

Charles Dickens

James Monroe Esq

122 St. Martin Lane

3/3/

London

The Author of Pickwick, &c. &c.

Mr. Charles Dickens presents his compliments Mr. Moore, and begs to say, in reply of Mr.
Moore's note of inquiry, that Mr. Fletcher is at present staying at the Rectory in Somersetshire, but that he does not know exactly how a letter to that gentleman should be addressed. If he should come to London, you call upon Mr. Dickens, Mr. Dickens with commiseration to Mr. Monroe's note to him.

Strood, Kent.

thirteenth September 1848.
