

The old Lexington Market, formerly standing on the site of the present City, torn down in