

enjoyed myself so much this morning & evening
a day. It is too late for another's bed, frankly.
I would, I mind facing the stairs as in our
bed. And I wish - with all my heart I wish - I had done it before.

My dear Lyones,

The volume, at 1 Am. Ms., proved unremarkable.

I've read that Atkins thing again.
It is neither Baily nor W. D. I see just Baxter Francis. He has taken my name in vain so steadily that I half-think of writing a protest. Is he worth it? I'll see to it.

When Billy left us, he talked of going to Natick about the Pocumt; didn't he? Was he

My dear Sydney,

The Salame, at 1 A.M. proved monumental.

I've read that Athenaeum thing again. It's neither Baily nor W. D. I suspect Buxton Forman. It has taken my name in vain so stoutly that I half-think of writing a protest. Is he worth it? I'll see to-morrow.

When Billy left us, he talked of going to Nutt about the Poems, didn't he? Was he serious?

If you really want to get rid of that cupboard - cellarette - armoire - or whatever you call it, I can find room for, or make use of, it at once. What is the figure?

We had an excellent time. Indeed I hav'nt enjoyed myself so much this many & many a day. It's too late for another; but, frankly, I wouldn't mind facing the stairs again one bit. And I wish - with all my heart I wish - I'd done it before.

Yours Ever
W.E.H.
