

Kentucky Wins Fourth Consecutive Drill Meet Held by Pershing Rifles

General Pershing Presents Trophy Cups to Winning Companies INDIVIDUAL DRILL IS WON BY BULLOCK Ohio State Team is Second in the Competition; Illinois Third

Performing before General John J. Pershing, the University of Kentucky won the Pershing Rifle drill competition for the fourth consecutive time last Friday at Columbus, Ohio. Harry Bullock, a sophomore of the University, won the individual competitive drill.

Two thousand persons witnessed the exhibition at the Fair Grounds Coliseum. General Pershing, who founded the organization 40 years ago, presented the trophy cups to the winning companies.

Ohio State University's team was second, the University of Illinois was third, and the Universities of Dayton, Cincinnati, and Indiana placed in that order.

The University of Kentucky unit journeyed to Columbus in a conveyer of 13 motor cars and officers affiliated with the unit. The conveyer was met by an escort at the city limits of Columbus and escorted to their destination.

This is the organization's first year under their drill master, Captain L. C. Scudder. Captain Scudder was transferred here last fall to replace Warrant Officer George Knight, who was transferred to the unit under the command of Cadet First Lieutenant Oscar Reuter, a senior in the College of Engineering.

Cadet Harry Bullock, Lexington, a sophomore in the College of Arts and Science, won the individual competitive drill over the representatives of all the units in the Fifth Corps area.

The University unit was entertained with a dance Saturday night at Ohio State University. They returned to Lexington via motor cars Sunday.

Pershing Rifles was founded by Gen. J. Pershing at the University of Nebraska 40 years ago. General Pershing, then Lieutenant Pershing, was professor of military science and tactics at that university. The unit was called Varsity Rifles. Until recently, the organization was local, but another university petitioned for a chapter, which was granted, and then a program was set on to extend the organization. A few years ago it was re-named the Pershing Rifles in honor of its founder.

PUBLIC DEPENDS PROMPT ACTION ON PATMAN BILL

Telegrams Exceeding 150,000 Have Been Received by President and Senate Favoring Bonus

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(INS)—Rumors of a new administration effort to compromise the cash bonus issue spread through the capital today as an aroused public stormed the White House and Senate with telegrams demanding enactment of the Patman Bill.

Officials estimated the tide of telegrams to President Roosevelt and Senator Pat Harrison (D) Mississippi, head of the Senate Finance committee, Harrison sponsored one previous compromise, which the Senate rejected in favor of the Vinson bill that later was discarded in favor of the Patman bill.

The Patman bill appeared to be gaining support in the Senate despite confidential polls which showed the President's expected veto would be sustained. There were numerous reports of a change in administration ranks as a result of a series of statements in favor of the immediate enactment into law.

Observers were unable to identify any Senators now ready to support the bill after having previously opposed it.

They will play at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, on Saturday. The varsity tennis team will play at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, on Saturday.

German Students Present Two New One Act Dramas

Music Is Furnished Between Acts by Little German Band

The players of the University German club, under the direction of A. E. Bigge, head of the German department, presented two one-act plays Saturday night at the University Training school.

The first, "The House of the Dead," by Fritz and Wiedler Fritze, concerned the arrival of a cousin to the household of a modern New York family.

The second, "The Wagoner's Wife," by Fritz Lehndorfer, dealt with a family in Germany that was anxiously awaiting the return of the daughter's suitor.

These relatives, the sister of the father and her new husband, refused to leave even though the suitor was expected to propose that night.

Another record, not pertaining to the mile event, was set by the University of Kentucky 120 relay team, which covered this distance in 24.3 seconds.

THE LAST LAP

But two weeks remain until the close of the last semester of this school year. To me this period will be filled with encouragement; to others it will bring only failure and discouragement. A part of us will think only of the approaching holidays. To these few days that remain will be uncomfortable ones—ones in which they merely mark time while hating each day until it has run its course. However, the greater part of us will realize that only a short time remains to accomplish that which we have been putting off all year and we shall feel constrained to take advantage of these few short days which remain before us. Thus we shall have a real feeling of accomplishment by June.

There has been a tendency for many of us to forget the parent angle of the situation. We have come to believe that dating every night, "making" all the dances, being initiated into various organizations, and having a host of friends are the principal requirements of our college life. Although these must be given their fair share of importance, we must realize that the "folks back home" are judging this year by the grades which we receive in our various courses.

Throughout the first semester the freshmen could justify themselves to a certain extent in feeling that they had not become properly adjusted to college life. Inability to budget their time and the failure to recognize that continuous daily work is required to successfully complete a course was responsible for a number of disheartened undergraduates.

But that time is past. Those students who are "real" college material have by now realized what a college curriculum requires of them. Many parents, especially those of freshmen, are pondering whether or not they should send their "Billy" or "Betty" back to the University next year. This question will be answered to a considerable extent by what that son or daughter has accomplished this semester.

The upperclassmen, for the most part, have by this time a more balanced conception of their work. They need only remember that much can yet be done toward "making the grade."

Let us then all have a definite goal in view. Let us "hit in stride" the papers and theses, and hold ourselves in readiness for the "finals." Thus shall be felt justly proud of our accomplishments when being to a close our semester's work.

THE COLLEGIATE CYNIC

Abbe Ernest Dimmet, author of the "Art of Thinking" and other philosophical works, describes true cynicism as merely "self-confidence in contempt." By the college conviction that no one is better than one's self. Collegiate cynicism, on the other hand, is usually a concoction formulated from a more or less "light a Murad" attitude combined with a forced degree of pessimism by which most of the standards of the world, these characteristics are of no distinct value in attaining success, but on the campus they seem to halo the youthful cynic's head, giving him a certain air or mark of distinction among students who are carefree, indolent, or even conscientiously earnest.

The campus "man-about-town" is commonly seen in the corner drug store, "oaking," or in the beer gardens, "guzzling." There he sits dully for hours, squinting self-esteemedly through a veil of cigarette smoke while nonchalantly tapping ashes on the floor. He assumes an air of indifference to things material, attends classes as he chooses and prides himself on his large number of girlfriends, bringing them into his conversation to show his devil-may-care attitude.

THE COLLEGE AND THE DEPRESSION

With regard to what colleges have learned from the depression, undergraduate editors have been unjustly accused of a "rather indeterminate and irresponsible flow of language," college authorities have been reproved for "temporizing with the present situation rather than meeting it constructively"; faculty members and trustee conservatives have been charged with sitting back twiddling their thumbs and waiting for the economic crisis to "blow over" and for their salaries to be raised again to the point of satiety. To the ordinary laymen these accusations are more or less justifiable; some others regard them much more skeptically.

Through a correspondence carried on with the presidents of the leading educational institutions of the nation one of the larger publishing houses of the country has found, however, that this was not the case, that undergraduates and college presidents have regarded the depression with as much seriousness as do congressmen, businessmen and others. Through the response received to this inquiry the following conclusions were drawn:

"That the college fully realizes that the depression with its many sorrows and its many gains, has not and grown in the same leaky boat; that the college does not pull its full weight on the oars by sending a few 'brain trusters' to Washington to fabricate Utopias, but owes the community from which it emerges every last pound of intellectual energy and insight for the development of an electorate competent to meet the issues of the present; that the college has no desire to pamper itself in intellectual seclusion while the rest of the world and sweat in a world gone wild; that the few academic exiles of the campus may be selfish in their indifference to progress as is miserliness on the part of those who have fattened on industrial privilege; that the pride of scholarly tradition, which refuses to college work an understanding of the present-day confusions into which they are walking the plank, may be just as reprehensible as the greed of capital which these isolationists are so quick to condemn."

"In spite of local stringencies and enforced detours, the college, as primarily a teaching institution can and will adapt its program to the needs of its clientele. The university, though not wholly free, of economic depression, must see also that it does not lose its own soul, independence, or integrity, in an effort to placate powerful though selfish interests. And this is a problem"—The Tiger, Clemson College.

CAN COLLEGE YOUTH TURN THE TIDE?

Internationalism has been "taking it on the chin." With European nations crawling farther within their shells of nationalism, our Senate rejecting the World Court, and French medical students more recently striking in protest of the presence of foreign students in their universities, the realization of the dream of Wilson and others of a brotherhood of nations, which would minimize the importance of artificial boundaries and settle differences by other means than blood, seems more distant than ever.

What makes the picture a shade brighter, however, is the existence of college youth to a new interest in international politics. The last few years have been marked by a mushroom growth of clubs engaged in the study of international problems throughout the country. National-wide organizations of students, including the National Student Federation of America and the Association of College Editors, have been unusually active in recent months in seeking to arouse American students through the college press to question ready-made doctrines of "patriotism" preached by the mighty Hearst and others.

Everything is status quo, and here we are back again, after a fine trip to Mammoth Cave with Lebus and Chauvet. We sponged all of the way to the cave—a night in the hotel at Horse Cave that is managed by that good looking alumnus, Bus Owen—a meal from that country school teacher, Norris Jolly, who was formerly the light of Alphaegan Betty Price's life—and passes to the cave from that old U. K. heartbreaker, Joe Billy Mansfield. If we are gaining nothing else in the University, we are making friends that mean something.

Flowers for Madame

The gardenias of the week go to the finest examples of feminine pulchritude that we have ever seen in Kentucky. The name is Miss Evelyn Carroll. She hails from that one-horse town called Georgetown by some people. She has been recommended by so many students that we feel that it is only right that she should be showered with gardenias. Incidentally, Evelyn went to go for Basil Baker and Basil seems to go for Kay Kennedy, and Kay seems to go for Labe Jackson. So what?

JEST AMONG US

"Send-a-Dime" letters have been started at the University of Southern California. But guess aren't the "Send-a-Dime" letters expensive enough?

Chandler charges Laffoon with an "administration of broken promises." We would rather call the effect of the sales tax, "broken nickels and dimes."

Byrd may have experienced many difficulties during his two years of polar exclusion, but at least he escaped the depression.

Headline—"Danish Count To Wed Princess Barbara." The Princess is rapidly becoming an American ambassador-at-large. However we feel that her talents and money could be used to better advantage in countries where the diplomatic relations are not so amiable.

Catch That Thief Last Thursday at 2:30 in the morning, the Tidwell heard a liltle noise. What? Robbers? Mary Ellice Spratt nearly lost consciousness. Some of the girls yelled for help. One called the cops. When the foolish Greek letter girls found out that their imagination had been over working, there were five squad cars in front of their Linden Walk abode, and neighbors were standing around in pajamas. Some say that the incident was caused by a certain Tidwell who was burning the midnight oil writing a theme entitled "Imagination."

An artist friend sends us this—

Gentlemen:

All my life I wanted to wear a necktie. But until Arrow shirts came along, the thing was simply impossible. I had a necktie. And I had a neck. But my shirts just wouldn't play ball!

I'd buy 'em too big, allowing for shrinkage, and they'd fool me. I'd buy 'em right, and they'd shrink two sizes in a heavy fog. Naturally I couldn't wear my tie with shirts like that!

One day I heard about Arrow Sanforized shirts--bought a few in my correct size--and now I am wearing a necktie--in one of the smoothest, best-fitting collars that ever graced my neck.

As to their durability, of course I can't say... I've only had my Arrow Trunks three years.

Sincerely,
GARDNER REA

Congratulations are in order for the fine manner in which Coach Bernie Shively and the Physical Education and Instruction departments handled the annual interscholastic track and field meet out on Still field last Saturday. Favorable weather, the meet went off smoothly from start to finish.

DuPont Manual High school of Louisville showed a well-balanced team and scored in every event on the program. In the final count, they clearly demonstrated their superiority over the large field, outscoring their nearest rival, Male high, also of Louisville, almost two to one.

Bonnell of Henderson was high individual man of the day with 14 points, though he was closely pressed for the honor by Jackson of Barbourville with a total of 13 points. At the close of the afternoon, Bonnell made an attempt to set a new state mark in the pole vault, an event which he had won earlier in the day, with a vault of 10 feet 6 inches.

The bar was set at 11 feet for the first try and Bonnell cleared it easily. It was then raised to 12 feet, 6 inches, and again he cleared the bar. When it was elevated to 12 feet, Bonnell had considerable trouble on his first two tries. On the third attempt he sailed up and over the crossbar, and the crowd began to cheer, but the clapping died immediately when on the way down his chest grazed the bar and knocked it from its precarious perch. If Bonnell had tried for the record mark earlier, when he was still fresh, he would doubtless have made it, but as it was, he was worn out from the several events he had participated in, besides a number of heats before the finals.

Before we go any further, we would like to make a correction of an item that appeared here in the last issue. In discussing Sam Sternberg, we mentioned that he might be the first University man to make the major league baseball grade. It has been called to our attention that Irvine Jeffries, one of the best athletes ever to represent Kentucky, played for some time with the Chicago White Sox. Jeffries played football and baseball with the freshman teams of the University, but left school midway in his sophomore year.

high school track meet, Dave Rogan, the "mule machine" from Middlesboro, ran an exhibition during which he again broke the University record for the distance, traveling it in 4:29 this trip.

Rogan's first quarter mile was completed in 59 seconds, a feat which he accomplished with a tempo that placed that time during one of his assaults on the existing mile mark.

This fast first quarter probably did not finish with his customary stretch "kick." However, the fact that he was running alone and had no previous opportunity to test his paces, probably accounts for his overextending himself at the start.

At any rate, his 4:29 mile was plenty fast and gave the crowd something to talk about. This corner has announced before, and continues to announce, that Rogan will be one of the outstanding milers of the South if he continues to improve as he has done this far.

Coach H. H. Downing is back at his desk and Jay Lucian and the members of the tennis team are busy preparing for the state tennis exams once more, after an eight day jaunt through the "Sunny South." Understand, however, that the South was not so sunny for a few days and this fact necessitated the cancellation of the matches with Tennessee and Georgia.

The team brought back glowing reports of the prowess of the Georgia Tech team. Reese, playing number 1 for the Tech team, is ranked third in the intercollegiate rankings by virtue of his gaining the semi-finals of the national intercollegiate tournament last season. Kentucky's team, after seeing Reese perform, expect that he will win the intercollegiate title this year.

At Auburn and Alabama, the thermometer rose to 94 degrees and the shade and no telling what it was in the sun. The Kentucky tour returned to Lexington with varying degrees of sunburn as a memento of the trip.

Manual High Is Track Meet Winner

Bonnell, performing with the Barrett Manual High school, Henderson, received the cup as high point man of the meet. He scored a first, second, third and fourth, for a total of 24 points. Bonnell won the pole vault event by clearing the bar at 10 feet, six inches, but at the close of the meet, in an exhibition effort to break the state record he vaulted a height of 11 feet, six inches, six inches short of the record.

Saddler, jumping under the colors of Summer Shade high school, lacked one-quarter inch of equaling the state record in the high jump. He won this event with a height of five feet 11 inches. The record was set by Best last year at a height of six feet, one-half inch.

Table with 2 columns: School Name and Points. Includes Dupont Manual (72), Louisville Male (41-6), Barbourville (25), Barrett Manual (Henderson) (24-6), Holmes High (Covington) (19), Henry Clay (Lexington) (15), Middlesboro (12-3), Newport (12), Summer Shade (7-2), Berea Academy (5), Bellevue (4), Good Shepherd (3), Danville (1). Schools not listed failed to score.

Public Requests Immediate Action

The fact that a number of highly responsible public officials endorsed the Patman Bill over the week-end seemed to lie behind these rumors. They began when Marriner S. Ecles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, announced an issue of treasury notes to pay the bonus would be no more inflationary than the issue of a like amount of Government bonds. Then, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC declared it would be a god thing for business if the bonus issue were settled now.

These statements came after Senator McAdoo (D) of California, a wartime Secretary of the Treasury, declared enactment of the Patman Bill would help business and would not damage the Government's credit. He laughed at charges the bill was inflationary and would lead to printing press money.

Finally, Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, declared Great Britain had used the principle of the Patman Bill to help refund its public debt a few years ago. He quoted Sir Reginald McKenna, "one of the great bankers of the world," as saying the policy was successful and resulting in lifting price levels throughout England.

The Patman Bill meanwhile was kept pending in the Senate on a technicality, although it was passed last Tuesday. Its Senate sponsors refused to release it until they are confident they have won over every possible vote to over-ride the President's expected veto.

Because of weight and clearance requirements, however, the route of the shipment was round about. A check of practically every foot of the way was made to determine if temporary obstructions could be removed to allow the load to pass. From Schenectady to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the car traveled on the Delaware & Hudson. From Wilkes-Barre, the car was sent to Hagerstown, Md., on the Pennsylvania Railroad, where it was turned over to the Western Maryland Railroad. After an extensive detour, it was delivered back to the Pennsylvania on its main line just south of the Baltimore tunnels, which were the principal reasons for the complicated routing. From there it was carried directly to the power company's siding in the District of Columbia.

FISH LIFE SAVER The people in the New York Aquarium were very unhappy. Many of their rare fish were dying of a mysterious malady. An investigation showed that the water pumped into the tanks contained contaminating metal salts, and that these salts came from the metal pumps in the system. They appealed to the H. A. Smith Pump & Motor company for help. Mr. Smith began testing all the nonmetallic substances available for making pumps. He tried 14 materials and found that General Electric Textolite was the only one that would prevent this pollution of the water and at the same time make a satisfactory pump. Engineers of the General Electric Plastics Department were called in, and a new pump was designed, using five different grades of Textolite. The pump was so constructed that no water can come into contact with metal.

GROANING RAILS A FEW weeks ago, the rails between Schenectady and Benning, D. C., groaned under what is believed to be the heaviest load ever transported on a single car. The load consisted of the generator shaft, rotor, and poles for a General Electric frequency converter set being installed at the plant of the Potomac Electric Light and Power Company to deliver 25-cycle, single-phase power to the Pennsylvania Railroad. The total weight on the rails was 471,300 pounds.

Turkish tobacco leaf is so tiny that each of these bales contains from 70 to 80 thousand leaves. But there's another and greater difference—Turkish is the most spicy and aromatic tobacco in the world. We have Chesterfield Turkey in all the tobacco markets of Turkey and Greece, including Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun. And when you blend and cross-blend aromatic Turkish tobacco with mild ripe home-grown tobaccos as we do in Chesterfield —you have a milder cigarette, a better-tasting cigarette.
