Recently a large group of items held in supply house stock was examined and classified as obsolete material.

Since there was some remote possibility that this material might be used or serve some purpose, it was decided to remove it from supply house stock and distribute it to various points of our operation at which it was felt it would most likely be used.

A list of this material showing the items sent to each point of distribution is attached.

I would like for each of you to go over this list and become as familiar with it as possible so that whenever an occasion arises, material from this list can be used rather than purchase new material.
