

FROGHOLE,
EDENBRIDGE,
KENT.

Sept 1)

Dear Mr North many thanks for your parcel of books & letters I have already turned up some in the article of James's job Bromwell & will take any will me to the Continent next week. You are Lamb which I know but did not before person; it is a very pleasant little possession.

I cannot answer your question about H. H. H. Harper's editorial merits because the time has not come to collate the edition but it is drawing near when I will do the report to you.
I don't care a bit about the Edmund's scheme . . . Edmund's <sup>is</sup> a read as Pompeii <sup>wants</sup> no hall, for the vicar, by he had not with the space to keep Lomb's grave in view. No one had care for Edmund, he sent them off because his help was being missed there.

Call the temple a nothing 2/39.
You are too hard on the master: he's all right but although called master is in reality very much the servant of the Sanchez.

I have not seen the Joshua articles, but will try to call them up and see with belief in <sup>an</sup> <sup>English</sup> sincerity
