

Oct 16. 07

95 IRVING ST.
CAMBRIDGE.

Dear Mr. Björkman,

Of course let it be McClure or anything else whatever. I care not for the S. P. particularly. But I fear that nothing else except possibly the Outlook or the Independent will print epistemological matters. However, do anything you like, provided I co-operate no further!

I hope that the exchange editorship's loss won't prove in any way disadvantageous.

Can you, by the way, ascertain of the review of Prof.
was from Oxford.

Yours, in haste

J. J.

A.L.S. to Edwin Bjorkman 16 Oct. 1907. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ p. (single sheet, octavo.) With printed address of 95 Irving Street, Cambridge

He suggests McClure's, The Outlook, or The Independent for Bjorkman's article, rather than the Evening Post. Inquires whether a certain review of Pragmatism was from Oxford.

Yours, in haste

W.J.

Oct.16.07

Dear Mr. Bjorkman,

Of course let it be McClure or anything else whatever. I care not for the E.P. particularly. But I fear that nothing else except possibly the Outlook or the Independent will print epistemological matter. However, do anything you like, provided I co-operate no farther ! I hope that the exchange editorship's loss won't prove in any way disadvantageous. Can you, by the way, ascertain if the review of Prag was from Oxford.

Yours, in haste

W.J