

Central Manor House
Harrod Road.

June 18. 1846.

My dear Medwin. I find Grace made a stupid mistake. In answering your invitation - which, by the bye, I did not get till the dinner hour was past - I addressed the note to the Globe Tavern, Fleet St.; and in referring to your letter I said it should have been to Dow St. Of course the note will not have reached you, and I can only hope you have put a charitable construction on my silence, and apparent address. By all means get the numbers of the Map. you require for Chapman & Hall.

I am very sorry to hear of the loss you have sustained in the death of your Mother.
That is perhaps the heaviest loss a man can sustain.

When do you go back to Heidelberg? W/MS
