

of the men, and can be fairly independent of his College salary.

The French will come in February probably.

I thank you most truly for your blessing - no son ever valued his father's blessing more reverently & gratefully - Our love - to W^m Westcott & yourself & W^m Prior

Ever y^r. affe S

Herbert Ryle

Herbert Edward Ryle

The Lodge,
Queens' College,
Cambridge.

Dec 17. 1900

My dear Bishop

I was grieved to miss you last week - It was most good of you to write and send me your loving sympathy & good wishes.

Youth may be little fitted to rule, but it has no right to shrink, if asked to help to bear burdens - I trust I was guided aright.

If we once looked back, we should soon become 'pillars of salt'.

My heart is wrung when I think of leaving the work and the people here! But the little gap I shall make will soon be filled. There is no lack of workers & students, fit for the duties of the Professorship, and upon scholarship a power of research than ever even I could have claimed to be.

For the College I feel more anxious - And yet the Fellows are most self-denying & laborious, and the undergraduates have won for themselves an excellent position. There is no governing needed as an ordinary rule.

It ought not to be impossible to find a man who will be found