Report Suggests More 'Footwork' For UK Gridders

Transportation of the football team from the Coliseum to the practice field on Rose Street was condemned in the April 22 edition of "The Zoological Record," a sheet published every Wednesday by the UK Department of Zoology. Ebdy, head of the Department, is editor.

The story, in full, was headlined "The Golden Cow."

It is as follows: "According to reliable grape vine sources, chartered buses are being used to transport the football team from the Coliseum to the practice field on Rose Street, a distance of about half a mile."

"Why not motor the back field players on Motor Scooters and provide the line men with Armors? It would appear that some such arrangement may be needed, if these lucky young men are unable to travel that distance under their own power."

The line men would be able to protect themselves from enemy players and the back field players might be able to advance the ball down the field by such means. Has the American boy forgotten how to walk? Is this a symptom of decadence? It is small wonder that many of these young men consider themselves privileged characters."

"Why not let those busters walk out to practice and use the money thus saved to help pay off the debt on the Coliseum? When money is needed so desperately for so many things, it is a symptom of decadence to condone such waste."

"It appears that we have made good use of the money which we sacrifice above all else, and to which we sacrifice everything. Is it not time that we take heed from such idleness and seek the Spirit of Learning and True Values?"

Donovan Reported In Good Condition

Dr. Herman L. Donovan, UK president, was reported in good condition after undergoing surgery on an eye operation in Chicago this week, a spokesman in his office said this week.

Time Change Will Cause Confusion On UK Campus

Confusion will begin next week for some at the City of Lexington goes on Daylight Saving Time, the University of Kentucky stays on Central Standard Time, and class periods are moved up one hour.

Lexingtonians will set up their clocks Sunday, while Fayette county residents, UK, and other state agencies remain on standard time. The mix-up is because of the desire of the local people to have an extra hour of daylight and a Kentucky statute which prevents daylight saving time.

The Williams-Moorman Anti-Daylight Saving Time Act which was passed by the General Assembly last year and which went into effect last June states: "The standard time fixed and prescribed for the Commonwealth of Kentucky by Act of Congress or by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission shall apply to and govern all laws, regulations and rules relating to the time of performance of any act by any officer or department of the Commonwealth, or of any county, city, or subdivision or agency thereof, or relating to the time that any right shall accrue or determine, or within which any act shall be performed by any person subject to the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth, and in all the public schools and institutions of the Commonwealth and on the public works of the Commonwealth or any county, city or district thereof, or in all contracts or choses in action made or to be performed in the Commonwealth."

It is seen by this rule that Lexington cannot officially pass an ordinance to go on saving time because it is against the state law. To get around this, the city commissioners recommended to the citizens to adopt the time, which they did. But, as seen in the statute, the University being a public school and "an institution of the Commonwealth" cannot go on the saving time.

To keep up with the City of Lexington and to give its employees an extra hour of daylight also, the University will advance its daily schedule one hour. First hour classes will meet at 7 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. Offices will open at 7:30 a.m. rather than 8:30 a.m. and will close at 4 p.m.

Some persons will probably be confused at first trying to keep in mind that when it's 10 o'clock down town, it's 9 o'clock on the campus, and also trying to learn a new schedule. The simplest solution to the problem for students is, of course, to run their watches up an hour. We will then go to class at the same hour as we have been, and our time will be with the city's. But remember not to pay any attention to the clock in Memorial Hall and in campus buildings.

Fence On UK Campus Costs Students Over $120 A Year

The fence between the Journalism Building and the Mining Laboratory costs UK students over $120 a year. This may sound strange, but that fence compels students to take extra steps, and these extra steps cause shoes to wear out and shoes cost money.

There are 70 steps from the north door of the Journalism Building through the fence and around the side of the Mining Laboratory next to the engineering quadrangle to the main sidewalk. But going around the Mining Lab on the other side, as students are presently forced to do, requires 120 steps to the same spot of the main sidewalk. Thus a student going to and from the Journalism Building is forced to take 100 extra steps (50 steps each way) because of the fence.

An average of about 500 students go to and from the Journalism Building a day. These students take a total of 50,000 extra steps a day because of the fence, or 9,000,000 extra steps a year, excluding the summer term.

A local shoe store manager, quoting from a folder distributed by a shoe manufacturer, told us this week that it takes about 570 miles, or 1,003,200 steps, to wear out a pair of shoes of medium weight. The average price of such shoes is $25, he said.

Dividing the total number of extra steps taken a year by students because of the fence (9,000,000) by the number of steps needed to wear out a pair of shoes (1,003,200), the answer is a little over eight pair of shoes. Multiplying this number by the average price of a pair of shoes, $15, the answer is $120 plus.

Actually, the true cost is more than $120, because we did not consider the extra steps taken during the summer semester. We also based our total steps for a year on a five-day week and did not consider Saturdays. At any rate, it is seen the fence cost us students well above $120 a year.

If the fence is torn down, about seven square yards of concrete would be needed to construct a sidewalk in its place. A manager of a local ready mixed concrete firm estimated it would cost about $101.15 for such an amount of concrete.

Comparing figures, we see the cost of concrete for a sidewalk to replace the fence is almost $20 less than the cost suffered annually by the students because of the fence. Of course, labor must be considered in the cost for such a job, but this can easily be furnished by the University.

This is the second year the fence has been up.

Thus the total amount it has cost us students is over $240, and every year the fence remains standing, it costs us $120 or more.

We sincerely hope the University and the Maintenance and Operations Department will take these figures and ponder seriously over them. We hope they will find it in their hearts to amend the matter and help us students to save money as well as time and wear and tear on our feet.

Letter To The Editor

Sense Of Value Lost By Trophies

Dear Editor:

The last page of the Kernel of April 10, 1953, made me sick at my stomach. I have developed a hypersensitivity against the carefree abandon with which various organizations distribute worthless (in achievement) trophies.

The picture shown in the Kernel with several students holding trophies behind a table with more trophies for the Push Cart Derby shows exactly what I mean. The large trophies on the table look like they weigh in the neighborhood of 10 pounds each and they rival the trophies given for the state high school basketball tournaments. These trophies no doubt will be given to some college adolescent who enters the prettiest push cart, or who can push a push cart faster than anyone else on the campus. From the mental age of the individuals involved they should be pushed in kidly carts.

The trophy given for the winner of the NCAA basketball tournament won by UK several years ago would get lost on the table of push cart derby trophies. When someone wins a first place in the olympic games he or she wins a trophy approximately the size of a silver dollar but around UK you get a two-foot high trophy, engraved for being the owner of the prettiest polka-dot tie on the campus.

Where is our sense of value. The achievements for 95 percent of the trophies owned by organizations on this campus can be placed on the head of a pin.

If I had the money invested in these trophies given for foolishness every year I would own Calumet Farm and the Radio City Music Hall.

The Frying Pan

Time Set Back, Time Marches On, What Time Is It?

By KATHY FRYER

As a public service to Kernel readers, the Frying Pan will try to explain the new summer time setup at UK.

Starting Monday you will get up at five 'til seven instead of five 'til eight for your eight o'clock class. That's if you set your watch ahead, or a 12 o'clock class, that is. You can leave for the river while the sun is high and get back an hour later than before.

You will get hungry at the same time as usual, but you will have to eat an hour earlier if you have a one o'clock class, or a 12 o'clock class, that is. You can leave for the river while the sun is high and get back an hour later than before.

In other words, it will be the same as if UK were going on fast time, only they aren't, so the hours will be different from those in town even though classes are moved back an hour which means . . . Anyone for canasta? . . .

Red Tape At The Infirmary Causes Student To Pass Away

By QUENTIN ALLEN

"Yeah, Pete, I know you were a fisherman, but wait a minute, I want to tell my friends how I got here. Before I start I want to arrange this white fleecy stuff a mite.

"Another thing, Pete, take this thingajig you gave me. You know I can't carry a tune."

"Brother," Pete said, "remember your harp practice."

"Sure . . . brother."

I got a one-way ticket here the day I fell on a broken beer bottle on the parade grounds in front of the Administration Building at UK. A fountain of blood streaming from my arm painted my navy-blue sweater a bright red.

What got me that day was my attitude. I wasn't scared, I was terrified. One thought ran through my mind—to the sick bay, to the sick bay, to the sick bay!

I forgot a tourniquet. I ran to the infirmary. When I got there, I tried to get in the front door. The door was locked, so I pounded it a little.

"Get the hell away from that front door. Wanda disturb the patients?" Someone was in a tough mood, I remember. But, I, like most other people here, turned the other cheek.

"I've got to get in. I'm in bad shape. Cut half my arm off." The words came out short and rasping.

"I bet," came the caustic reply. "If you want some attention here, you had better go to the back entrance."

I grabbed my arm tight as I started to the back entrance. Shock was setting in.

Someone remarked that I looked like a walking robin red breast as I ambled to the back. I fell down the steps and smacked the door a hard kick with my head.

"Sorry, but it is now three seconds past 3 o'clock. You must go to the front entrance if you want treatment."

"But, man, a beer . . ." and was cut off.

"For delirium tremens you have to go to the front door," someone sang. I went.

I buzzed the buzzer. A maiden of mercy opened the door. "Please come in," she said pleasantly. What's the matter, a cold? I held my arm in front of her nose. She led me downstairs.

"Name, please," she asked while walking behind a large desk.

"For goodness-sakes-alive woman, can't you wait until I get my arm treated?"

She said, "I'm sorry, but we can't treat you without confirming your enrollment as a student. Someone oughting try to take some of the University's money, you know."

"Yeah, yeah, miss. My name is Horace Hemophilia of Hoboken, Kentucky."

She leisurely fingered through the files. Now I felt my strength slowly ebbing out.

"I'm sorry, but your name isn't listed. You'll have to go to the registrar's office for confirmation."

I broke down at this. By accident some hand fell on her desk. She promptly pressed a button and two orderlies appeared. Next thing I knew I was staring at the Administration Building.

After I returned I was staggering. "Here's proof I'm in the University."

"I'm required to make out a card for you. What's your name, your girl friend's Dad's age, the residence of your grandfather's sister-in-law's half niece?"

"My grandfather's sister-in-law's half niece? Can I use your phone?" During the time my parents called their relatives, I begged, pleaded, entreated, and attempted to bribe them to stop the blood . . . if only to keep the floor from getting messy.

The phone rang and it was for me. The nurse didn't want to let me answer, but I finally convinced her my name is Horace Hemophilia.

"With all the red-tape out of the way, I took my place on the bench. A whiz in white stuck a thermometer in my mouth and asked, 'Got a Cold?'

I started to move my left hand in protest, but the blood on my sweater had coagulated around my hand. I was too weak to move my hand out of that sticky mess.

"You'll have to wait a few moments. There's a couple of emergency cases ahead of you. One girl has the sniffles and the fat girl over there declines to say what's the matter with her. By the way what's the matter with you?"

I swung my bloody arm to show her.

"Cold, eh?" she commented.

I was now in a half-stupor, as I remember it. The room, for some reason, was turning blacker by the minute. The doctor came out.

"Hello, Hemophilia, how's your sister, Chlorophyll? Got a Cold? Now let's see what the thermometer says. Can't be too careful. That's a low temperature, zero! My gosh, that indicates you're dead!"

Yeah, I'm dead. As the inner-me moved away I heard the doctor say, "Well, probably died of pneumonia."

I've got to go now. Pete is beckoning to me. He wants me to go to harp practice. I think we're going to make an appearance for the Big Boss somewhere near the next hundred years and we have to get to practice.

Law College To Offer An Additional Degree

The College of Law is now authorized to award an additional degree, E. J. Stahr, Jr., dean of the Law College, said this week.

The UK Board of Trustees in their last meeting approved the recommendation of the law faculty and the university faculty to award qualified students on the "two-four" law program the extra degree.

"Two-four" students, of which there are three presently enrolled at the Law School, are those who take two years of pre-law for the Bachelor of Science Law degree and then four years of the regular law school curriculum to receive their professional law degree of LL.B.

Under the new plan, those "two-four" students may qualify for two degrees, as many of the "three-three" students do now.

The first degree, which the "three-three" students receive, is awarded at the end of three years. The professional degree, or the LL.B., is given to students at the end of their sixth year.

This new degree has been designed for the benefit of students who wish to enter the two-four law program. Students who enter law school after three years of pre-law will continue to be eligible for the A.B. degree or the B.S. in Commerce if they are enrolled in one of the recognized "combined degree" programs, and will receive such a degree after their first year in law school. Such students can qualify for the LL.B. degree at the end of their third year in law school. A total of six years of college training are required for the LL.B. degree in any case.

Details on the new B.S. degree can be secured at Dean Stahr's office in the law building.

Political Scientist Blames Public In Witch Hunts For Subversives

By FRANK MARNIHOIT Politicians are forced into their "witch hunts" for subversives by the American public, said Dr. Robert E. Cushman, one of the nation's leading political scientists, in the sixth Blazer lecture Tuesday night in Guignol Theater. The public is doing so by clamoring for a clean house in America and, therefore, weakening its civil liberty rights, he added.

Dr. Cushman said that these attempts to dig out subversives in the American scene are being bungled by politicians, are using the investigations for gaining political popularity, and led by competent men on accomplishing a useful end. The activities of the Kefauver Committee and the Fulbright Committee were cited by the speaker as examples of "good" important service. Dr. Cushman's criticism was public as to who is dilatory and what is a complete disregard for "civil liberties."

The lecturer pointed out that the investigating committees now carrying on the "witch hunt" stand indicted on two counts. First, they are usurping the powers of a court; they punish, yet have no permissible powers to do so. And secondly, they use the wrong procedures, for the accused has no judicial protection of any sort.

Dr. Cushman contended that the powers of these committees are getting out of proportion to their uses. They do not have punitive powers, yet the mere summons from one of them is punishment. They follow no set rules as do civil courts and offer no chance for a person to present a defense.

Most investigating committees have a useful place when conducted right and led by competent men bent on accomplishing a useful end. The published results were negative compared to the undefended cases. Their greatest punishment he says is in the publication of names. They do not publish whether or not a person is guilty, but merely leave therefore him branded with a "red seal."

To illustrate his case, Dr. Cushman said that when a few cases were allowed to defend themselves, the published results were negative compared to the undefended cases. Their greatest punishment he says is in the publication of names. They do not publish whether or not a person is guilty, but merely leave therefore him branded with a "red seal."

The political scientist went on to say that now that the "Red Hunter" have run out of available bait they have started a drive for subversives "by guilt by association." This accusation of guilt by association is dangerous in that it puts the "red seal" on many innocent victims, who, through no fault of their own, had associated with a "Red," given him money, or known someone who was a communist. It plays into the hands of party line by discrediting decent and innocent people, and is danger-

eously misleading the American public as to who is dilatory and what is a complete disregard for "civil liberties."

The speaker gave as an example of how far these "red hunters" are being carried the fact that states and cities are adopting anti-communistic laws. Dr. Cushman questioned the value of these state and city laws for the country's security, and pointed out that in some cases they have been ruled un-constitutional.

Dr. Cushman reiterated throughout his lecture that personal blame should be put upon the public. The public has demanded these hunts, and then given national acclaim to the politicians conducting them. Politicians, seeing benefit from this type of investigation, have brought it into the open. In Congress 188 out of 260 Republican congressmen applied for the House Un-American Investigating Committee. These political opportunists have taken advantage of their position and are now in a powerful position. One too powerful for its position of national importance, Dr. Cushman said.

He recommended that these investigations be carried on by special committees with no political preference. They should be conducted by competent men without political ambitions and who will represent the American scene truthfully, he added.

Dr. Cushman has recently been working with a group of scholars on a study of civil liberties, financed by the Rockefeller Foundation. The study is almost finished and Dr. Cushman will round out this complete study by publishing a summary of the last four years study by the group.

Spiked Shoe Relays Feature Olympian

Twenty-Five Scholastic And Fraternity Teams To Compete In Events

Mal Whitfield, twice olympic winner and holder of four indoor world track records and three outdoor world records, will be featured at the fifth annual Spiked Shoe Relays Tuesday afternoon and night on Stoll Field.

The first session will begin at 1:30 (daylight saving time) and will include the high school field contests. At 7:30, the relay events will get under way for high schools and fraternities. The $80 and 440 yard exhibition by Whitfield will take place at 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. respectively.

Whitfield Out To Set World Mark
In addition to relay and field events, Whitfield will make an attempt to better the outdoor world record in the 800-yard run which he holds in his right hand. In his quest for the record, Whitfield is the former Ohio State track star who has gone on to greater heights in the past two Olympic games in which he has won two firsts to aid the United States cause.

Three Kentucky runners and two high school 880 men will race against Whitfield with the various based on a comparison of their best time of the year and Whitfield's best time. The high school runners are now being picked by the Spiked Shoe Society from the best times of each boy submitted by the various participating coaches, according to Jay Wallace, publicity man for the society and past president.

25 High Schools Entered
As far as participating schools and interest is concerned, Wallace feels that this will be the biggest relay held by the Society. Already twenty-five schools have entered teams.

The sportlite turns, this week, to the grid practice field where head banging in the "Like Time Practice" has started. Supposedly, a young man's fancy turns to love in the spring time but the originator of this old adage didn't take into consideration the 73 men, for whom spring brings only a rough and tough football practice session of twenty days.

Especially this year when the one-platoon transformation has to take place under the capable tutorage of Coach Bryant and his competent staff of coaches.

This year's spring brain busting began Monday after a week's delay due to inclement weather. The transformation has given this practice a "Til he back next year or bust" air on the part of the boys who haven't been given a chance on paper of fitting into the new system.

Seventy-three men reported for practice Monday and already this list has been cut somewhat. But for the remaining crew, the tackling, blocking, running is serving its purpose. It is showing Coach Bryant which men will be able to stand the grind of playing six minutes and who will be proficient enough at both offense and defense to be around come September.

From all appearances, each of these 73 aspirants will be present when fall grid roll is called if they have their way. The sweat, tears and strain will tell.

In wandering around the practice field, we found such defensive stalwarts as Howie Schnellberger, Joe Koch, Duke Hennessey, Dick Maloney, Joe Platt, Dick Rushing and Tommy Atkins, passing the ball, receiving it or carrying out foreign offensive blocking assignments. John Bailey, Jim Schenk, Jim Proffitt and Dick Mitchell attempting the switch from offense to defensive play making and stopping, are strange sights, indeed.

It will indeed, be a strange sight when kickoff time rolls around on September 19.

At least one faction will be happier with the whole situation. They are the corps of sports writers, radio announcers and sporters who have had to put up with mass substitution in the last ten years or so. This is little consolation to Coach Bryant who has to make the change but, no doubt, his prowess as a grid mentor hasn't been based on the two-platoon system alone.

The Spiked Shoe Relay, sponsored by the Kentucky chapter Tuesday should be one of the biggest track events to be held in these parts in quite a while.

Composing the program will be relay teams from 25 state high schools, fraternity teams plus the appearance of Olympic runner, Mal Whitfield; twice Olympic 880 winner.

Whitfield will be the third two-time Olympic runner to show his talents on the Stoll Field track in the five years that this event has been held here. The other two were Harrison Dilard, Junior champ and Bob Richards, the vaulting parson, in the pole vault.

Whitfield has definitely said that he will make an attempt to better the world record in the 880 yard run here. So the Spiked Shoe society has gone out and had the track surveyed, sent to a national precision watch firm for time watches and asked the engineering department to bring over an instrument to determine the velocity of the wind.

Everything possible has been done to aid the former Ohio State track star in breaking the present mark which he holds in tie with Sid Wooderson of Great Britain.

Tomorrow is that big day for the UK track and baseball squads when they fly back to the University of Tennessee on Stoll Field track and the baseball field. The cost of both these events is 1-D cards for students, free for instructors and only 50 cents for townspeople.

We said in last week's column that we hoped at least 1000 fans would turn out early for the track meet at 12:30 and the baseball game at 2 p.m. It will be worth your while.

Wedding bells will ring tonight for UK golf coach Johnny Owens in Henderson. The vows will be taken by Owens and Miss Mary Crafton, another UK alum.

Meanwhile his golf proteges will be taking part in the Kentucky Inter-collegiate tournament in Shelbyville. This shouldn't hinder their winning ways and an eagle to you Johnny, may married life not hinder your trips to the golf course.

Rumor (on the grid-vine) has it that, supposedly, eight players have quit football after a rough and tough first two days. Among those dropping the sport are: Don Dyer, who plans to graduate in June; Bill Evans, quarterback from Louisville; Bill White, quarterback switched to an end this spring; Jim Carrico, veteran, who tried out on his own; Tom Black, a good prospect from Texarkana; Paul Head; Bill Gilliam tentatively has dropped; Norb Gagel, an end from Louisville; Guy Tracy, fullback from Bellevue, and Earl Carter, halfback from Louisville, dropped because of a bad knee. This obituary column should continue as the squad gets down to size for the one-platoon system.

ARE YOU TOUGH ENOUGH FOR THIS JOB?

If you can make the grade, the U.S. Air Force will award you a commission, your wings and pay you over $5,000 a year!

CAN YOU "take it" 6 days a week? For 52 weeks? Can you meet the high standards required to be an Aviation Cadet? If you can—then here's a man-size opportunity! An opportunity to serve your country and build a personal career that will fit you for responsible positions both in military and commercial aviation.

It won't be easy! Training discipline for Aviation Cadets is rigid. You'll work hard, study hard, play hard—especially for the first few weeks. But when it's over, you'll be a pro—with a career ahead of you that will take you as far as you want to go. You graduate as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force, with pay of $5,300.00 a year. And this is only the beginning—your opportunities for advancement are unlimited.

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE?

To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must have completed at least two years of college. This is a minimum requirement—it's best if you stay in school and graduate. In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

YOU CAN CHOOSE BETWEEN PILOT OR AIRCRAFT OBSERVER

If you choose to be an Aircraft Observer, your training will be in Navigation, Bombardment, Radar Operation or Aircraft Performance Engineering.

New Aviation Cadet Training Classes Begin Every Few Weeks!

- HERE'S WHAT TO DO:
1. Take a transcript of your college credits and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.
 2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will arrange for you to take a physical examination.
 3. Next, you will be given a written and manual aptitude test.
 4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet Training Class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

Big Moths from Little Silkworms GROW

Once there was a Biology Professor named Charlie Edwards. Charlie was a likable chap, but the strain of marking exams was a little too much for him. Finally, one day, he completely flipped his lid. Crawling on his belly, he informed startled students and faculty members alike that he was, indeed, a silkworm!

He hurried to his room, grabbed a spool of silk thread, and built a huge cocoon around him. Day after day he stayed in his cocoon, repeating over and over, "I am a silkworm! I am a silkworm! I am a silkworm!"

The other members of the faculty held a meeting to decide what was to be done with poor Charlie. "We got it!" cried Bob Sutton, a physics instructor, leaping to his feet. He explained his plan... and the other professors agreed. They hurried down to the Van Heusen dealer and bought a few Vanisun Sport Shirts.

"Look, Charlie," they said to Professor Edwards. "These smart new Van Heusen Vanisun Sport Shirts look exactly like silk. They feel like silk. They're handsomely tailored in the season's smartest new colors. Yet they cost only $4.95 apiece... far less than silk sport shirts. So you see, you're wasting your time being a silkworm!"

Charlie Edwards peered over the top of his cocoon and examined the good-looking Van Heusen Vanisun Sport Shirt.

"Egad, you're right!" he shouted, leaping out of his cocoon and flapping his arms wildly. "Now I can turn into a moth and fly away!"

UK Tracksters Win; Face Vols Tomorrow

The UK tracksters will place their undefeated record on the line tomorrow when they take on arch rival Tennessee in a dual track meet here.

Not only will the record be at stake but the barriers will be trying to average their loss at the hands of Tennessee last season in the meet there.

In cross country competition this fall, the barriers defeated the Vols in a dual meet but bowed twice, once in the Shamrock Run and again in the SEC meet. These losses will be remembered by some of the distance men.

Cats Edge Sewanee, 69-62. Contending on nine first places, the Wildcats trounced edged the Sewanee squad, 69-62, last week-end at Sewanee, Tennessee. The meet was run under extremely adverse weather conditions as coldness and fog hampered the Vols.

Sewanee's Skip Criddle halsted down high scoring honors with 13 points in first place wins.

In three college years, you can prepare for the attractive profession of optometry. If you have a minimum of sixty required Liberal Arts credits, there is a shortage of optometrists in many States. Tips On 'Run For Roses' Passed On To Devotees

By JOHN NEWLAND "They're off," came the cry from the public address and thousands of racing fans watched eagerly as the horses went around the turns and then started for home.

The people crowded the rails and others stood in their boxes in a vain attempt to see who won the "Run for the Roses."

This scene is re-lived every year around the first of May when Derby Day comes around. Fans crowd into Louisville annually for this great racing classic, and to sip the most famous of all drinks, the milk julep.

With the big race only a week away, the experts are scratching their heads in an attempt to predict the outcome of the Derby. They check the record books to see what each nominee has done in the past that kind of breeding, he or she has, and who the trainer and jockey will be.

Native Dancer Favored Native Dancer is listed as the even-money favorite in the Auga Caliente future-book. Unbeaten in 10 starts last year and winner of the Gotham Stakes at Jamaica Saturday, his 1953 debut, Native Dancer became the shortest-priced future-book favorite in the history of the Derby at 1-1.

The Caliente book lists Royal Bay Gem at 7 to 2; Correspondent and Straight Fate, 4 to 1; Invigorator and LaFanzo, 7 to 1; Money Broker and Tahitian King, 12 to 1; Cerise Reine, 20 to 1; Jamie K., 25 to 1; and Dark Star, 30 to 1.

Calumet Farm, who holds about every record in the Derby except winning with a filly, have readied Bobbley and Breeze By for the classic, but neither one has showed enough to rate being entered. Knowing Ben Jones though, you can't rule the pair out. Remember Ponder in 1949?

Araczo rides Correspondent, and it appears like he will, this writer will go along with the California horse to cop the Kentucky Derby in 1953. Araczo has already entered the winners circle five times, two more than his nearest rival, and is a favorite with many racing fans.

The first recorded race meeting in North America was held in Virginia before the defeat of General Braddock in 1773. They were the results of a halation celebration and Army remnants were used as the contestants.

Since those distant days the sport has advanced in popularity, and now racing is held somewhere in the United States the year around and at more than 60 recognized tracks. The most important racing events are the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, and the Belmont, which comprise the Triple Crown, and the Santa Anita Handicap.

Are you one of the hundred thousand people who will attend the Kentucky Derby this year? If you are, then these points of interest will be helpful in making the day more pleasant.

If you are less than 10 feet tall and are not fortunate enough to rate a box, take along a step ladder of the same dimensions to aid you in watching the race. You may feel silly when you enter the grounds, (Continued on page 8)

Weatherman Finally Allows Spring Practice To Start

Coach Paul Bear Bryant and his UK gridlers finally began spring football practice, Monday, after several postponements due to weather.

The weather almost caused another delay, but Bryant, seeing that the boys were anxious to get started, gave his okay.

A squad of 73, including 11 seniors, 19 juniors, 42 sophomores, and only two freshmen, Twyman Patterson, a tackle from Louisville, and Jimmy Garrison, a guard from Springfield, reported for the initial drill. There are 36 lettermen, but only nine of those have earned more than one letter.

Three lettermen, Lou Karbo, Don Dyer, and Allen Felch were not among those seeking varsity berths. Karbo, tiny scabback from Louisville, will still be with the squad, but this time as student manager.

Dyer, a guard from Morristown, Tenn., had one year of eligibility remaining, but decided against returning to school next fall, since he will have enough credits to graduate this June.

The other letterman, Allen Felch, stock fullback from Marinette, Wis., dropped out of school several weeks ago because of study difficulties. Felch, who was first-string offensive fullback last fall, was being counted on very heavily to carry much of the Wildcats' '33 ground attack.

Tackles—John Baily, Arvon Bivin, Jim Burns, Jack Butler, Bob Copeland, George Fuller, Tom Harper, Ken Letz, Jerry Mings, Twyman Patterson, Jim Schenk, and Bill Wheeler.

Guards—Jack Bundy, Ken Cobb, Ray Correll, Duke Cornutte, Jack Kason, Joe Koch, Neil Lowry, Clarence

Mitchell, Clark Ratelle, and Joe Smart.

Centers—Tommy Atkins, Jesse Cotton, O. E. Philips, Bill Simpkins, Leo Strange, and Ken White.

Quarterbacks—Bob Hardy, Herb Hunt, Bob Phillips, Dick Rushing, Dick Shatto, and Miles Willard.

Fullbacks—Don Bowman, Tony Chicino, Jack Hanley, Hayden Hooper, Ralph Paulson, and Ken Williams.

This far, workouts have been divided into three sessions, beginning with drill on fundamentals; running through plays, tackling and blocking.

The second period was devoted to work against passing, and the third to running scrimmage.

Breckinridge Recaps Past Fencing Year

By DICK PURKINS

Fencing Coach Scott Breckinridge, in discussing the prospects for the 1954 season, said that the success or failure of that team would depend on several things.

He said that Breckinridge spoke of as follows:

1. If Bruce Poundstone, whom he describes as extremely promising, is able to participate. Poundstone was being counted on heavily the past season, but due to an extra-heavy schedule, was unable to take part in any UK matches, and very few workouts.

2. If Bill Hartley, Bob Adams and Henry Jaggers are able to overcome schedule or work troubles. Hartley and Adams were outstanding last season and should develop if they have enough time to devote to their sport.

3. If Al Lupinetti progresses as expected. Although Lupinetti failed to fence, he, nevertheless, got valuable experience and looks promising.

4. If the former Wildcat, Bill Hancock returns. This, pointed out Breckinridge is very doubtful, and not even in future consideration.

While the Cats do not lose many from the 1953 squad in quantity, they make up for it in quality. Only two swordsmen, Captain Bill Seiler and Paul Wright, will not be around when the steel begins to clang in '54.

Seller's Record Best In UK History
Seller, who compiled the best one year record in UK fencing history (23-0), has been the backbone of the Cat squad for the last three years. Of the six bouts which Seller dropped, at least five and possibly all were lost by a single touch. Needless to say, his loss will be felt.

Wright was Kentucky's number two man on the strong foil team. After earning his letter in sabre during his sophomore year, he was in an accident and suffered a knee injury. He returned this season after a one year lay off and consistently dropped two out of three bouts per meet.

Coach Breckinridge hinted that, if the '54 run in his favor, his '34 team should stack up this way: lettermen Lee Shine and Tom Prather, and Poundstone in sabre; an entire veteran squad of Bob Dodson, Charles Whitton, and Ed Sternberg in epee; lettermen John Whittenberg, Lupinetti, and probably Hartley in foil.

Breckinridge, in looking back over the past season, said that he was well pleased, except for the Indiana match, which he thought the Cats should have won. He pointed out that his bladesmen defeated Cincinnati, Louisville, and Vanderbilt twice each; in every case they defeated them worse the second time, showing the progress and improvement as the season passed.

The following is a summary of how the Cats compiled their 6-4 record:

Kentucky 5—Vanderbilt 4
Kentucky 14—Cincinnati 13
Kentucky 14—Louisville 13
Kentucky 11—Chicago 16
Kentucky 10—N. Dame 17
Kentucky 4—Illinois 22
Kentucky 11—Indiana 16
Kentucky 16—Louisville 11
Kentucky 6—Vanderbilt 3
Kentucky 15—Cincinnati 12

"How do you spell relief?" asked the teacher.

"WPA," answered Shirley Ann quickly.

Baseballers Win First Two From Vanderbilt

By DICK PURKINS

The University of Kentucky Wildcat baseball team won their first two games of the season Monday and Tuesday as they swept a series with the Vanderbilt Commodores at Nashville, 9-6 and 10-7.

The Cat Diamonders open another home schedule when they face the University of Tennessee this afternoon and tomorrow for the first time this season. Today's game begins at 3 p.m. and tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Last year, the Kentucky squad took only one of three games with the Yels, and one was rained out here in Lexington at the end of the season. The Tennessee squad will be tough again this year with a lot of veterans returning.

Meet Monday Here
Monday, Centre will provide the competition here in Lexington for the UK baseballers. Centre really ruffled the Cats last year before losing 10-7 and also have a quantity of veterans returning. Third baseman Jack Speller and second baseman Ben Williams have been the sparkplugs for the past three years. They both played ball with Harry and Larry Jones at Louisville Manual.

The next afternoon Georgetown will make the trek here to Stoll Field to try their wares against Coach Lancaster's crew. Last year saw the Kentucky squad downing the boys from Georgetown, 9-6 in the last game of the season. This game will also get under way at 2:15.

Diamonders Win First Of Season
The Wildcats combined eight hits along with eight Commodore errors in raising their SEC record to 1-6, as they downed Vanderbilt, 9-6.

The score was tied 6-6 going into the top of the eighth when the Wildcats scored three runs to win the game. In the eighth inning Billy Evans stepped to the plate with two miles on base. Evans lined a sharp single to centerfield, which the centerfielder allowed to get by him, allowing Evans to score all the way from first base with two runners scoring ahead of him.

Hugh Coy started on the mound for the Cats and pitched until the seventh when he was replaced by Don House during a four-run Commodore outburst. Jess Curry came on to finish the game for the Wildcats. Coy held the Commodores scoreless during the first five innings.

Summary: R. H. E.
Kentucky.....001 002 338-9 8 3
Vandy.....000 002 400-9 11 8

Batteries: UK—Coy, House, Curry and Morris; Middif, Vandy—Hooper, Beck, and Miller.

Cats Win Second In Row, 10-7
The Wildcats made it two wins in row Tuesday as they again blasted the Commodores by a score of 10 to 7. However, it took the Cats 11 innings to win victory number two for the season. Billy Evans smacked a four-run homer in the ninth inning to overcome a 5-3 Vandy lead and to enable the Cats to go into extra innings.

For the second straight day Vandy errors enabled the Cats to take the contest. In the 11th inning, the Wildcats combined Commodore errors and wild pitches to score four unearned runs which proved to be their margin of victory. The Vandy nine rallied in the last of the 11th, but they were unable to score, but one run off Jess Curry.

Paul Grameweyer started on the hill for the Wildcats and pitched until the fifth inning when he was relieved by Curry who finished the game and received credit for the victory.

Vandy tied the score at six all in the bottom of the ninth, following Evans' fourth run homer, forcing the game into extra innings. Neither team scored in the 10th setting the stage for the big 11th inning rally by the Wildcats.

Summary: R. H. E.
Kentucky.....000 100 005 04-10 13 4
Vandy.....010 002 111 01-7 11 6

Derby Tips Given

Better Get There Early
Maybe you can't get hold of a step ladder, then what? Another solution is to get there before the ticket office opens and be one of the first to crowd to the infield of the track. Then you can get next to the rail and maybe see the horses pass you.

What to take with you? If you are one of the early birds, take along a basket lunch to satisfy your hunger, and a blanket so as to catch up on your sleep; that is, until you get a foot in your face.

The track concessions have developed a solution for the short, timid people. Vendors provide you with sawed-off orange crates to stand on, at a small nominal fee of $2.50.

If you take my advice and take the objects above you to the Derby, let me know how they work out. I may try them myself.

Unenthusiastic Crowd Hears Kirsten, Conley At Coliseum

By JEAN GRANT

Dorothy Kirsten and Eugene Conley, both of the Metropolitan Opera, were presented Monday night in a recital sponsored by the Community Concert and Lecture Association.

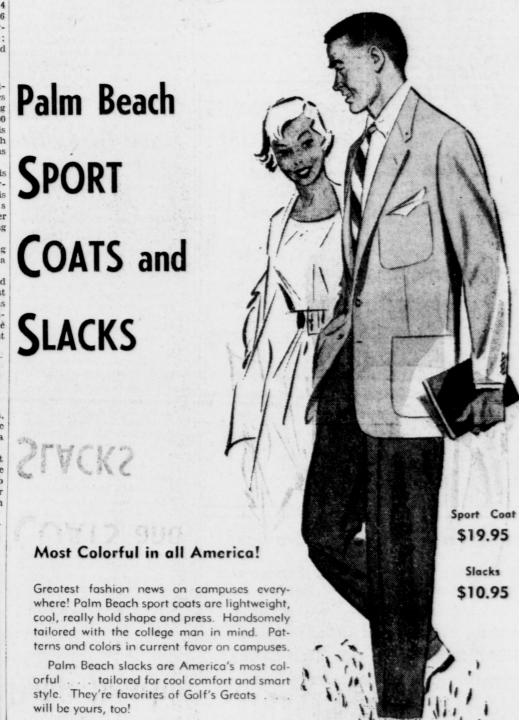

In contrast to most of the past Community concert audiences which have been almost wildly receptive and quite appreciative of anyone on the stage, the Monday night audience was unusually hard-shelled. They did warm up to the singers following intermission, however, but there were no requests for encores before that time.

Miss Kirsten chose several colorful selections for her solos. They included "Care Selves" by Hindel, "The Nightingale and the Rose" by Rimsky-Korsakoff, "Southern Song" by Ronald "Vusi d'arte" by Puccini, and "Deplus le Jour" by Charpentier.

Mr. Conley seemed flustered at the start of the program, but apparently recovered after a short consultation with the accompanist.
