

Camp.

July 8. 1889.

My Dear Mr. Langfellow,

Thank you very much for Miss Willard's address. I am glad to have an opportunity to make the acquaintance of so earnest and so able a Dante scholar. Perhaps you saw my notice of her work in the Nation. Dr. Moore was kind enough to send me his from the Academy.

I was much disappointed that a pile of examination books kept me from coming to see you in the busy days that close the year at Cambridge. It will be one of the first pleasures I give myself when I return.

Sincerely yours,

H. R. Carpenter.

Mr. Carpenter