

JERROLD, Douglas William, dramatist, novelist, and journalist; b. 3 Jan. 1803; d. 8 June 1857.

Worked as compositor . . . . . 1818, et seq.

Wrote "Black-Eyed Susan," 1826; "Rent-Day," 1830, &c.

Wrote for "Punch" . . . . . 1841, et seq.

Published "Cakes and Ale," 1842; "Man made of Money," 1849; "St. Giles and St. James," 1851;
"Story of a Feather," 1844; "Chronicles of Clovernook," 1846; "Candle Lectures," 1846;
"Works" . . . . . 1851-4

Walden

My dear Webster

Can you let me write a couple of <sup>or more</sup> orders for night? I don't want to bother you, and these is new and then one person - literary a professional - whom I wish to strike.

I met Walden yesterday, who gave me a cheerful account - I hope not an over-flattering one - of progress.

I shall see you in a day or two.

Truly yours

Walden