Dear Sir

I should have been most happy to have done myself the honour of waiting upon you at dinner on Saturday. but I did not receive your kind invitation till past eight o'clock in the evening of that day - I declined enquiries to be made about this delay, and it appears that the letter dated Thursday was not put into the Post office ^{in Town} until later on Saturday.

Believe me dear Sir

Your faithful servant
