

'Mikado' Ticket Office Opens At 12 Today

Tickets for the Summer Opera Workshop's production of the "Mikado" will go on sale at noon today at the Guignol Theatre's box office in the Fine Arts Building.

The workshop will present the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera Aug. 1-4 in Guignol Theatre. Curtain time for each performance will be 8:30 p.m.

The two act opera has a Japanese setting and features the love life of Nanki-Poo. As well as being a comedy, the opera is also extremely satirical of life in general and especially of governmental red tape.

Miss Mary Warner Ford, publicity director for the production, said the setting is Japan. The stage is arranged so that all scenes can be portrayed without scenery changes.

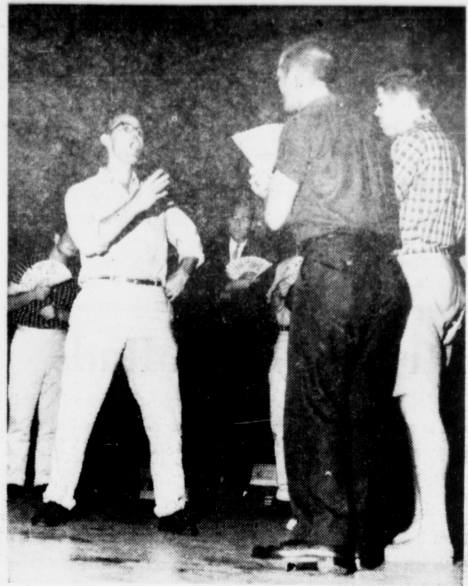

The settings are elaborate and arranged with a series of various levels, platforms, and ramps, she added.

The musical background is provided by a 30 voice chorus. Featured selections are "A Wandering Minstrel I," "Behold the Lord High Executioner," "Flowers That Bloom in Spring," and "Willow Tit Willows."

The cast is comprised of Steve Atkinson, Mikado of Japan; Bob Faulkner, Nanki-Poo; Ray Smith, Koo-Ko; Will Nave, Poo-Bah; Dick Ham, Pish-Tush; Sarah Holroyd, Yum-Yum; Celia Patter, Pitti-Sing; John Wester, Peep-Bo; and Phyllis Jenness, Katisha.

Wally Briggs is stage director for the production. Pianists are John Whitaker and Gertrude Hatch. Phyllis Jenness and Don Ivey are musical and choral directors.

Guignol Players rehearse the first act of the "Mikado" which will open Tuesday night at 8:30 in the Guignol Theatre. Tickets for the production go on sale at noon today at the box office in the Fine Arts Building.

Standards For J-School Hiked To 2.3

By NICK POPE
Kernel Staff Writer

An overall standing of 2.3 will now be required of incoming juniors before they can obtain a major in the School of Journalism, according to information released recently by the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. M. M. White, dean of the college of Arts and Sciences, said while students will be admitted to the University and to other departments as Juniors, they will not be allowed to major in Journalism.

He pointed out that although this sounds like a strict ruling, the student will only be halted temporarily. Dean White said the student will have to take a major in another department not requiring the 2.3 overall standing.

"One of the major reasons for putting this new ruling into effect is to bring about a raise in the standards in the School of Journalism. I want everyone to know when a student graduates with a degree in journalism from UK, he has deserved it and worked for it," said the dean.

Dean White said the new ruling has been on the books for nearly a year, but will be put into effect this coming fall semester. He also noted that only one student was affected by the ruling and said the student will be in the University next fall, but had changed his major to another field.

The dean explained the Department of Radio, Television, and Films and the Department of Chemistry have had this same ruling for some time now and that to his knowledge these two departments, with the addition of the School of Journalism, will be the only ones on the campus.

Dr. Niel Plummer, director of the School of Journalism, said he thought the entire idea was a very good one and the ruling should effect a definite raise in the journalism students' standards.

Dr. Plummer said besides causing the student to work harder to keep up his grades, he felt the ruling would raise the journalism major in the "academic eyes of the campus," and make the other students realize a journalist has to meet standards a good deal higher than the rest of the University students.

Dean White explained he had one more idea in mind for journalism majors in an effort to raise their standards. That is, they would not be allowed to take more than two journalism courses as a major subject until they have satisfied all of their underdivision courses, including a foreign language.

Won't It Ever End!

Only two more weeks of school and it seems more like two years! This seems to be what this week's Kernel Sweetheart, Vivian Shipley, is saying. Vivian is a junior English major from Erlanger and a member of Kappa Delta.

Editor Tells Of New York Buying Trip

By NANCY LOUGHRIDGE
Kernel Editor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Nancy Loughridge, Kernel summer editor, recently returned from a buying trip to New York for the Panhellenic Style Show to be sponsored in August by Hymson's Tois and Teens.) "I'm here, at last!"

These were my thoughts as I stepped off the train in New York City last Monday. It's summer, the time for vacations, and sooner or later people usually wind up in New York—especially if they're on a buying trip.

I strolled along Fifth Avenue and shopped, both with fancied and real money, at such places as Saks', Bergdorf Goodman's, Tiffany's, Lord and Taylor's, Sloan's—but why go on?

Then I walked over a block to Madison Avenue, the grey flannel capital of the world. Here were the business men, in grey, with brief cases, hurrying from place to place, carrying on the business of the city, country, and world.

The next stop on my list of things to do was Seventh Avenue, the home of the garment industry of America.

Here I learned how fall fashions are created, made, the colors selected, fabrics picked, and how buyers decide which are right for their community.

The story of clothes buying unfolded slowly as we traveled from showroom to showroom and building to building. The fashion editor of Glamour Magazine told us how the fall fashion picture takes shape.

Buyers select the clothes from the various lines which they feel will sell in their area. These decisions are based on many things: the weather, activities, age, and style of dress of the customers.

Sounds like a snap doesn't it? All you do is just go to New York and sit through a couple of showings. Say, "I'll take this and this and this," and then go out and see some shows and come home with memories of a wonderful time.

Well, it's not quite like that. First of all, there are several ways in which you can buy clothing—through an agency, send your own buyer, or a combination of both.

What do agency buyers do? They cover the market, report trends, advise buyers, and buy for stores.

While we were in New York we worked with the Cohn, Sobel Agency. They sent a buyer with us to introduce us to manufacturers and to tell us about the particular market we were buying in.

Yes, there is more than one market. Usually a buyer has a specialty, but we got to see a little of each. There is a sportswear market where separates, slacks, shirts, sweaters, and casual dress are bought. Then there is a market for dress clothes and formals, one for coats and suits, and an accessory market where lingerie, hand bags, jewelry, gloves, scarves, etc., are shown.

Around the first of August thousands of girls rush to their corner newsstand or anxiously await the postman for the latest copy of their favorite fashion magazine, and fashions for fall are being shipped to stores.

They hurriedly digest this information and rush to the nearest clothing store. This is how the fashion trend is born.

Few people realize how much time, work, and

Struggle For Minds

The Kernel is a campus newspaper and therefore its main duty is to report and editorialize campus events. In this case, however, a subject of world importance came to us.

The subject is Communism.

In the Monday mail the Kernel received the magazine pictured below. The World Student News, printed in Czechoslovakia, says it is a "magazine of the international union of students." They don't say what the dues of the union are, but we imagine towing the party line helps quite a bit.

You know what Czechoslovakia is. It's a very useful word with a variety of meanings, including Communist dominated, Russian satellite, subjugated people, restriction of human rights. I could go on, but I thought I'd let you think of a few of your own.

But let's look at the magazine itself. The inside cover is devoted to letters to the editor. Receiving the most attention is a three column letter from a student(?) in Brooklyn, N.Y. describing the "viscious beatings received by peace marchers in a recent demonstration."

The Brooklyn writer describes with vivid imagery the "clubbing of women and children by the New York police." We admit we weren't there but we hardly believe the story of "clubbing of women and children." Strangely, no mention is made of the incident in Moscow last week when peace marchers were threatened with deportation if they didn't stop their "agitation."

Skipping quickly to the inside we see an article on the educational system in Hungary. The article is a defence of Hungary's educational system and points especially to the number of government scholarships.

"No one disputes that we have our problems, but these are problems inseparable from a rapidly advancing and developing system of higher education."

The funny part is that the staunch defender of education in Hungary is Prime Minister Janos Kadar. He's even pictured in shirt sleeves with students at a "voluntary work camp." Unfortunately, the editor forgot to include the fact that Janos Kadar is the bloodthirsty, animalistic degenerate who was responsible for the slaughter in the streets of Budapest in 1956.

There's an informative article on apartheid (total separation of the races) by Michael Leyden, Sydney University. We're not for apartheid but we've got to laugh when the article calls South Africa "a police state." If there ever was a case of the pot calling the kettle black, this is it.

We'll close quickly with a look at the center fold. "Have fun with Communism" is the theme.

"No hidebound traditions are allowed to cramp the style of these Polish students—they're hip, and dig that crazy rhythm everywhere, up in the streets and below in the cellar of the hybrid student club, down there where there's No Room For Squares."

We know there's no room for squares, only hammers and cycles.

-P. M. J.

Letters Fall Rush Sign-up To End Aug. 20

To The Editor:

Bud Wilkenson and Bonnie Prudden would indeed be proud of us. We are not among the 60 percent of U.S. students who are not physically fit. The reason we are among the top 40 percent is that we are forced to walk great distances to get to our cars. As residents of Keeneland Hall we must leave our cars parked behind the Coliseum.

Although there are 25 spaces for cars in front of the dormitory, we have been informed that these spaces are for the staff. We heard from the janitor that the staff invariably park their autos in the alleys, thereby preventing delivery trucks from entering.

We will be quite willing to go along with the fee increase set up for next year. Why then must each of the campus police collect $50.00 in fines per day?

So our cars sit in area C behind the Coliseum surrounded by other cars belonging to commuters from Fayette and adjoining counties who did not see fit to obtain a parking permit for $2.50.

To cite a recent incident, one of our foursome was given a ticket for parking two minutes in front of the dormitory while she ran in to get a suitcase. She left a note on the windshield to this effect. The campus policeman complied and tore up her half of the ticket, but turned in his half. She returned Sunday night to find a note in her mailbox saying she must report to the dean of men's office immediately. Thinking it would be foolish to rush over at 11 p.m. Sunday, she risked waiting until Monday morning. There she was charged $15. Not only was she charged for this ticket, but also for one which she received in June. The June ticket to which she did respond immediately, was disregarded at that time. If she agreed to buy an Area C sticker, which she did. She had apparently been judged as being "ticket prone."

If the athletic department would provide a net for us, we would be glad to stage a tennis exhibition for the whistling workers from Knoxville, Tenn., who are building our fine new SUB. They would have to be the spectators, for there have been no workers in the new dorm area for weeks.

We will be more than happy to stay away from the bright new yellow lines which have been repainted and lengthened this summer.

Perhaps a traffic island could be constructed on Harrison Avenue so our dates and parents could pick us up after calling us in advance.

A weekend guest received a ticket as did a staff member near the speech clinic.

Meanwhile, don't believe we are a sedentary lot just because we own cars.

About 250 prospective rushees have signed up for fall rush said Kay Shropshire, president of the UK Panhellenic Council. Miss Shropshire said between 650 and 700 coeds are expected to sign up for fall rush before the deadline, which has been extended to Aug. 20.

In order to register for the fall rush program the prospective rushees must send a $4.00 registration fee along with their completed registration forms to the Dean of Women's Office. Registration forms may be secured from this office on request.

All entering freshmen women are eligible for rush. Also, all women transferring to UK and all women who have been in the University at least one semester are eligible if they have a 2.0 overall or a 2.5 the previous semester, Miss Shropshire said.

The official rush program begins this fall on Tuesday, Sept. 18, with open houses and coke parties and extends through Friday, Sept. 28, when the rushees sign their preference cards.

Jeannie Haines, rush chairman

Each sorority receives a form containing information on every girl who is participating in the fall rush program. The sororities use this information to obtain further recommendations on their prospective pledges.

Miss Shropshire said contact between sorority members and prospective rushees should remain as normal as possible throughout the summer. All those participating in the fall rush program are asked to act in the same way they would if they were not involved, she added.

As yet, there has been no one named to take Pat Patterson's place as assistant dean of women and faculty advisor to UK's Panhellenic system.

Miss Chloe Gifford Speaks on Russia

Miss Chloe Gifford, director of special activities at UK, addressed approximately 100 delegates at a Kentucky Youth Seminar which opened here Monday.

She outlined the differences between the United States and a communistic nation and then told of the rapid strides that Russia is making in military strength.

"Khrushchev has one desire," she said, "and that is to prove to the underdeveloped and emerging countries that the Russian system has far more to offer than does the democratic way of life."

"We are hearing much now about reducing taxes, making expenditure less. How in heaven's name can we fight this cold war against the most formidable adversary that has ever challenged us unless we have a powerful and purposeful government," she continued.

Dr. Max J. Wasserman, professor of international economics, of UK's Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce, reviewed qualities and benefits of the American democratic society. The seminar, sponsored by the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics and Kentucky Council, ended Wednesday.

Memorial Coliseum, home of the four-time national champion Kentucky Wildcats, showplace of NCAA tournament play, and site for numerous high school games, will serve as the stage for one of basketball's biggest shows next March 30.

Harold Anderson, veteran Bowling Green University coach and president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, has announced that the first annual NABC Hall of Fame East-West All-Star basketball game will be held in the "House That Rupp Built" on the Saturday following the Louisville finals of the NCAA basketball championships, 1963.

Proceeds for the game, sponsored nationally by the National Association of Basketball Coaches and locally by the Lexington Junior Chamber of Commerce, will go to the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame which is being constructed at Springfield, Mass., which is named in honor of the late James Naismith, founder of the modern game of basketball.

Coach Adolph Rupp will serve as game chairman for the event which will present a parade of the top graduating basketball seniors next spring. The players will be chosen by the coaches with the head coaches for East and West being the two tutors who lead their teams in the NCAA finals the week before the star contest.

Those players who will be seniors this year and are receiving pre-season all-star billing include Rod Thorn of West Virginia, Tom Thacker and Tony Yates of Cincinnati, Art Heyman of Duke, Jerry Smith of Furman, Jimmy Rayle and Fom Bolyard of Indiana, Tom Boose of NYU, Jerry Carlton of Arkansas, Dave Downey of Illinois, Vinnie Ernest of Providence, Ken Glenn and Al Madlrey of Niagara.

Bill Green of Colorado St., Gerry Harkness of Loyola (Ill.), Billy Hoy of St. Joseph's, Larry Jones of Toledo, Bob Melvin of Fordham, Bill O'Connor of Canisius, Bill Raftery of LaSalle, M. C. Thompson of DePaul, Nate Thurmond of Bowling Green, and Gerry Williams of Butler.

From the Southeastern Conference, such senior standouts as the following will be eligible for participation in the game if their season performances prove them worthy of selection: Jim Kerwin, Tulane; Leland Mitchell, W. D. Stroud, and Joe Dan Gold, Mississippi State; Layton Johns and Bill Tinker, Auburn; Mike Tomasovich, Georgia Tech; John Russell, Vanderbilt; Maury Drummond, LSU; and Roy Roberts and Scotty Baesler, Kentucky.

The Hall of Fame, for which ground was broken at Springfield in 1959, includes such greats of the game as long-time Kansas Coach "Phog" Allen, pro great "Bennie" Borgmann, Pittsburgh Coach Dr. H. Clifford Carlson, AAU and All-America star "Red" DeBernardi, Referee George Hoyt, All-America "Chuck" Hyatt, Rhode Island Coach Frank Kearney, Official "Pat" Kennedy, Notre Dame mentor for 20 years, George Keogan, Oklahoma State's fabulous Bob Kurland, Purdue mentor "Piggy" Lambert, Stanford's Hank Luisetti, St. Louis "Easy Ed" Macauley, George Miken of DePaul and the Minneapolis Lakers, Indiana's Branch McCracken, Dr. Naismith, and many others.

Coach Charlie Bradshaw has announced a three-game schedule for his 1962 freshman footballers.

The schedule, made up of the same three teams the Kittens have met the last six seasons, calls for a Sept. 28 home opener with Vanderbilt's Baby Commodores, and Oct. 15 Stoll Field clash with Cincinnati's Bearkittens, and a Nov. 2 meeting with Tennessee's Baby Vols at Knoxville.

Both home games will be afternoon affairs, getting under way at 3 o'clock. The game at Knoxville also is set for the afternoon, kickoff time tentatively set at 3 o'clock.

UK Medics Hold State TB Clinics

University chest physicians will attend the first of a state-wide series of seminars. The initial seminar will be held in the Whitesburg area on Aug. 2.

This is a teaching seminar to bring the latest in diagnostic and treatment techniques of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases to doctors throughout Kentucky.

Dr. Jerome E. Cohn, assistant professor of medicine, and Dr. Frank C. Spencer of the Department of Surgery at the UK Medical Center, will conduct the seminar which is being sponsored by the Medical Education Division of the Kentucky State Medical Association and the Kentucky Thoracic Society, medical branch of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association.

At the session, physicians will have an opportunity to present cases, along with X-rays and other laboratory work for discussion.

The UK doctors will conduct similar seminars throughout Eastern Kentucky at the invitation of local medical societies. Similar seminars will be held in the western half of the state by a team of Louisville physicians, Dr. Richard E. Mardis and Dr. Herbert T. Ransdell, Jr.

J-Students Interviewed By Executive

Four journalism Fellowship students were interviewed Monday by Dr. Paul S. Swenson, executive director, The Newspaper Fund, Inc., New York, in the Journalism Building.

The UK students who were interviewed were Charles R. Barker, Mrs. Sarah S. Kinney, Mrs. Jane B. McLurkin, and Mrs. Lucille M. Nash.

The purpose of Dr. Swenson's visit was to meet the participants and the journalism faculty at UK and to determine by interviews with the students their opinions, valuations, and ideas on the total summer Fellowship program.

The Newspaper Fund, Inc., under the terms of a gift from The Wall Street Journal, is in its fourth year. The purpose of these Fellowships is to assist teachers of journalism and school newspaper advisers at the high school and junior college level obtain university training in journalism.

The fund aids in improving scholastic newspapers, and provides teachers with information that will be helpful to them in advising talented young people who may be interested in a career in journalism.

knowledge go into the selection of the clothes you see displayed in local stores. It all starts in January, according to Miss Dilly of Glamour, the largest selling fashion magazine in the U.S.

This is the time when the magazines decide what colors they will promote for fall. They go into the garment market and convince the manufacturers that these colors and fabrics will be good.

The new styles come off the drawing board and are made in the fabrics and colors the magazines have promoted.

A day on the market starts at 9 a.m. and ends at 5 p.m. If you are shopping in the sportswear market you will spend most of your time at 1407, 7th Avenue, where there are 38 floors of sportswear showrooms.

Of course, it's fun seeing all the new clothes and meeting many interesting people but after you've seen so many pretty clothes you begin to wonder just which ones are the right ones and worry, if your selections will be the best for the customers at home. It's hard to turn down something which you really love in favor of a dress that you know will sell much better.

While we were on the sportswear market we met the man responsible for the design of the car coat and tapered pants for women, John Weitz.

You learn so many things about buying and retailing and selecting clothes that whether any of us ever turn into buyers or not, we will have invaluable knowledge in the selection of clothing.

When Friday came I was really sorry to leave. It's a wonderful city and I loved every minute.

Wildcat Football Team Signs Ohio Quarterback

A highly-sought young passer from Columbus, Ohio, 17-year-old Frank Stavroff, has accepted a grant-in-aid to the University.

Coach Charlie Bradshaw announced the signing with the comment, "This outstanding boy has been at the top of our wanted list for some time and we feel extremely fortunate to have him make a decision in our favor. We consider Stavroff to have exceptional sprint out passing ability, which is the core of our offense."

The 6-1, 190 pound quarterback led his Columbus Eastmoor High School team to three straight city championships. He was named to the All-City star unit during his final two campaigns, selected on the second All-Ohio honor eleven and is due to quarterback the South team in the annual North-South All-Star Classic at Canton, Ohio, on Aug. 10.
