My Dear Ladies

Carl Brandt has been here this morning. I referred him to you, & he said he would try & get along to see you. But as he is leaving on Monday for France (after arriving the day before yesterday) he suggested that I should tell you that he thought he could sell short stories of mine to

Annie's for $ 250

Metropolitan for $ 250 to $ 300

McClure's sum unmentioned.

This he would be glad to do on a starting basis; but if you are dealing direct he says don't worry about him. He says he is a reader of my books & wants to take a hand, but not to interfere with you. He will be back in New York by July 1.

I promised only to send you his message.
