My dear Sir

I have been much flattered by your very handsome notice of the Whims & Oddities & shall take an early opportunity of thanking you in person. The Book goes on extremely well.

Are you inclined for a job against Campbell, about the London University? I have stumbled upon a passage, that seems an anticipation of the foundation - I have copied it on the other side. I have not Defoe's works at hand, - but it may be worth your while to seek out the parts where he seriously proposes such an Institution.

Yours truly
Thos Wood
