CLASS BALANCE

Recent investigations show that from time to time abnormally large sums of money are left on University ledgers representing the balance of graduating class funds. In many instances the class officers have been graduated without stipulating what was to be done with the balance while others have directed that the money be distributed among various University funds and organizations.

Not since 1928 has there been a fitting disbursement of the senior class fund balance. It was the officers of this class who appropriated the remainder of their funds to erect the gate posts at the southern extremity of the campus road. The balance since that time have been allowed to remain either on the books to inconspicuous Business Manager Peak, or to be distributed somewhat unwisely.

At present, there is approximately $700 in the business office which represents the total sum of the class balances of 1931 and '32. What will be done with this money? Smith Broadbent, president of the Class of '34 ordered that the remainder of his class' fund be distributed among the Y. M. C. A. fund for chimes in Memorial Hall, a class tree, erection of artistically designed bulletin boards, and what was left to the student union building erection project. The Y. M. C.

A. is maintained by a portion of each registration fee, while the chime fund would furnish an excellent drive for one of the many honorary fraternities desirous of promoting some worthwhile University campaign.

The auditing committee, headed by Professor H. H. Downing, is responsible for the increasing amount of the class fund balance through their commendable movements toward the elimination of graft. In their zealous efforts to lift the campus of this evil, however, the committee has caused a considerable sum of money to remain idle. This is poor business under any circumstances. The demand that class officers have a balance to meet debts that might be overlooked is reasonable enough, but it is highly improbable that debts totaling $300 or more will have been overlooked.

Viewing the situation from a technical standpoint, the money has been accumulated by the students themselves and should be disposed of in any way they see fit, so long as it is done honestly and dollar for dollar value is received. If the class desires to sponsor an exceptionally outstanding Senior Ball, it should be allowed to do so provided all other financial obligations have been met, and a nominal balance is to be left on the business office books. Such a function, seemingly an extravagance, easily could be termed an excellent medium of publicity for the University. Of course, it would be a most noble gesture on the part of the graduating class to leave a substantial sum to some worthy cause, but that should be left entirely up to those in office—or a vote of the entire class.

Due to the fact that the erection of a centralized heating plant is likely to be realized in the near future, a loss in the ranks of student union building crusaders has come about. What better cause could the $700 balance be reserved? Certainly such a gift would be in the best interests of the student body as well as a great class monument to their Alma Mater. Professor Downing's plan of having a member of the auditing committee 'sit in' on all business negotiations of the class officers is an excellent one, but for the sake of all concerned, there should be smaller fund balances and more profitable as well as noteworthy expenditures.

these works makes any contribution to political or philosophical thought. They are merely compilations of his public address—doings at home and abroad! Evidently he forgot for the moment that he has never been able to persuade his fellow Republicans to nominate him for the Presidency, his life's ambition.

'His conceit is consummate; yet he is today a bitterly disappointed man. In 1928 he had had the bad taste to boast that he had had the offer of every nomination worth having at home and abroad! Evidently he forgot for the moment that he has never been able to persuade his fellow Republicans to nominate him for the Presidency, his life's ambition. 'Even since he became chief executive of Columbia, he has been a tool in the hands of the power behind the throne—doing nothing original. More or less asking for endorsements for Columbia has usually been the trend of his mind and manner. He urges that men of wealth devote a share of their fortunes to public service through public benefaction.' In making this statement Butler evidently thinks that donations to universities and libraries by the great industrialists mean something to the exploited workers.

'He demands freedom, but the freedom he wants is freedom for the privileged class alone. He is interested in property rights, not human rights. The sure mark of a reactionary.' Mr. Butler has arranged said, is unwillingness to make use of past experience or to read the lessons of history and apply them to the problems of today. The real reactionary, who is always an egotist, insists that his own feelings, his own desires, his own ambitions, shall take precedence over those of others.'

'Thus Nicholas Murray Butler is a reactionary of the highest degree by his own definition.'

PAN-POLITIKON

In keeping with the annual custom, Pan Politikon has sent out circular letters to each professor and instructor in the various departments. They are asked to devote one class period to a discussion of Italy, the nation chosen this year by the executive committee of Pan Politikon, as it relates to their field of work.

Committee members also have been instructed to follow-up this letter with a personal visit to the instructor, armed with specific information as to how the instructor can best present his discussion in the form of a lecture to the students. The important contributions that Italy has given the world in almost every scientific and cultural field. It is also planned to have a general convocation sometime in the near future in which some well-known native of Italy will be the principal speaker. The clear thinking professor can readily see that in giving over an hour period in his subject he will not be 'wasting precious time that he should give to his own subject.' College students, of all persons should be familiarized with the fact that our country is not the only one in which large steps have been taken toward an improved civilization. A thorough knowledge of the problems of our country cannot be had without accurate information concerning other nations, and modern Italy is without doubt one of the nations which holds the key to the solution of economic well-being.

It is to be hoped that each professor and instructor sees fit to support one of the most important academic extra-curricular organizations on the campus by cooperating with its already formulated plans. It is not to be denied that the ideals and aspirations of this organization contribute largely toward the liberal knowledge which the University attempts to give its students.

JEST AMONG US

'French universities offer scholarships to Americans'—headline. The supposition is that they must be paying for it out of the war debt.

About the only fault we can find with the fellows who advocate these revolutionary plans to replace the present college system is that they seem to have forgotten the idea is to get an education.

According to a news item a lot of collegians want to have a week interval between final exams. Sort of a case of prolonging the agony, as it were.

It is evident that the fellow who said that compulsory military training is out of place in the American college must have just come from an hour of drill on a hot afternoon.

Hoi Polloi

By STYLUS

Having centered all our interest on the Chicago game we seem to have slipped this week. Either that or all you mugs are getting too clever for us and are evading our sinister countenance. You can't keep it up for long, though. We'll find out. There may be a snicker on you. We've learned that lesson.

Somehow our purpose was defeated at the double noises. We found our interest out on the floor, and it was hard to deviate and look around among the spectators for budding new romance. A few things we noted, however, and here they are.

Explain Yourself, Tommy SAE Tommy Nichols, whose badge has been adorning TriDelta Isabel Preston, appears often by himself. We often seem to find Tommy at one table in the commons with Isabel. He was there too. We didn't see the little blue-eyed girl. So what?

They Were Watching the Sunset Recently we printed a little squib bidding new romance. A young girl from Hopkinsville. To outward appearances, it doesn't have to be Dark On Observatory Hill. For Sunday evening, as the sun was going down, we found these two on the steps of the Observatory, and were they having a date.

Just a Drug-Store Cowboy Lambda Chi Phi Pete Reiser whose devotion to the cocoa-blondes of the campus was recently made known, has an odd way to tell about how he met her friend. The Phoenix drug store is quite a rendezvous, isn't it, Pete?

Checking Up on Red

On the night of February 16, Red Simpson told his courtiers, the girl who wears his Sigma Chi badge, that he was terribly tired and didn't feel like even having a date. He was going to bed, he said. The lady in question sympathized and everything was fine. We wonder if she knows that Red attended the Phi Tau dance and made some very evident love to a certain campus belle.

Pipe Dream

Zeta Louise Kuykendall loves men who smoke pipes. But she is specific about it, and said she'd love them who smoked a pipe. We think in view of everything concerned, that she must have meant ATO Bill Carrel. He has even carved that lodge's crest on his pipe, which makes him a unique pipe smoker.

One For Griffith

When we were trying to check up on Dave Griffith Jr., we asked his father, back in the press room, who his son courted at the Ohio house. Griffith Sr. quipped, 'Widow, married or single?' One for Dave, and also, one for the Ohio.

Who Was She, Johnny?

Saturday night, while in Louisville, we saw PhiDelta John Bell with an unidentifiable woman. Who was she?

She Smokes Murads, No Doubt

Not long ago the girls at the Kappa house heard a noise on the fire escape after hours, and told the housemother about it. 'Oh,' that lady said nonchalantly, 'I want to sleep right. It's just Bill Heath.'

Who Was She, Frank?

The nightwatchman came upon Frank Fowler and one of his numerous lady friends near the stadium recently. We wonder who the lady was—football is played in the day time.

A sizeable majority of the Phi-Delta lodge journeyed to Louisville to see the big town's sights Saturday.

day. They all got back safely, sadder and wiser men for the jaunt again. Among their experiences they number a lot of things that go in that 'unprintable' category of the powers that be. Any of 'em will be glad to confide in you however...You're interested in preserving humanity now.

Another Pin

The Stylus hit it on the head again. We said that games disclosed nothing in the way of budding romances. We were wrong. We found Charlotte Coffman there with Joe Jordan, and it seems to be a habit.

New Romance

We've gone out and come back in again. We said that games disclosed nothing in the way of budding romances. We were wrong. We found Charlotte Coffman there with Joe Jordan, and it seems to be a habit.

The old story of the boy who is 'working his way through college' takes on a new angle at the University of Vermont (Burlington), where one lad, now a senior, has financed his education by building and construction work—building everything from dog houses to residences. Trouble avar: Co-eds at Northwestern University (Evanston, Ill.) have formed the Glotier club, composed of girls whose boy friends are not on the campus. Insignia is a little yellow ribbon pinned to the dress. Minimizes embarrassment, they claim.

Now, says a columnist at the University of Oklahoma (Norman), is apparent the meaning of the phrase, 'Dear' you'll be the death of me! The columnist points to the discovery by psychologists at Western State College (Gunnison, Calif.) that a kiss, by causing a slight palpitation of the heart, shortens the average life by three minutes.

Contrary to the aims of collegiate schools of business administration, recent surveys and computations show that only one or two out of every five college students can become successful business men. The other three or four are doomed to be misfits, mediocre or failures.

Another unique type of job came to light on the same campus. One girl makes a profession of preparing her sister students for proms and fraternity dances. She takes care of their finger nails and coiffures.

A women's rooming house at the University of Minnesota (Minneapolis) received a new roommate. Within an hour, so the story goes, some of the other girls frantically called the head of the school in which the new inmate was a student, to learn if heronwork was necessary in her courses. For she had enrolled in a course in snail-mail. At least 12 university presidents are feeling good at the moment—in varying degrees. Twelve colleges were listed by Edwin Embree, of the Julius Rosenwald fund, as the best in the nation. They are, in Mr. Embree's order, Harvard, Columbia, Chicago, Yale, California, Minnesota, Cornell, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Princeton, and Johns Hopkins.

Now it turns out that a sports writer on the Indiana University ('Bloomington') Daily Student did not pick Red Grange for his mythical eleven after Red's Sophomore year, explaining that all Grange could do was run. The daily listed printed the explanation and remarked: 'All Gall Curci can do is sing.'

Three famed grid coaches will officiate at the Texas Tech's coaching school at Lubbock, Texas: Bernie Bierman, of the University of Minnesota, Frank Thomas, of the University of Alabama, and Dana X. Bible, of the University of Nebraska.

Being in the hospital is no excuse for not taking examinations at the University of Missouri (Columbia). Every student patient who was able to write took exams at the end of the first semester anyway.

Prof. Paul A. Witly, of Northwestern University (Evanston, Ill.), has conducted experiments which have proven that genius is possessed by girls as often as by boys.

CRYPTOGRAPH

Colleges' Puzzles
Solved in Minutes

If you are hunting for perfect dilemmas, you'll find that you'll have to search no more after you've solved this week's cryptograph. Poets often get into difficulties, we'll admit, but you won't find them pulling a real honor like the one described here in code very often. You'll understand him, though, when you consider some of your own mornings after.

And we'll just cheer you up before you begin by telling you that you were correct when you had the following as your answer to last week's cryptograph: "Legionnaires guarding Sahara outpost, sight beautiful Touareg. Patious laison lieutenant quails."

Now get going on this week's stinkler:

Road Behind White Hall Being Built

The construction of a new road behind white hall began last Monday and has been progressing rapidly. The work is being done by FERA laborers under the supervision of the Department of Buildings and Grounds.

The new road will consist of a six inch bed of heavy rock covered with two inches of crushed rock, and when finances permit, the department hopes to add a smooth surface to the road.

According to Superintendent Maury Crutcher, the road should be ready for use in about two weeks if bad weather does not delay the workers.

The boys from Creighton, Coach Wynne's former stamping ground, sure lived up to all expectations and then some. They showed a smart team, well-versed in fundamentals, together with a smart and sporty manlike coach.

Edwards set a new individual scoring record for the south with 34 points. His chances for All-American honors was furthered with his great play during the second game, where, with two men guarding him constantly he still came through with high point honors. To do that in the face of a team of Creighton's calibre is no easy accomplishment.

Engelbreton, All-Missouri Valley forward and leader of his conference, scored 22 points the first night, but under Donohue's close guarding the second night, he only scored two points which is a new low in his intercollegiate career. Anderson played two games which would be impossible for any guard to improve on and at times his work bordered on the miraculous, which brings him into the height of his season's play for this year.

The two games were further noteworthy in that this is the first time that Creighton has lost two consecutive games to the same team. Kentucky split with them the last time they met as did Stanford this year.

Although the game was hard-fought and rough, both teams displayed good sportsmanship. This was evidenced by the Creighton team going down to the Delta Zeta formal dance after the game where Andy Anderson and his orchestra was furnishing sweet music for the lads and lassies. Bill Jacobs did a nice job of introducing the Nebreaks to the Kentucky beauties.

Kentucky Defeats Creighton Twice

rage of baskets to give the 'Cats a 29-17 lead at the intermission. Shortly after the second half opened, Creighton staged a rally which brought them within 4 points of the 'Cats. From this point on, the Kentuckians took command of the situation, and although the 'Cats were always dangerous, Coach Rupp was able to breathe easily for the first time during the night.

Coming back on Saturday night with a zone defense, figured to tie up Edwards, the Creighton boys again gave the Wildcats stubborn opposition before finally succumbing 24 to 13 in a well-played game.

Just as Coach Schabinger had figured, the change in defensive tactics caused the Ruppian to have trouble and the only points the 'Cats could register in the initial half were on field goals by Dave Lawrence and Warfield Donohue and four foul markers by Edwards, which left them trailing 9 to 8 at the conclusion of the period.

"Big Ed" broke loose in the second half to score 10 counters and decide the issue for Kentucky. He was ably assisted by Dave Lawrence who made two spectacular field goals. The regular team played the whole game without a single substitution on Saturday night.

Andy Anderson played a great defensive game on both nights, holding the clever Jack Loux to 8 points in both contests. Warfield Donohue also played a brilliant defensive game completely tying up Engelbreton and allowing him but a single goal from the field. The whole team displayed the best form that it has shown this season at home.

Files of German Magazine Given To U.K. Library

Arthur E. Mueller, German vice-consul at Louisville, recently gave the University library the files of five popular German magazines for 1934 and 1935. These magazines are "Deutsche Rundschau," "Deutsche Zeitschrift," "Leipziger Illustrirte Zeitung," "N. S. Monatshefte," and "Wesermanns Monatshefte."

The magazines are given with the idea of strengthening the ties of interest and understanding between this country and Germany. They are fine examples of typography and printing, some of them containing beautiful reproductions of modern German paintings which will be of particular interest to art students.

FRESHMAN FIVE ENDS SEASON TONIGHT

Coach Paul McBrayer's Kentucky freshman team will close its basketball season tonight when they meet the Paris Independents at Paris. The Kittens have gone through their entire schedule of sixteen games without a defeat and have met some of the outstanding high school, college freshmen, and independent squads in the state. Manual of Louisville, Mayville, the powerful Puritan Club of Covington, and Pikeville college are some of the teams that have suffered defeat at the hands of the Kentucky frosh.

Some outstanding material has been developed in the Kitten ranks this season and will add materially to next year's varsity. "Red" Hagan, former St. Xavier luminary; Billy Spicer and Rice Walker, formerly of Henry Clay; "Red" Craig of Ashland, and Dick Robinson, former star at Kentucky Military Institute, are some of the most promising prospects.

GROUP TO HEAR MORSE
The Freshman group of the Y. W. C. A. will meet at 7 o'clock Thursday in the recreation room of Patterson hall. The guest speaker of the evening will be T. Aubrey Morse, secretary of the H-Y organization, who will tell of his experiences in Europe this summer, and describe the Paeon Play at Oberammergau.
