

To C. L.

This is from Rogers, I have torn out his name for an autograph:
Go to him

My dear Sir

I am very sure I need not say how glad I should be to render any service on any occasion to any friend of yours, & what little influence I may perhaps (little, I fear it is) shall most certainly be exerted in Mr Catmorr's favor, who has every claim in himself to the good wishes of every liberal mind. I have not the honor of knowing him, nor do I know

Wm. Lamb
- The letter of Rogers is curious on account of Lamb's writing upon it.

his opinions any more than yourself — not being in the way of meeting with the County Journal or indeed in the habit of reading any thing much that is not twenty years old (You I know converse with worthies of a much older date) As for Reviews; I have not looked into one for an age — but I have always heard him spoken of with respect & I make no doubt of his success ultimately.

& if Mr Patmore will do me the favor to call upon me any morning before 12 o'clock (I seldom go out earlier) I shall be very happy to see him — of the will to serve him he may be sure, but my power is small indeed.
