

FORSTER

1

FORSTER, John, historian and critic; b. 1812; a short time editor of "Daily News;" a commissioner in lunacy, 1861; published "Statesmen of the Commonwealth," 1840; "Life of Goldsmith," 1848; "Arrest of the Five Members," 1860; "sir John Eliot," 1864; "Walter Savage Landor," 1869; "Life of Charles Dickens," 1871-4; "Life of Swift," vol. i., 1875; d. 1 Feb. 1876.

Adams

Whitchell

By kind of

John Foster

Will you be so kind, if you may, as to call here on the Quay at pm 1/2 past 10 to 12 tomorrow

Ms Picknell
Eggs Road
Brixton.

58 Wisconsin Ave. Falls

22^d February 1856

My dear Mrs Bicknell

I shall be most happy to dine with you & Mr Bicknell on Friday the 28th to meet our friends.

And will you tell Anticknell both my kind regards that by a Jovin Paul Man edged his name into our reserved list

- And that he will have a ticket place at the Maerwald dinner.

I had begun a note to you yesterday asking you to meet the Whites here at dinner on Thursday - but unfortunately the Duke's claims for that day for business that must be transacted in reference to this exciting festival - and I shall therefore hope to get the write to you over the 3^d of March: a day near there would suit you?

Plays by Saml. May Bechard
Yours most sincerely
A. K. Foster