

My Dear Sir

I have indulged half a hope for these last ten days that among your other Edin remembrances you might think of a half promise you made to let me hear of you soon after you arrived in London — Whether you are disposed to remember this or not I cannot say — but you see I do not forget you — and will not let you forget me if I can help it — I should have written wider some days ago for the above purpose had I been able to see your address and been very eager with most opportunity to enlighten me — I catch the bills to the post — I am still extremely Desiring

possibility of making a short visit to town in the course of the next month - but also I am not at liberty to do this till I can make such arrangements about my services as to ensure it from absolute necessity in my absence - I have endeavored to lay my other friends under contribution for the purpose - but with such imperfect success that I am obliged to apply again to the kindness of my dear ones - You gave me some reason to hope that you might employ a few leisure moments in looking over the Biographickalen and making a few remarks on it - the postage never - I have been so difficult to be found leisure in London especially at this season - but I have too that you would send me some evening paper any day - and hope that you may be enabled to take comfort in my necessities - and may be able to accomplish a expedition for which I

I am afraid I am scarcely to be trusted provided - I meant to be sufficient in with your & Co. I but I cannot keep Edgeworth writing - I am sure you post however - I am unwilling making the modest request - that you will not furnish parties all the way out of capital - if you are engaged for this or for anything else - for it is only a matter of your service - I might get it from you in London - You need not to the man for you in London - Do not give me any rate - We talk of you a great deal here - I have had a pleasant with Miss Belair by praising you - with a sincerely - Give Mrs. you love England to it has been a - folded result rest we - believe we always Very faithfully
