Leonard Press, acting head of the department during part of 1956-57 and 1958-59. He replaces Mrs. Camille Halyard, who has resigned.

Dr. A. Lee Coleman, professor of sociology and rural sociologist, will replace Dr. Howard W. Beers as head of the departments of Sociology and Rural Sociology. Dr. Beers is currently on leave from the University while serving as a field associate in India for the Ford Foundation.

Named to head the Department of Agricultural Engineering was Dr. Blaine F. Parker, associate professor of agricultural engineering. He replaces Dr. Drayton T. Einard, who resigned.

Dr. Ellis V. Brown, head of the Chemistry Department at Seaton Hall University, was appointed professor of chemistry and director of general chemistry. In the latter position he will succeed Dr. Jacob R. Meadow, who was earlier made assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

John M. Howard, employed by a private consulting engineering firm, was made assistant chief engineer for the new medical center. For several years he was assistant chief engineer in the UK Department of Maintenance and Operations.

Other promotions in rank for University faculty and staff members were also approved by the Board of Trustees.

By colleges and departments, they are:

College of Arts and Science—From associate professor to professor: Clifford Amyx, art; Louis L. Boyarsky, anatomy and physiology; Ellwood M. Hammaker, chemistry.

From assistant professor to associate professor: Jacob R. Adler and Robert D. Jacobs, English, speech and dramatic arts; Daniel A. McAninch, music; John M. Patterson, chemistry; Thomas G. Roberts, geology; Dale M. Smith, botany; Francis Kodman, psychology.

From instructor to assistant professor: John W. Donahoe, psychology; Jasper H. B. Garner, botany; Phyllis Jenness, music; Malcolm E.

The Top of the Campus

Not quite the top of the world, but still rather high is the top floor of the new medical center now under construction. The workman near the edge of the scaffold is putting some finishing touches on the poured concrete roof of the new building. Workmen's cars and campus buildings can be seen in the background. Work on the medical center, which is expected to be in full operation by mid-1960, is progressing rapidly and on schedule.

Jewell, political science; James H. Johnson, modern foreign languages; Frederic M. Thurs, art; Paris A. Leary and George T. Wright, English, speech and dramatic arts.

College of Agriculture and Home Economics—From associate professor to professor: J. D. Kemp, animal husbandry, and from associate animal husbandman to animal husbandman.

From assistant professor to associate professor: W. C. Binkley and Albert N. Halter, agricultural economics; T. B. Hutcheson Jr., and G. W. Stokes, agronomy; D. W. MacLaury, poultry; J. G. Rodriguez, entomology and botany.

College of Engineering—From assistant professor to associate professor: Hans Gesund, structural engineering; Charles P. Graves, architectural engineering; John S. Jackson Jr., electrical engineering; Maurice K. Marshall, mechanical engineering; William H. Roll, mining engineering.

From instructor to assistant professor: Eugene B. Bradley, electrical engineering; Roy D. Burberry, engineering drawings; James M. Elliott and Harry L. Mason, mechanical engineering; James F. Lafferty, Wenner Gren Aeronautical Research Laboratory; Russell E. Puckett, electrical engineering.

College of Education—From associate professor to professor: James T. Moore Jr. and Paul Street.

From assistant professor to associate professor: George Luster, Ernest McDaniel and Leonard Ravitz.

From instructor to assistant professor: Stella S. Gilb, George Rogers and Martha V. Shipman.

David L. Montonna, nationally known real estate appraiser, is acting dean and lecturer of a demonstration case-study course for real estate agents being offered at the University.

The course, which began June 8 and will end June 20, will be credited by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers toward an M.A.I. designation to students who make satisfactory grades. The University does not give credit for the course.

Montonna, an appraiser for 30 years, has had experience in 47 states and several foreign countries. He is past president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and for several years was chairman of its educational committee.

Another lecturer in the course is Charles P. Landt, executive vice president of the Cameron-Brown Co.

Deeb Named '59 UK Line Coach

Norman Deeb has been named freshman line coach, completing UK's 1959 football coaching staff. Deeb was line coach at Xavier during the 1958 season. Before that, he was head coach at Bellevue High School for two seasons where he posted a 13-6 record. A Louisville native, Deeb played high school ball at Shelbyville and played tackle while attending Eastern Kentucky State College. He graduated from Eastern in 1947. He replaces Charlie Snyder, who resigned to become head coach at his alma mater, Marshall College.

Loan Fund Receives Federal Grant

Receipt of $26,208 as a second federal capital contribution to the National Defense Student Loan Fund has been announced by UK President Frank G. Dickey. Approval of the payment, which brings to $32,020 the amount received in the 1958-59 fiscal year by the University for this purpose, was contained in a letter from L. G. Derthick, U. S. Commissioner of Education. Under terms of the National Defense Education Act, participating institutions are required to provide at least $1 for each $9 provided by the federal government. The Act authorizes loans of up to $1,000 a year but most of the loans are expected to be for much less than that.

Watermelon Feast Heads Activity List

Activities for the summer term have been announced by the University Summer Sessions Committee.

A watermelon feast will be held Wednesday, June 17, on the west lawn of the SUB at 6:30 p.m.

Students and faculty may purchase tickets for 25 cents at the SUB in Room 122, College of Education, Holmes Hall, Keeneland Hall and Donovan Hall.

Activities for the week include the movie "The Sun Also Rises" to be presented on Tuesday, June 16, in the SUB Ballroom. Following the movie, Dr. Robert D. Jacobs, associate professor of English, will discuss the literary implications of the film.

Other movies to be presented this summer are "Blackboard Jungle," June 30 and "Something of Value," July 7. Each film will be followed by a discussion of its effect on society.

An all-campus forum will be presented each Tuesday through the end of summer school. Various topics in religious thought will be discussed by a panel of student ministers. The forum will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Y Lounge of the SUB.

A tour of Bluegrass farms will be sponsored by the Student Union.

Summer School Staff Was Once Only Two

By CHRISTA FINLEY

Students who consider summer school a blessing and those who consider it more of a curse may be encouraged to know that grandmother and grandfather probably felt the same way.

The reasons summer school was first begun at the University in 1903, and the reasons it is still held each year are basically the same.

According to one of the two professors who taught during the summer school of 1903, it was designed "to help those who had failed in subjects and also those who wanted to get ahead by taking extra work."

Then, as it is today, many elementary and secondary teachers took advantage of summer school as a means of either further extending their studies or keeping abreast of the latest problems and techniques of teaching.

The enrollment of summer school has risen from about 50 students in 1903 to 3,060 for this summer. The number of professors has increased many times from the original two.

Summer tuition has undergone a sharp increase. Fifty-six years ago, the tuition was only $7.50 per subject. Today an average three credit course costs a Kentucky resident $21.

Professors Davis and Jones taught all of the courses offered at the first summer session.

At that time the summer school was more or less a private tutoring school and remained such for 7 years until 1910, when the University took it over.

The plan for a summer school at the University was first authorized by the faculty in 1902.

One of the first suggestions made to the faculty for a summer school was made by Professor Miller, for whom the building now housing the Geology and Modern Foreign Language departments was named.

In his suggestion he stated that "such a summer school might profitably be undertaken here, with the aid of our instructors and assistants, and that many teachers of the state might be glad for an opportunity to avail themselves of such a school."

Miller thought that "such a summer school would increase the popularity of the college throughout the state, and also be the means of making it much better known."

"It would furthermore give our assistants helpful experience in teaching, would increase their incomes, and thereby ultimately raise the standard of ability among them."

Cooper, Moos To Head Seminar Speaker List

United States Senator John Sherman Cooper and Dr. Malcolm Moos, speech writer and adviser to President Eisenhower, will head the list of speakers for next week's Alumni Seminar.

"The Influence of the American Constitution in India" will be the subject of a talk by Senator Cooper at a dinner Thursday at 6 p.m. in the SUB Ballroom.

Mr. Cooper will also take part in a panel discussion on whether the resurgence of the Senate in foreign relations is wise in these days of ticklish and dangerous diplomacy.

Also taking part in this discussion, which will be moderated by William L. Matthews Jr., Dean of the UK College Law, will be Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, director of the new UK Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce; Don Whitehead, Pulitzer Prize winning newsman and Emery Frazier, reading clerk of the United States Senate.

Dr. Moos will speak Thursday afternoon on the relation of the president to the Constitution. Included in his speech will be such questions as the kind of president we need in this age of technological revolution, weapons of immense instant destruction and the effect of growing Russian power on the president.

Moos has been an associate editor of the Baltimore Evening Sun and has written several books. He was a delegate to two Republican National Conventions.

Following a lecture on "The Supreme Court and States Rights" by Paul Oberst, law professor, there will be a panel discussion on that subject led by Jesse Dukeminier Jr., professor of law.

Members of the panel will be United States Circuit Court Judge John R. Brown; Arthur Krock, Pulitzer Prize winning Washington reporter for the New York Times; Clement Eaton, professor of history; Anthony Lewis, Supreme Court reporter for the New York Times and winner of a Pulitzer Prize for national reporting, and Oberst.

Other lecturers will be Dr. Carl B. Cone, professor of history; John P. Frank, former associate professor of law at Yale University and author of several books; Paul A. Porter, past chairman of the Federal Communications Commission

UK Pioneered Plan Gets Large Grant

A new type of educational exchange plan under the direction of the University has received a $200,000 annual grant to continue its exchange program, it was announced recently.

The International Summer School Unit received the grant from the Carnegie Corp. of New York. The money will be used to carry on an exchange program between 10 southern schools and one in Mexico.

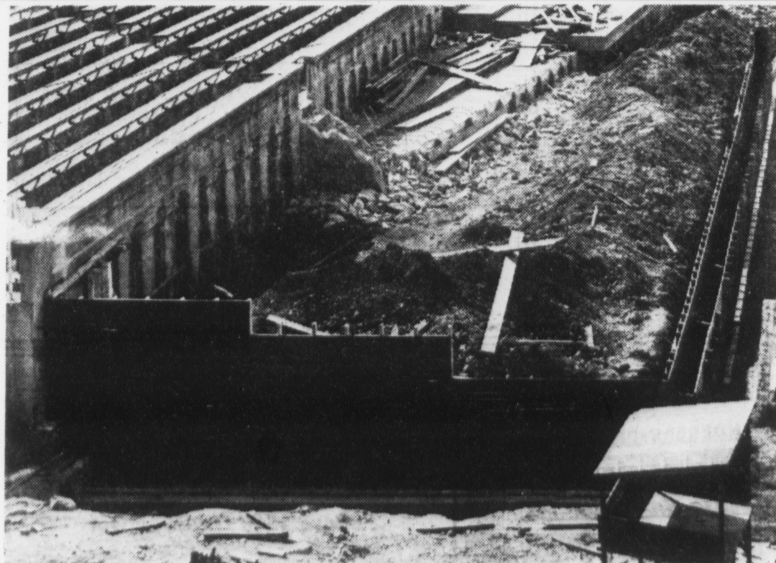

Under the new plan, whole classes, including their instructors, will be exchanged with the Institute of Technology and Higher Studies at Monterrey. The Mexican school will send a similar group to the American school.

The grant, accepted by the UK Board of Trustees, will pay part of the expenses of the 20 professors and 200 students taking part in the annual exchange. Details of the program, which will begin the summer of 1960, will be worked out among the participating schools.

UK President Frank G. Dickey is chairman of the unit and Dr. J. B. Schwendeman, head of the Geography Department, is executive director.

Dr. Schwendeman said a sample academic program for U.S. students at the institute would probably include courses in Spanish, study in social sciences to further

New Box Seats

Work is progressing rapidly on the razing of the old box seats in Stoll Field. When the project is completed this September, new boxes will provide seats for 2,200 additional spectators. The project, which will cost approximately $100,000, will put off the closing of the ends of the stadium for two or three years.

UK Journalism Graduate Buys Newspaper Company

Tommy L. Preston, a graduate of UK's School of Journalism ('56), will become publisher and general manager of the Cynthiana Publishing Company, it was announced recently.

Preston, present editor of the Carrollton, Ky. News Democrat, served as feature editor of the Kernel, and as sports editor of the Kernel and the Kentuckian.

For two years, he was UK correspondent for the International News Service. He is a member of Phi Kappa Tau social fraternity and Sigma Delta Chi national professional journalism fraternity.

Another UK graduate, Miss Beverly Davis, ('52), has recently been named editor of the magazine, Texas Trends in Art Education.

While at UK, Miss Davis was a member of local writers' clubs, and contributed to Stylus.

A Key To Understanding

The University Board of Trustees made a notable move this week by approving a $20,000 annual grant to finance the program of the International Summer School Unit. The decision was made to accept the program after it had failed to attract a permanent sponsor in 1952.

That President Eisenhower has commended the idea and that nine other schools have adopted the program attests to the effectiveness it should have. And, because the University has taken the leadership role in the program, it indicates a stout desire on UK's part to establish better international relations.

As an educational program, the unit eventually boils down to a social science program with a strong emphasis on foreign languages, and possibly a technical course in engineering. The exchange program is with Mexico, and the grant pay part of the expenses for 20 professors and 200 students to the country.

Studying a society and learning its language necessarily becomes easier by direct contact with the society, and it is through this idea that UK decided to accept the program.

Better international relations and understanding is something that is highly desirable today, and—although the U. S. and Mexico are on the best of terms—it never is unnecessary to strengthen relationship by implementing such a program.

President Eisenhower's endorsement of the exchange unit solidifies even more UK's part in the program. It is becoming a common theme around the world that international understanding is perhaps the only key to survival we have, since there is such a conflict of principles between the world powers.

It's never too late to initiate education and understanding.

understanding among the people of the two countries and a technical course such as engineering, agriculture or architecture as presented in Mexico.

He said the program might someday be extended to include other Latin American countries.

A forerunner to the program was carried out by Dr. Schwendeman and Dr. T. P. Field with a group of UK students in 1952 and '53. The classes were held at the Mexican school at the invitation of Commodore Penn L. Carroll, retired U.S. Navy officer acting as public relations director for the institute.

Efforts made to secure a sponsor for the project at that time were unsuccessful. In 1956, following a speech by President Eisenhower at Baylor University in which he urged universities and foundations to play a more significant role in international understanding, Schwendeman wrote the President offering the UK plan. The plan was commended and later adopted by the southern schools.

Schools participating in the International Summer School Unit are UK, Vanderbilt, Baylor, American University of Washington, Florida

Boy's Car Troubles Prove Third Time Is No Charm

By WAYNE GEGORY

Three times in one hour his car got him into trouble.

It all happened to Scotty Davis, 16-year-old Richmond resident, shortly after he obtained his driver's license.

It began when Davis, a Richmond Model High sophomore, was driving a group of friends home after a class party.

He first made a wrong turn into the city dump.

Then city police became curious as to his presence and suggested he move on. In making the exit, Davis' car stalled on a nearby railroad crossing.

About a quarter of a mile up the track a train was stopped at the station. Police came to Davis' aid by radioing the station to hold the train until a wrecker could pull the car off the crossing. But it cost Davis $2.50 wrecker fee.

As if this were not enough, Davis learned that he had also been exposed to measles.

Dr. N. B. Clerley Named Chairman

Dr. Norris B. Clerley, former director of the University School, was named chairman of the division of Educational Administration and Supervision Tuesday by the University Board of Trustees.

Dr. Clerley replaces Dr. Leonard E. Necca who served as acting head of the division for the past two years. Dr. Necca, who is a professor of education, will devote full time to teaching duties.

The new chairman has devoted most of his time during the past year to Kentucky's role in the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, which accredits top-notch schools. He will continue as chairman of the Kentucky committee, but will not remain associate director of the Bureau of School Service.

Dr. Clerley, a native of Adamsville, Tenn., has received degrees from Memphis State College, Teachers College of Columbia University, Peabody College and the University of Illinois.

Caravan To Show Scientific Equipment

One of the largest collections of needed scientific equipment. microscopes ever assembled in Kentucky will be shown at the Audio-Visual Caravan on Monday.

Other features of the show include an electronic brain construction kit, science kits, odorless formaldehyde, a new product developed by a Michigan scientific company which will make laboratory work more pleasant, and a language laboratory and foreign motion pictures, which may be useful in teaching foreign languages.

These exhibits and demonstrations will show what the equipment does, not just what it is, and materials may be purchased under the National Defense Education Act.

Under the provisions of NDEA, the federal government will match, dollar for dollar, expenditures made for scientific equipment. This program will enable schools to double their purchases of much Specialists in audio-visual and factory representatives will be available to discuss problems and answer questions. The exhibit is sponsored by the D. T. Davis Co.

From The Ground Up

Forms are being built prior to the pouring of the concrete foundation of the new men's dorm now under construction behind Donovan Hall. The dorm, which will house 522 men, is expected to be ready for occupancy in June, 1960.

Lawyers Sponsor Forum

A three-day forum on the newly-enacted Kentucky Uniform Commercial Code will be held for the state's lawyers, bankers and businessmen at UK June 23-25.

The short course, which is sponsored by the Kentucky Bar Association and the law schools at UK and the University of Louisville, will deal with all major sections of the code and the changes in Kentucky law as a result of it.

The code was enacted by the State General Assembly last year and will become effective July 1, 1960.

Dean W. L. Matthews of the UK law school called the code "perhaps one of the most monumental pieces of legislation ever put into a single statute."

The code's primary purpose is to bring the commercial laws of the state up to date, both in language and in expression on the businessman's approach to legal problems in the commercial field.

The provisions deal with the sale of goods in transit, sale of personal property on credit, secured transactions of all kinds involving personal property and negotiable instruments and banking transactions.

The forum will include some 20 lecturers and panel discussions dealing with every article of the code. Participating in the presentation of the code will be the joint committee on continuing legal education of the American Bar Association and the American Law Institute.

Dickey Outlines Expansion

Mounting enrollment and new responsibilities make it apparent the University will need new facilities, UK President Frank G. Dickey told the Board of Trustees Tuesday.

"The past biennium has seen the University of Kentucky engage in two studies, both of which will assist materially in charting the course for future years," Dr. Dickey stated.

He explained that a professional campus planning firm has worked with the University administration for the past two years developing a plan to guide the expansion of the University for the next 10 or 20 years.

In his report to the trustees, Dr. Dickey outlined the progress of the University centers now in operation in Ashland and Covington. Centers in Cumberland and Henderson will be in full operation in the fall of 1960 he continued.

The athletic practice fields have been relocated and new dressing rooms built to allow for dormitory expansion at no cost to the state. The project was paid for by the Athletic Association, Dr. Dickey stated.

Dr. Dickey said, "While it is difficult to foresee all the University's construction needs for the next few years, and even more difficult to establish priorities in light of ever-changing conditions, the following building schedule has been suggested:

"Chemistry-physics building, College of Commerce building, addition to King Library, addition to College of Engineering, addition to Mineral Industries Building, renovation and alteration of Pence and Kastle halls, agriculture building for instruction and research, including library facilities.

"Addition to Student Union building, addition to College of Education building, general classroom and seed house for experiment station, animal houses for sciences, agriculture and medicine and a food technology building."

Dr. Dickey said several of these buildings are already in the planning stages and, in addition, a new men's residence hall housing over 500 students is now under construction.

More dorms will be added as the need arises and the present utilities system will be generally expanded and adjacent property acquired to provide room for expansion, President Dickey concluded.

"Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered weak and weary."
