

<sup>Yours,</sup>
The Liberator

Dear Sir

Mr. Woodgate tells me how kind you were to him in mentioning my name. I assure you I shall be much obliged to you for any service you may render him. At the time he applied to me, I was thinking to solicit your interest in another way. The enclosed prospectus will inform you that I am going to bring out a thing by subscription. Those who have seen it think highly of the circulation; and, though you and I have been for some time what they call a little offish, it would be unjust not to have the same respect for you that I am informed by every body you have for me. At any rate I know you will prize it because it is mine; and, as I mean to allow handsome profits to all those who may wish to deal with me, if you can in any way lend a helping hand to give it an extensive circulation, you will participate some,

Yours
Jan 30th 1809

When I shall be very happy to see you

Dear Sir,
Yours very sincerely
J. Brabton

Charles Dillier

124 05