June 20 1877.

My dear Sir

I thank you for your kindness in lending me the books applied for by Mr Inglis. They shall be returned with all possible despatch. Now that Parliament is about adjourn I shall give regularly ~~the~~ notices of new books from day to day in the Standard & the Chronicle and every Post. I want to give as favourable a review as <sup>possible</sup> possible of Reuter's Aspley and Huxley's Shipwreck Perhaps you can lend me one of these by the bearer.

I send for your acceptance and a paragraph in your review Sept.

a little volume of Tales edited by near female relatives the Hon. White enlightened Queen Elizabeth at Theobald's and the Tales by Delta Nov. 1790
- W. Leger (who but this is called now is the author of the Numismatians) with the please go. The Spanish Tale of the Pari translated or rather altered from the French by the Editor is curious inasmuch as it seems to give rise to the inevitable - hunter or Partridge the almanack maker with the latter

Send a second or second copy for the Magazine which please send to whoever has a share out.

It seems strange that whilst copies of your Magazine are sent to Provincial journals you send none to an office averaging over a circulation (what with one paper and about with another) of ~~200~~ from 11 to 12000 We do not get the Magazine I was compelled to spoil the copy I got from my bookseller for the purpose of giving it last month. We get all the others, but with the exception of Blackwood's quite from now but the new Monthly. There is nothing of your kind in it & give the little volume now sent & I hope if mine of you think it deserves it I am using your Katherine Watts.

549 (SHELLEY, KEATS, WORDSWORTH, BYRON, COLERIDGE, ETC.). THE POETICAL ALBUM and Register of Modern Fugitive Poetry. Collected by Alaric A. Watts. First Edition, cr. 8vo., half canvas and boards. 1838. Contains items by the aforementioned writers as also CHARLES LAMB and Mrs. PROZIO. 258.
The Text of Shelley's "Song Written for an Indian Air" ("I arise from dreams of thee") printed here is an interesting variation which is not published in the Buxton Forman Edition, and is not the original version in THE LIBERAL.
