Newrick, 9 May. 1831.

My dear Sir

Your caution is just what it ought to be. I never intended that you should be liable to any risk. - Will you learn from Mr Popple what saving might be made in the cost by paying ready money, both for the paper & printing; as there is no hurry for publication in these ill times. I will then write to Quebec & communicate this to the authoress, in case she should think it saving worth attending to

Laudon's book & Mr Hare's had better come to me thro' Mr Murrays. Thank you for them. - Your message shall be communicated by the first opportunity to Mr Wardson

Believe me yours very truly

Robin Hood must yet wait a great many better lectures.
