Administration

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY President, University of Kentucky

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

In the nine years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges, and the University has become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award—an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

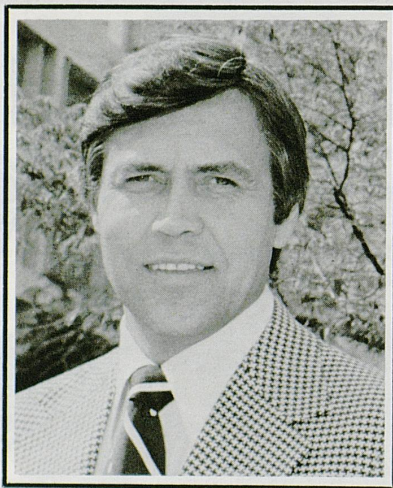

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

Athletics Department

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN Director

Expansion of the football training room and addition of a beautiful player's lounge at Shively Sports Center, new carpeting in the stadium football offices, a new basketball office complex in Memorial Coliseum, re-arrangement of the baseball fences and a new surface for the running track are just a few of the recent improvements that signify the continuing progress of UK athletics since Cliff Hagan joined the Wildcat Staff seven years ago.

Recognized nationally as a progressive, business-oriented and promotion-minded administrator, Hagan has seen and overseen vast improvements in all phases of an ever-expanding operation that has encompassed 16 sports since the men's and women's programs were merged in July of last year.

The merger, under Hagan's direction, has been orderly, with office space re-modeled and in some cases created to make room for the women's coaching and administrative staff.

The indoctrination of Hagan into the UK athletics administrative structure came in 1972, when he was named assistant to Harry C. Lancaster and given the task of implementing the Blue & White Fund for 57,600-seat Commonwealth Stadium and later for Rupp Arena. The fruits of his labors in this area have provided the additional financial support that has elevated the UK athletics program into a first class operation.

Hagan was named Athletics Director in July 1975 following Lancaster's retirement.

Hagan also has been an advocate of a strong scholar-athlete program, feeling "a genuine commitment to provide all the academic support and encouragement we can to help our athletes leave our campus with a college education and a degree."

On the personal side, Hagan received one of his highest individual honors last May when he became the first University of Kentucky basketball player to be installed in the Naismith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy, and Kip.

FRANK HAM
Assistant Director of Athletics

FRANK HAM became Assistant Director of Athletics in July 1975 soon after Cliff Hagan succeeded Harry C. Lancaster as Director of Athletics.

A native of Scranton, Pa., Ham came to the University in 1969 as administrative Assistant to football coach John Ray, and was reassigned to the Athletic Director's staff in 1972 when Ray resigned.

Ham graduated from high school at Niles, Michigan, and completed his undergraduate work at Indiana University and coached high school football and track at John Adams High in South Bend in 1944-46 and then returned to Olivet as athletic director and head football and basketball coach.

In 1951, he became assistant to the president at Olivet, with responsibilities in public and alumni relations. He was in private business from 1954 until 1968.

SUE FEAMSTER
Assistant Director of Athletics

SUE FEAMSTER joined the athletics association July 1, 1978, with the merger of the men's and women's programs. Feamster had been the director of women's athletics prior to her appointment as assistant director of athletics.

A native of Frankfort, she came to the University as a graduate student in 1970, was named assistant director of campus recreation in 1972 and director of women's athletics in 1974.

Feamster graduated from Franklin County High School where she was an outstanding tennis player and athlete. While in college she earned letters in tennis, field hockey, basketball and track from Indiana University and Kentucky State University, where she earned her B.S. degree and graduated with honors.

LARRY IVY
Assistant Director of Athletics for Finance

Adding a new dimension to UK athletics was the appointment three years ago of LARRY IVY as Assistant Director of Athletics for Finance.

Ivy, who came to the University as Director of Housing in 1969, is involved primarily with the administration and management of financial aspects, and develops and initiates policies for accounting procedures and related business management activities of the department.

Game plan.

Success in basketball requires plenty of training, good coaching and team play. And it requires a game plan.

At McDonald's, our game plan is simple. We have the team to produce winners every season.

And our game plan includes careful handling. We never drop the ball when it comes to service. Prompt and courteous—whether you're home team or visitor.

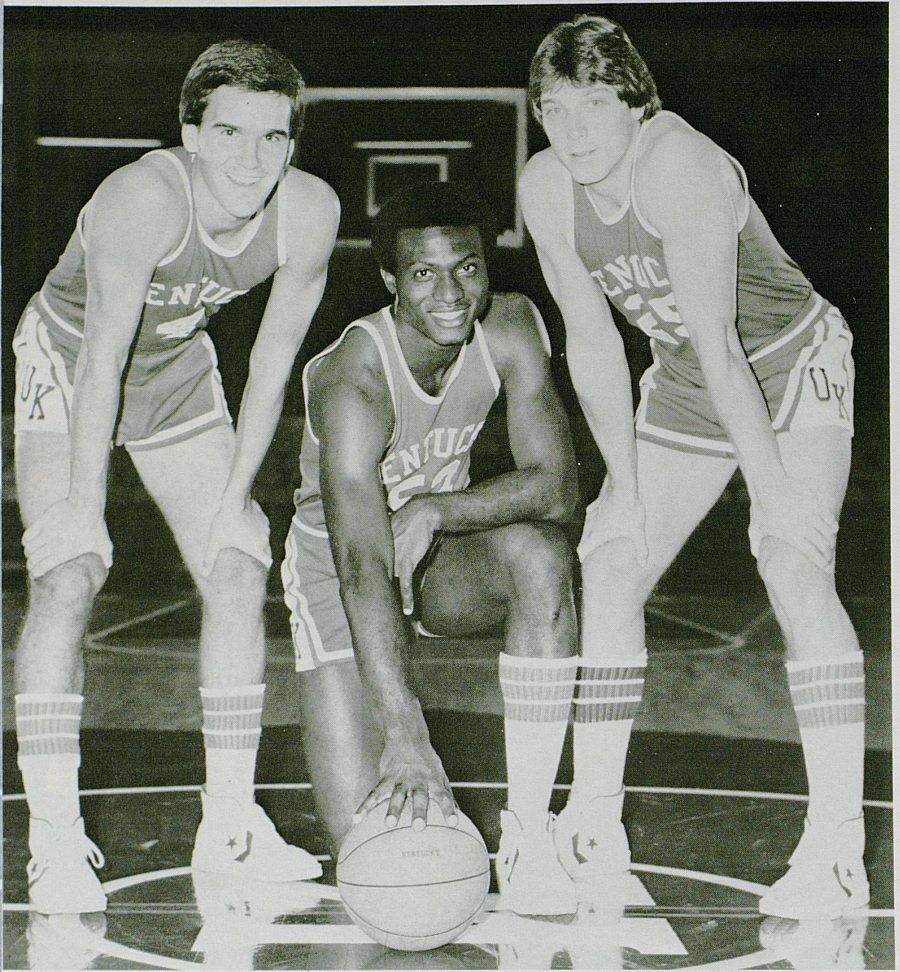

So, before or after the next battle on the hardwood, include McDonald's in your game plan.

Nobody can do it like McDonald's can.™

True or False

By Sally Briley

1. Television cameramen get to watch the University of Kentucky Wildcat Basketball games from the best positions in Rupp Arena. _____
2. It's harder to run camera for basketball games than it is for baseball games because game action is faster. _____
3. Cameramen don't have to know too much about the sport for which they are running camera because they are only following orders from the program's director. _____
4. When a director asks a cameraman to give him a "hero shot" he wants the cameraman to show him pictures of John Wayne. _____
5. Television, and especially a live sporting event, is a perfect example of Murphy's Law: everything that can go wrong, will . . . and probably at the worst possible moment. _____
6. University of Kentucky Wildcat basketball fans are so exuberant that vibrations from their cheering can actually shake the lens of the camera causing a rippling of the picture on viewers' sets at home. _____

Answers

1. FALSE.

This is a tricky question. The television cameramen, located mid-way up the bleacher section and right on the floor, do indeed have some of the best seats in Rupp Arena. What isn't true is that the cameramen get to watch the basketball games from these terrific positions . . . they don't.

During a game, cameramen must concentrate solely on that portion of the game which they have been assigned to cover. Rarely does a cameraman even see all the action as it occurs on the floor. For example: a cameraman covering over-all game action follows the ball with a "wide shot" and must overlook sideline action or other action occurring away from the ball; cameramen assigned to highlight and follow key Wildcat players during a game, will not be looking at game action in which those key players are not involved.

WKYT-TV cameraman Bo Gray comments, "The only time I see a University of Kentucky basketball game is when I watch it on a delayed broadcast . . . or if I'm not running camera."

2. FALSE.

Surprised? Most people think that it must be harder to operate a television camera for a basketball game than a baseball game because basketball is a much faster-paced game. But it's just the opposite. Basketball is one of the easiest sports to operate camera for, while baseball is probably one of the most difficult. In basketball the play is limited to a confined area, and while game action is fast paced and constant, there is little game strategy and action is generally centered around the basketball. Baseball involves a great deal of game strategy and game action is never centered solely around the pitcher and the baseball, i.e. stealing bases, fielding, etc.

3. FALSE.

While it is true that cameramen are following directions from the show's director, the cameramen are the "eyes" of the director. During the game, the director is sitting in a control room inside a mobile television unit located underneath Rupp Arena. The only game action he ever sees is what his cameramen are shooting; this appears on the four camera monitors in the mobile unit. It is the responsibility of the cameramen to work as a team and cover all the action on the floor allowing the director to pick which camera shot and what game action will be transmitted to home viewers. For cameramen to be able to give the director the shots necessary for good game coverage they must be knowledgeable about the sport, the officiating, and game strategies.

4. FALSE.

A "hero shot" is simply a close-up camera shot of a player who has just completed an outstanding play.

5. TRUE.

"Everything can be operating perfectly and then five minutes before the game begins anything can go wrong," explained C. Gregg "Figg" Newton, cameraman for WKYT-TV, "and the possibilities of what can go wrong are virtually limitless."

Because Murphy's Law seems to have been written about the television industry, and especially about live sporting events, cameramen must be versatile enough to cover for any unforeseen equipment problems. Should the game action camera go on the blink, one of the other cameras must be relegated to game action immediately.

6. TRUE.

It's called microphonics. And the University of Kentucky Wildcat fans are so exuberant that vibrations from their cheers can actually shake the lenses of the cameras. At home this is seen as a rippling of the picture.

The Last Time

Kentucky vs. LSU

Following a pair of regular season defeats to Louisiana State, the University of Kentucky halted the SEC's regular season champs in the league's post-season tournament.

Playing on a neutral court in Birmingham, Ala., the Wildcats jumped out to a 43-30 halftime lead before going on to win 80-67.

Before LSU coach Dale Brown could toss his coat to the hardwood, Kentucky picked up where it left off and extended it's lead to 51-30 early in the second half. Two baskets apiece by guards Kyle Macy and Truman Claytor led the surge.

With 14:51 left to play, Kentucky's lead had ballooned to 28 points at 60-32, and things were looking grim for the regular season SEC champs and tourney favorites.

Before the night ended, Kentucky had claimed an 80-67 triumph over the Tigers and set up an SEC Tournament finals match with rival Tennessee.

The Wildcats were led in scoring by Macy with 29 points, followed by Claytor with 20. Fred Cowan hauled down ten rebounds.

DeWayne Scales and Lionel Green paced LSU with 14 points each.

The colors of purple and gold represent one of the Southeastern Conference's oldest and most prominent schools — Louisiana State University.

The LSU system is a co-educational, state-supported institution of higher learning comprising seven major divisions located on eight campuses in five cities across the state.

Founded in Pineville, La., in 1860, LSU's first president was General William T. Sherman.

The oldest and largest campus in the LSU system is located at Baton Rouge, a metropolitan area of about 370,000 people. Headed by Chancellor Paul W. Murrill, the campus has an enrollment of 25,828 and includes colleges of agriculture, arts and sciences, business administration and a school of music, among others. The enrollment for the entire system is more than 48,000 students.

Six major professional schools comprise the LSU Medical Center, with campuses in New Orleans and Shreveport.

"It must be a Southwick."

It must be Leonard Cox

The trend to more traditional styles appeals most to those who are advanced in their taste, not necessarily in their years. Southwick's natural shoulder suit, "Dorset," is a classic example. There is an elegant, shaped line—a look achieved by a touch that is youthful and contemporary, yet one that hasn't varied a stitch in quality for half a century.

OUR PLAY LIST

You're looking at a wall containing over 10,000 record albums. It's the main source of music for the personalities who play the daily sounds of Double Q.

But it's not the only source. We present live concerts, too. From places like New Orleans and Los Angeles.

Sometimes our personalities bring in singles, albums, or tapes from their own collections and they're always getting the first advanced releases of the most important new rock and roll albums.

Of course, they play hits too. But the main thing that dictates what our personalities play is their unique sense of the energy, diversity and excitement of the music of our times. And a special sense of knowing just what you want to hear.

That goes for Kathie Stamps in the morning. For Gary Dickson and Terry Meiners at midday. For Kruser in the afternoon, and Tony Tolliver in the evening. And it goes for Ross Martin in the wee hours of the night. They're what makes Double Q different.

And why our listeners hear more new music, more old music, more of all kinds of music than any other listeners in Lexington.

THEIR PLAY LIST

Most other stations that play rock and roll limit their play list to a few best sellers, a few pick hits of the future and a few golden oldies.

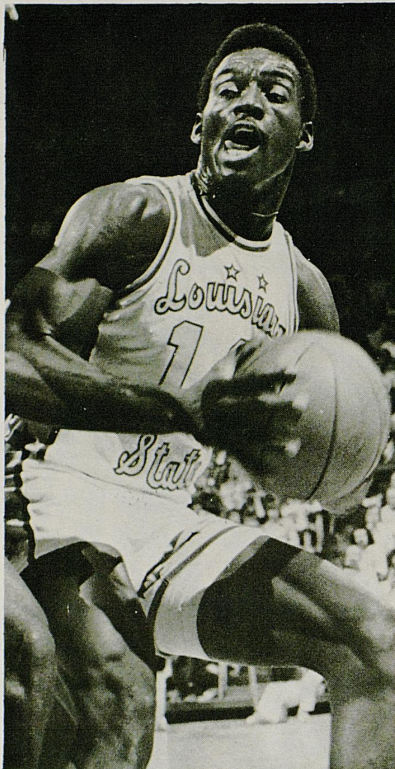

Which isn't bad if you don't mind the repetition, repetition, repetition, repetition . . .

Academic Common Market Cuts Costs

University of Kentucky library science student Rick Buchanan paid a visit to his home library of Williamsburg, Va., last winter to find out where he could study library science. Virginia does not have a graduate library science degree program.

The Williamsburg librarian referred him to the state librarian. She told Buchanan about several schools of library science and then gave him the good news about a little-known program that helps Buchanan to save lots of money in tuition fees.

The program is called the Academic Common Market. Coordinated by the Southern Regional Education Board, the common market permits waiver of out-of-state tuition for a pool of specialized graduate programs in state supported schools in all of the Southern states except North Carolina. This means that the out-of-state student pays the same fees as the resident students.

Kentucky is among the first states to participate in the common market.

"It took quite a bit of work to get the program going," said Dr. Wimberly C. Royster, dean of the UK Graduate School. Graduate education leaders like Royster set up the market so that students going to another state don't pursue degrees offered in their home states.

"For instance," said Dr. Michael J. Gardone Jr., director of academic programs at the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, "Kentucky does not offer Kentuckians an opportunity to study for a doctorate in animal science out of state because such a program exists at UK."

A Kentucky resident wishing to become a market student must first be accepted at the university of his choice, and the university chosen must be one for which Kentucky has obtained access for its residents. The Kentucky student must then apply for certification as a legal Kentucky resident to the Kentucky Council on Higher Education.

Kentucky residents going to universities in other states as common market students may choose from 152 degree subject headings. Some examples are the study of theater arts for a doctorate at Florida State University; environmental design and planning for a doctorate at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University and a master's degree in fisheries science at Louisiana State University.

UK offers common market students seven master's degree programs—diplomacy and international commerce, housing and interior design, library science, medical radiation dosimetry, philosophy, radiological health and toxicology.

Five doctoral degrees also are offered to common market students at UK—agricultural engineering, musical arts, musicology, animal sciences and higher education.

Sometimes one state will offer a particular degree to residents of only one other state at the common market rate.

For instance, UK offers the Ph.D. degree in animal science only to South Carolina residents and the doctorate in higher education only to Louisiana residents.

On the other hand, UK offers, a master's degree in medical radiation dosimetry to residents of Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Kentucky has received more certified students from common market states than it has certified Kentucky residents to study in other states, Gardone said.

"UK's library science program has had an arrangement similar to the common market program with West Virginia for some years," Dr. James Sodt, associate dean of the UK College of Library Science, explained.

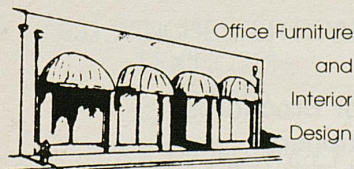

A library science student, Debbie Cochran of Little Rock, Ark., said, "The South is far ahead of the rest of the country in cooperating to provide a good education at a reasonable cost to all people in the area."

"The volume (of students) probably never will be large," Gardone said, "but the program assists all graduate students and provides educational opportunities to Kentucky students."

"This program is helping students with their educational needs," Royster said, and "it is saving duplication of educational resources."

Further information may be obtained from the Graduate School office in room 359 Patterson Office Tower, where a catalog of programs available at in-state rates for residents of Kentucky is available.

value & variety

You know the situation. It's time to decide on a place to eat. Family Battle #46. Everybody wants something different.

Your wife loves fried chicken. Junior doesn't. All he wants is a hamburger and fries, a hamburger and fries. You'd think he'd turn into a hamburger and fries. And your daughter? Crazy about fish. As for you, you only have one concern. That it doesn't cost you half a week's pay to eat dinner.

How do you make everybody happy? Come to Burger Queen. Delicious golden brown fried chicken for your wife, the chicken fan. A world of hamburgers for Junior. Hamburgers, cheeseburgers, Royal Burgers, Imperial Burgers. And for your daughter, Burger Queen's batter-dipped Fish 'N Chips or their new Complete Fish Dinner. They even serve breakfast in the morning. And everything at a price that will satisfy even you.

Value & Variety at Burger Queen. The answer to the family dinner dilemma.
