THE ATHENÆUM,
PALL MALL, S.W. 1.

Dear Sir
With a mass of your readers I share pleasure in my old friend T.P.
Cannon's contributions to the Sunday Times - so varied and so interesting - but his memory is
sometimes at fault,
as an instance, in recently saying that James Albany charming comedy Two Roses was the first
to achieve a run of 300 nights. Robertson's comedy School had done that at the old Prince of Wales's Theatre before the Vaudeville Theatre

was opened.

Surely there is a lapse
this week in references to Disraeli and Mrs.
Brydges Williams.
I knew that lady:
she was a daughter
of the founder of the Daily Telegraph
and not in the least likely to have left

her fortune to Disraeli.
I should doubt her
having his acquaintance virtually.
Squire Bancroft.

January 19, 1876.
