Froude on Deu d'Annals both
d'Calhed
'Confession'

April 16 1883.

My dear Rees

I have little original knowledge of French history - I doubt whether I shall be able to do justice to the Deu d'Annals both - but I will read ^{it} ~~them~~ if you like & see what I can do.
He sent me his first volume which rather disappointed me - perhaps because I was comparatively familiar with that particular work of the ground, and found her sympathy with the Huguenots than I wished.

The Letters & Memorials are a Confession. C was miserable when he found how much suffering he had unconsciously caused, and he felt it his duty to do penance - a characteristic action not unlike Johnson - for which Johnson has been universally admired

If C had not having put the Collection together. I should have said ~~that~~ no more about the matter than Foster said about Dickens & his wife. - as it was, I did not discontinue Cady's from the publication. But it was his own act from first to last.

Yours faithfully

J A Froude
