Dear Miss Mason:

Doubtless before this you have had advice from other sources, on account of my tardiness, but I have not known just what to say in answer to your letter. We are of course glad to send our own publications together with the latest issue of the Legislative Manual and of Murlin's Red Book. I think, however, you would have more help from the Library of Congress, or the Superintendent of Documents in Washington, who should be able to supply the Congressional Directory and the Statistical Abstract of the United States. Mr Creel's Committee on Public Information will doubtless be ready to forward all its literature, including the President's war messages and statements by men of eminence in various fields. I wonder if it would not be best for you to communicate, say with Monsieur ^{Aubert} ~~Rehier~~, or with some ^{one} of the French Commission. Doubtless such requests as the one which has reached you have gone to many others, and it would seem that the collection would best be made through one center. I know this is done for Russia through a committee which is sending out a list of books desired.

Sincerely yours

Miss C. E. Mason
