My dear Messrs O'Leary

I shall make a point of returning your papers tomorrow. Attribute not this delay to any indifference or forgetfulness;
for the truth is, that I have mislaid them for anxiety to keep them in a safe place, & have looked over all my secret

papers large & dozen lines with figures there. And they would be lost,
as I remember further
then anywhere in my own location, though
the particular locality is yet latent.

Yours
J. M. Polson
