My dear Irve:

I am going to deliver some lectures next year on Legal Ethics. The subject has not been much discussed by text-books, and I am looking about for as much material as I can secure. There has been a good deal of discussion, I note, as to the action of Sir Edward Carson in accepting employment as counsel for Sir Rufus Isaacs and Mr. Lloyd George in the ^{Martin and} Chesterton libel case. If you could get for me as much material as you can gather on this subject from the press and magazines, and send it to me, I would be greatly obliged to you. There ~~is~~ a series of letters I am told in the London Times of June 16th and 17th or thereabouts. There is a letter from Mr. Justice Neville - that is, Sir Ralph Neville, and one from Mr. F. E. Smith. I may not give you the exact dates. From June 14th to June 20th would probably include everything.

With best wishes, Sincerely yours,

Mr. Irwin B. Laughlin,
Secretary, American Embassy,
London, England.
